"Show Boat" At Prince Edward

Opening Yesterday at the Prince Edward Theatre, Edna Ferber's "Show Boat" plays three times daily at 2-7-9 p. m.

Musical romance and drama fused together by music that waves an enchanting spell. This is the story of "Show Boat," which will sweep across your emotions like the rushing tide of the Mississippi.

What memories the Kern-Hammannstein songs bring back! What thrills in the love story of Magnolia and Ravenel, portrayed by Irene Dunne and Allan Jones. There is the convincing thrash of life in the marriage, peopled with 2,500 players on the screen.

There is the rhythm of the sea in Paul Robeson's songs, "Old Man River" and "My Sails Shall Meet." Behind his singing waves of harmony, swelling from 200 resonant voices that rise and fall and beat like free branches vibrating in the wind. Or like ship's sails, billowing full, thrusting against a sea of white storm.

There is Helen Morgan, the Juliette who captured audiences when she sang "Billie" and "Just Help Loving That Man" on the stage. She gives her screen role the same appealing charm.

Charles Winninger, the show boat Captain, possesses a warm human friendliness that seems to reach out and cheer up the whole world. His wife, partly portrayed by Helen Westley, is a sharply etched characterization of a wife with a talent for uttering words that hurt like fire and humiliation.

There is the smart dancing of Quocile Smith and Sammy White, emphasized by a chorus of 48 beauties who probably learned to dance as they went with. Monte O'Dea offers a winsome performance.

Expect Big Jump in Wheat Production

LONDON, July 23—(C.P. Cable)—The International Wheat Advisory Committee, established by the World Wheat Conference in 1933, devoted itself in the course of its eighth session to the problem of increasing consumption.

Before it was a report from the secretary forecasting an upward jump in world net exports of wheat flour for the 1936-37 season.

F. L. McDougall presided at the meeting at which 19 countries are represented, including Canada, the United States and Argentina, three of the biggest wheat producing countries.

Agustin Edwards, Chilean Ambassador in London suggested that the committee should start an inquiry to ascertain the possibilities of creating an international revolving wheat reserve. He proposed that this be controlled and financed by an international body and that its reserves be drawn on from time to time to meet the needs of regions and countries which could not afford to pay current commercial prices.

The delegates generally welcomed the proposal. The chairman said it measures could be recommended

Slam for Women Was Just Her Joke

AMY MOLLISON AVERS SHE DID NOT MEAN WHAT SHE SAID.

SHEFFIELD, Eng., July 23—Amy Johnson Mollison explained today she was just "kidding" when she said "women have never been up to any good."

The remarks of the famous woman pilot, who brought a gasp of astonishment from her audience at a Women's Engineering Society dinner, were designed to "instill a little pep" in the meeting, she declared.

"Why, I had my tongue in my cheek," she asserted. "Of course I am a feminist. I believe women have had a great past and will have a great future."

She explained her speech at the Friday night dinner this way: "When I became president of the society I decided our dinners would not be boring—so I decided to liven up the proceedings a bit."

"I'm surprised my words were not understood as a joke. Certainly I believe in women."

(Her previous statement, which she explained, was: "Women have never been up to any good. My candid opinion of the species, obtained from history, is that they have created little and destroyed much.")

The filer also backtracked on another assertion in which she described women engineers as unworthy of the title because, "I don't know one who will put the plumb line right or mend a gramophone."

She said she didn't mean that either—or another statement in which she declared:

"I think there is a lot to be said for our grandmothers' technique of tears and fainting. A fair dmsel in tears by the side of an automobile with a punctured tire will never fall to produce results."

English Editor Enjoys Travel

TORONTO, July 23—(C.P.)—A gaunt, kindly Irishman, who confessed that he was only mildly interested in the Canadian Rockies when he crossed over them, reached Toronto yesterday.

It is Robert Lynd, literary editor of the London, England, News Chronicle, whose column on books and authors has won him world renown. His idea of the perfect job, he admitted, is to be commissioned to go from country to country making people spend money.

Leading to increased consumption of what in populous regions, especially Asia, a great service would be rendered to mankind.

Western And Serial At Capitol

Popular demand of local theatre goers brings John Wayne to the screen of the Capitol Theatre starting yesterday in his latest smash hit, "Rainbow Valley." Enacting the role of a fearless government agent assigned to break up the activities of an outlaw band, he risks not only his life but also his reputation and the regard of the woman he loves to accomplish that end.

Wayne voluntarily goes to prison to obtain evidence against the gang. Proceeding to Rainbow Valley, he opposes the bandits in a series of breath-taking encounters which result in his finally being selected to a position of trust and responsibility by the townspeople. A colorful climax finds him suspected from the antics of George Valley of having been a convict, and obviously to be working for the good of the outlaws. Attaining the confidence of the gang, Wayne works a clever ruse which causes them to bring about their own downfall.

