MR. AND MRS. VANS FREEMAN PYE

Mums Floral Church Decor For Double Ring Ceremony

A pretty wedding was solemnized at Trinity United Church, Summerside recently when Jennie Vera, youngest daughter of Clive MacNeill and the late Mrs. MacNeill of North Rustico became the bride of Vans Freeman, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Pye, of Central Lot 16, P.E.I. The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. C.R Webber.

Baskets of mums decorated the church while the guest pews were marked with white bows. Mrs. Erie Sheen, church organist, accompanied the Junior choir of Trinity United Church as they rendered several appropriate selections.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a street length princess style gown of white velvet. Her elbow length veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a headdress of pearl trim. Her jewellery was a string of pearls and matching earrings, gift of the groom. She carried a bouquet of white and red roses.

Attending the bride was Miss Sharon Pye, sister of the groom, as maid of honor. She wore a street-length gown of blue nylon organza over taffeta with lace jacket and matching headdress. She carried a nosegay of white and pink carnations.

Miss Shelia Ford, friend of the bride, as bridesmaid wore a dress similar to that of the maid of honor and carried a matching nosegay.

Little Miss Kandy Simpson was flower girl in a gown of pink nylon organza over taffeta with matching headdress and white accessories. She carried a basket of rose petals.

Richard MacNeill, brother of the bride was best man. Wendell Yeo and James Hickox ushered the guests to the pews.

The groom's mother was attired in a brown wool dress with white accessories and a corsage of burnt orange carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at Birch Hill Lodge for forty guests. A turkey supper was served. The bridal table was centered with a three-tier wedding cake made by the mother of the groom.

Miss Lois MacNeill sister of the bride, attended the guest book while the ushers seated the guests. Jimmie Hickox proposed the toast to the bride to which the groom responded. Grace was said by Earle Enman, brother-in-law of the groom.

Following the reception, the bride and groom left on a honeymoon trip to New Brunswick and points of interest. For travelling the bride wore a brown suit and brown coat with white and brown accessories and a tangerine corsage.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Sun To Bless Them, And Whisper Of West Wind

James glanced at the teapot and indicated to us his empty cup, when we were at supper, helped himself to a biscuit, opened and buttered it and continued his meal.

"Different, Ellen?" he echoed. "Yes, folks are. No two of them alike."

"Unless" we said at a thought "it be identical twins."

"I reckon that's what makes humans so interesting, isn't it? Each cast in his own mold."

"And each has his own gift" we commented.

"And how varied those gifts are. And how marked!"

We had been chatting about our yesterday's visitors: folks come to Alderlea in the delightful weather obtaining. Sun to bless them, a whisper of west wind roving; a blue canopy of sky tented over this cup of Island valley, where in the low of it, between molded white banks, runs the millstream. Scampie's bark, an excited yelp, and a scamper across the yard, brought word of them.

"Company's coming!" he said.

Several visitors there were in all. Come in "a Sabbath-day's journey." — No mention nowadays, at such a time, that "We'll stand your horse in that spare stall "—the one which in days gone, we have seen James prepare for just such an arrival: hay to the manger, bedding to the stall. No talk either of taking the sleigh-robes indoors "so they'll be warm" for the homing. No sight of a pet horse, coat brushed and shining beneath the best harness, being led to the stable by James or the visitor, the other following with a fine stable-rug on his arm. More impersonal are the conveyances that now come. Only a flash of a machine approaching, and then the silence of a motor stilled in the yard.

There came a pair of lads, kin to this old house, minds, as we could appreciate, taken up with a number of interests: the duties that fall to young shoulders, the studies of school they must pursue, the seasonal pastimes they enjoy.

And we like to think there is room too for fascinating young dreams. For what meaning, what point is there to life, if folks could not plan and shape their lives toward some ultimate goal?

A trio of ex-schoolma'ams were among this farm's guests, each different in make-up and interests. And all charming. One is a farmwife, deeply interested in the herds and flocks of entensive holdings. She is a busy matron yet finds time for community endeavours. She is a veteran and successful 4-H leader, an efficient president or secretary of this and that — truly a lady of parts.

One woman-visitor operates a village store, a day by day busy place. Yet she too gives hand and heart to her community endeavours, lending her encouragement and support to its every good work.

The third is the chatelaine of a sizable farm where potato-growing is accented. And it has been for years. She also, in an expanding venture, caters to summer-guests. She knows its trials and enjoys its thrills; likes the kindly folks it brings to her doors; laughs at the fussy ones, to herself naturally, and learns more and more about tourism as the summers come and go, wafting in on the tide, by way of this or that Ferry-boat, the annual guest or newcomer, these bring.

And our company included several of the sterner sex— all of that brotherhood which deals in agriculture, a term which has been deflned as "Something farmers do!"

Altogether most interesting to the family at Alderlea, were the folks who came by our yesterday's doors,

Until tomorrow — — Diary— Good-night.....

ST. MARKS W.A.

Mrs. David L. McInnis was hostess at her home in Kensington to the members of St. Mark's W.A. for the March meeting.

The president, Mrs. Elmer Moase presided and led the devotions.

Fifteen members and two visitors attended. Roll call was answered with the text word "Word".

The president reporzd that new material for Little Helpers had been ordered, and that Garnet Turner was preparing a map of the area in which the Homes of Anglicans may be marked in visiting zones. Mrs. Moase said that his kindness in offering to prepare the map was much appreciated. Mrs. McInnis reported that the Red Cross work is being done, and will be delivered to the convener, Mrs. Glover.

Mrs. Cecil Mill displayed articles for the bale which is almost complete. She also thanked the members for remembering her while she was ill. Mrs. Bruce Graham thanked the members for their kindness to her and her family, in their recent bereavement.

April 25 and 26 were announced as the dates for the Diocesan Annual meeting, and the president read a letter asking her or a member from the branch to reply to the address of welcome, and it was decided that the president or a delegate would respond. Nominations were made to fill the offices of those who have resigned from the Diocesan Board.

A letter regarding Lenten reading, from Mrs. Adele Hemming, was read. The president said the offering at the World Day of Prayer amounted to $22.-60, and the Girls meeting $4.40.

Mrs. McInnis accepted a request to act as handicraft instructor at the GA and JA camps which will be held at the same time, in August. She also told the members that a leadership course will be held in Summerside on Sunday, April 21, at 3 p.m.

Mrs. McInnis was in charge of the study book, and gave a good review of the fourth chapter "Understanding the other Philosophies of Life".

She presented facts that indicate that in the future the great intellectual struggle will be waged between the Christian Faith and the Scientific World view in the light of such a possibility, the church would be well advised to recognize and make use of that which is good in the "Scientific World" view also that a "house divided against itself cannot stand," therefore unity in Christendom can speak more effectively to the modern world.

Mrs. J.G. Townsnd read an interesting letter from the Rev. Mr. Coupland, a former rector in Kensington, who told of parish doings in his parish of Meaford, Ont.

The special March offering amounted to $15, regular offering $6.05.

The meeting closed with the Lord's Prayer and benediction. Mrs. McInnis was 'assisted at the tea hour by her daughter Ruby and Mrs. John Moase.
