Queue Up Different For Cubans

By ISAAC M. FLORES HAVANA, AP - The British queue up Americans stand in line. To Cubans it is hacienda cola, or making a tail.

Long human lines snake in and out of food and clothing stores, around drug stores business offices and sometimes wind around city blocks.

"Making a tail" is necessary here because of the scarcity and rationing of food, clothing, shoes, household items, consumer goods of many kinds.

It is usually a grim, tiring, frustrating business—but it has its funny aspects.

It has produced a rare type of person who seem to like the whole idea.

Cuban humorists and cartoonists have come up with what they call the prototype of a "filocleria," one who loves to stand in line. This love or obsession is predominant in women, the wags say, so the character is usually a plump middle-aged woman wearing low-heeled shoes and carrying a shopping bag.

"A filocleria" will go by on a bus, for example, as soon as she sees a handful of people in front of a store, she leaps from the vehicle and rushes over at breakneck speed.

"Who's at the end of the line?" Only after taking her position does she think to ask: "What are they thinking here?"

The filocleria will not step out of the house without her shopping bag and ration books. She often arrives home with outlandish items such as a reconditioned picture tube when she has no TV set, tennis shoes three sizes too small because they were the last remaining pair, staples and paper clips, or a 25-pound sack of cabbage.