Good laughs may be expected from the antics of George Haynes, the bowboy comic, who assists Wayne to punctuate the tense moments and swift flowing action of the story with nicely balanced comedy relief. Also included in the supporting cast are Lucille Brown, LeRoy Mason, Buffalo Bill Jr., Bert Dillard, and Loyd Ingraham.

United States Woman Wounded In Madrid

WASHINGTON, July 23—(A.P.)—The wounding of an American woman in the gunfire of Spain's bloody revolution coupled with reports that a number of United States citizens have been under fire for two days in their Madrid hotels, tonight spread concern at the State Department.

The first known American casualty in the Spanish civil war was not identified, nor was the seriousness of her condition reported. She was wounded at Guardarrama, 31 miles north-west of Madrid, in fighting there yesterday.

Harrassed by a threatened food shortage in the Spanish capital—with the supply estimated at two days or less—and by the possibility that the city's water supply might be disrupted, the United States Embassy in Madrid called upon all United States citizens there to take refuge within its walls if they desired.

Eric Wendelin, Secretary of the Madrid Embassy, in a dispatch, revealed not only the wounding of the woman but also a continuing "fear that irresponsible youths may start searching houses at any moment, putting people in considerable danger."

Fear was felt that the water supply might be cut off, Wendelin said. He added enough food had been stored up in the building to last five people for 30 days.

Unless conditions become extremely desperate, he said, "we feel that everyone in the embassy will be safe."

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, July 23—(C.P. Cable)—Captain George Black Osborne, skipper of the once elusive British trawler Girl Pat, and his brother Jim appeared again in police court here yesterday to answer charges of larceny on warrants arriving from England.

Following a brief hearing in which the acting Inspector-General of Police C. P. Widdup, described how he identified as the Girl Pat a trawler captured off Georgetown July 19, more than three months after she disappeared from the North Sea fishing banks, an adjournment was made until Friday morning.

The warrants against the two brothers were issued in the Metropolitan police court, London, together with depositions for several other persons including Tom Moore, William Charles, Angell Hacker, all of Grimsby, and George Frederick, Jefferson of Millford Haven, England.

Following the Girl Pat's capture off Georgetown after she had eluded shipping on both sides of the Atlantic, Major Widdup according to his testimony yesterday, found the ship's name under a thin piece of board on which the ship's bell was screwed and also the registered shipping number of the Girl Pat along with the name arrange for the coming year. This program will be published as soon as it is prepared. If, after receiving it, you have any suggestions to offer, they will be gladly welcomed by the committee. Our success in the future lies, under Divine Providence, largely in our own hands, and will depend to a great extent on our attitude of mind. The measure of our success will correspond to our optimism, our spirit of co-operation, and above all to the knowledge we gain. We have every reason to be optimistic.

An Ideal Setting
"It is the opinion of those who have studied the situation here and of experts in this work who have visited the province that we have here an ideal setting for a comprehensive program of adult education, the best perhaps, in America."

"We have, first of all, the need of education; not that our percentage of illiteracy is high, nor that we are a backward people, struggling to eke out a bare subsistence from a barren soil. We are still convinced that our Island is the Garden Province. We know that we are an intelligent people. But the present state of affairs would seem to indicate that we have not, on the whole, taken advantage of modern facilities for education, particularly in those fields in which our chief interests lie. Old methods and unscientific practices have by no means been entirely abandoned in this province. We can no longer cast seed into the ground and depend on the fertility of the soil to give us bountiful harvests indefinitely. The experience of the past season must have convinced us finally that the supply of fish in the sea is not inexhaustible. These are problems that can be solved only by knowledge and by a wise, whole-hearted co-operation of those whose interests are at stake."

"Added to an intelligent people living in closely-knit communities in a small province, we have other features that go to make this province an ideal field for a successful adult education movement. We have our parish societies and the Women's Institutes already doing good work and gaining experience; we have an efficient press and radio service; our people, whether Christian or not, at least as yet, affected by false social doctrines; and lastly we have the distributing facilities of the Carnegie Libraries. We are urged to make use of these Libraries. The success of the adult education movement depends on them as the successful continuance of the Libraries depends on the adult education movement. One is the complement of the other."

"As a final word, we remind you again that the Adult Education Society will welcome at all times suggestions and requests for information. They are not going to attempt to dictate. Their work, as has been said, is purely to assist, to guide, to encourage."

"We look forward, with God's help, to a bright future."

Ontario Seeking Sixth Golf Team Title This Year

WINNIPEG, July 23—(C.P.)—Ontario, led by the redoubtable Ross "Sandy" Somerville, will parade its golf wares on the tricky-planned course of St. Charles County club here August 3, seeking its sixth inter-provincial team championship.

Ontario has held no monopoly on the inter-provincial title—far from it, for competition has been of the keenest—but shotmits from the Ontario province have won the Willingdon trophy and the team event five times since it was inaugurated in 1927.

Quebec has won the championship twice and British Columbia has been a dangerous challenger on several occasions but quarters from other provinces have never threatened seriously.

This year, however, sterner opposition may be expected from the three prairie provinces where youngsters have uncovered a rarely seen there until the past couple of seasons. Alberta and Saskatchewan particularly have developed gold remarkably.

Youth predominates, particularly on the prairie teams, although several occasions but quarters from other provinces have never threatened seriously.

With such rivalry facing Ontario in its attempt to defend the Willingdon Cup won last year at Hamilton, Somerville becomes a central figure in the current season's play. He has Ontario won the championship without the assistance of the silent Scot from the London Hunt Club.

Only in the event's first year, when Quebec won, and in 1934, when British Columbia triumphed over Ontario, has Ontario been defeated with Somerville a member of the team. In 1933 at Toronto, Ontario competed without "Sandy" and lost by a stroke to Quebec. In 1933 at Vancouver, Somerville was absent in several days, and Ontario lost to British Columbia by four strokes.

With "Sandy" playing his dangerous clubs for Ontario this year, therefore, that province must be regarded as favored to defend its crown successfully when the teams meet on the day, proceeding the opening round of the Canadian amateur championships.

Scores on inter-provincial team matches:

1927 at Hamilton; Quebec, 61; Manitoba, 62; Ontario, 62; British Columbia, 61; Alberta, 61; Maritimes, 61.

Rescued Trapper Turns to Verse

WILLIAMS LAKE, B. C., July 23—(C.P.)—Dan Crawley, trapper, who with his feet badly frozen, was flown to this town, 300 miles north of Vancouver, last winter, has left hospital declaring his trapping days are over. He is well and happy, but removal of some of the bones of his feet means he will no longer be able to tramp the woodland trails.

He remained one month in his cabin near Angus Home Lake, 70 miles north of here, awaiting aid. His rescue followed a hazardous journey of 60 miles on snowshoes to Blue River by his partner, Ted Vachon. Three Vachon communicated with Vancouver and Pilot Ginger Goope picked up the injured man and brought him to hospital here.

On the eve of leaving hospital, Crawley described his experiences in the following verses:

On the banks of a mountain lake
In the jungle and the bogs,
There lived a poor old trapper
In a cabin made of logs.

Grab was very low;
He had to have some meat.
He killed a poor old caribou
And also froze his feet.

Returning to the cabin,
Built upon the shore,
He said this is tough but
I've done the same before.

He made a frost of everything;
There was a lot of pain.
They took him to the hospital
In Ginger Goope's plane.

The undertaker looked hopeful;
You could see it in his eye.
I looked like a job for him,
He was sure the trapper'd die.

Thanks to the kind nurses,
They sure did use him swell;
The doctor was a wonder,
The trapper's feet got well.

He is once more happy
Gazing at the sun;
There's one thing he is sure of—
His trapping days are done.

Banish Age Says Rajah of Aundh

(Canadian Press)
LONDON, July 23—A modern utopia for women was pictured here recently when "Raja" depicting life in the palace and state schools of the Rajah of Aundh, ruling prince of one of the states in the Bombay Presidency, were shown.

Shown for the first time in Europe at the British Film Institute the film depicted the Rajah, his family and subjects going through the ritual Surya Namaskars, which is banishing old age, pain, disease and worry from his realm. He is 70 years old and has not even had a cold in 28 years.

His Raanee, aged 38, with eight healthy and beautiful children, looks like a girl of 16. Another film was a 60-year-old mother of 10 children, who had suffered all her life from rheumatism and suffering fat.

She began the ritual in 1925 and now is in perfect health. "The effect on women is even more astonishing than on men," said the Rajah. "Our women age very rapidly, but now they can keep the vitality and beauty of their youth to an advanced age."

Surya Namaskars is simplicity itself, as the Rajah explained it, and takes only five minutes to do. The hands are put flat on the floor in a bending position and are kept fixed throughout the cycle of 10 positions. Three breaths only are taken during the cycle. No equipment of any sort is required.

He is touring farms in England, Scotland and Ireland, photographing farm processes. "I intend to educate my people by showing them these films," the Rajah said. "We shall have talkie equipment to make them perfectly clear."

He shall also take home instructional films as part of his compulsory school curriculum and to teaching swimming and other sports.

HOUDINI'S WIDOW PLANS SEANCE ON HALLOWEEN

OAKLAND, Cal., July 23—Mrs. Harry Houdini, widow of the magician, announced that she will hold "just one more seance" on the night of Oct. 31, 1936, 10 years to the day after Houdini's death, in a final attempt to reach her husband's spirit through a system of pre-arranged signals.

"October 31 is Halloween and if the spirits don't come then, I don't think there will be much chance," she explained. "I'd like to hold it in the open where everybody can see."

KILL INFLUENZA GERMS

BOSTON, July 23—Influenza, one of the last unwhipped plagues of civilization, is a step nearer the fate of its sister plagues, smallpox, yellow fever, diphtheria and typhoid, two Harvard scientists announced tonight.

"They reported they had recovered the influenza virus from the air and killed it by contact with ultraviolet rays."
