Jr. Farmers Ready Float

SUMMERSIDE — At a meeting of East Prince Junior Farmers held Thursday night at the department of agriculture on Water Street, Summerside, plans were finalized for construction of the float sponsored by the group to be entered in the Summerside Lobster Carnival parade.

Urban Laughlin, a member of the unit, last night stated that the junior farmers had been working on the float for the past two days, and it is nearing completion. It will show agricultural products of the local area.

The farmers also plan to operate an ice cream stand in Civic Stadium during the carnival. A staff of about 30 has been engaged for this task.

Plans were made to attend the provincial junior farmers field day at the Experimental Farm in Charlottetown, July 28.

A picnic will be held July 21, at Locke Shore, Sherbrooke, by the Junior Farmers.

The meeting, well attended, was presided over by the president, Stafford Huestis.

Mayor Continues Hall Controversy

P.E.I. Tourist Association president, Gordon Shaw, said yesterday that the controversy over the use of Montgomery Hall as tourist accommodation should be allowed to die.

Mr. Shaw said that the use of the building as a tourist stop is obviously going to continue, and noted that tourist associations in other provinces are experiencing similar problems with institutions like Montgomery Hall being converted to summer tourist accommodations.

REPLIES TO PREMIER

Mayor A.W. Gaudet, secretary of the provincial tourist association, said that contrary to Premier Walter R. Shaw's statement that Montgomery Hall is only used occasionally as a tourist accommodation, the institution has been geared for use as a full-time summer tourist stop.

Mayor Gaudet said that if Montgomery Hall was to be used only to handle tourist overflow, or conventions too large to be housed elsewhere, the premier's statement would be correct. He said that he did not believe this to be the case, however.

He noted particularly an advertisement, in a tourist guide made available to tourists on the ferry boats and other places, that offers "quality accommodations and excellent meals moderately priced, to summer visitors during July and August only, at Montgomery Hall." The prices for two persons is $8 and for one person $5, the ad states.

Blanche Hogg Heads Field

Blanche Hogg of Summerside led the field in the first round of the P.E.I. ladies' golf championship at the Charlottetown Golf Course yesterday carding an 86, nine strokes better than her nearest rival, Ruth Horne, who shot a 95.

The final round of the tournament goes today with the low scorers going out first. The first golfers are slated to tee off at 10 o'clock.

Golfers wishing to know what time they are teeing off are asked to call the pro shop.

SPECIAL CRAFT

10 Girls Are Entered In 'Miss P.E.I.' Contest

SUMMERSIDE BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN

Four more contestants in the "Miss Prince Edward Island" contest were announced yesterday, bringing the total to 10, with other entries expected by Sunday night when entries to the competition close. The girls will meet for the first time at the Summerside Curling Club at 8 p.m.

The four newly announced contestants are Miss Barbara Jenkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jenkins of Summerside, who will be representing the Summerside Rotary Club; Miss Gail Elizabeth McKenna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo McKenna of Summerside, who will be representing the Summerside Kinsmen Club; and Miss Jane Beeching, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Beeching, of Slemon Park, who will be representing the Summerside Y's Men's Club; and Miss Joan Ann Heffell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Heffell of Summerside, who will be representing the electric light department of the Town of Summerside.

Other contestants previously announced are Miss Florence Kennedy, of Breadalbane; Miss Katherine Mills, of St. Eleanors; Miss Betty Jean Callaghan, of Summerside; Miss Beryl MacInnis of Summerside; Miss Barbara Compton of St. Eleanors; and Miss Carol Ann Power of Souris.

Neil Sharpe, chairman of the committee, said last evening that other contestants have been indicated from various communities on the Island, and that all of the contestants will meet Sunday night at the Summerside Curling Club on Notre Dame Street, next to the Canadian Legion Home, at 8 p. m.

MUSICAL

the entire show and the gathering of the clans at the Highland Games in 1939 is one of the musical highlights. The RCMP, also is well represented, with "Marching Song."

"It's a clean, wholesome, light comedy," Mr. Trainor says. "There is no sex at all."

While on the Island Mr. Trainor has been staying at the home of his uncle, Martin Jackman of Village Green. His mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. James Walter Trainor, are both native Islanders. His mother is a sister of Mr. Jackman. He is a cousin of one of the Island's best known hockey players, Wes (Bucko) Trainor, who performed for New York Rangers some years ago.

This is Mr. Trainor's first attempt at a full length musical comedy. He has had much success as an author of short stories and one-act plays.

A graduate of American International College at Springfield, Mass., Mr. Trainor is a member of the American National Theatre Academy and Western Massachusetts Writers, Guild.

U.S. Davis Cuppers Grab 2-0 Lead Over Canadians

CLEVELAND (AP) — The United States shot into a 2 - 0 lead in the first round of the American zone Davis Cup tennis competition Friday as Chuck McKinley and Jon Douglas won four - set singles matches over Canada's Francois Godbout and Don Fontana. McKinley beat Godbout 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 8-6 then Douglas defeated Fontana 6-4, 6-2, 5-7, 6-4.

If the United State's doubles combination of McKinley and Dennis Ralston can whip Godbout and Fontana in today's match, the U.S. team will have won the right to meet Mexico at Mexico City Aug. 4-6 in the next round of play and Sunday's final two singles matches would not affect the outcome.

Fontana, 31-year-old captain of the Canadian team and playing in his seventh Davis Cup competition, said:

"We played the best we could, and we'll give it another try tomorrow."

Capt. Bob Kelleher of the U.S. squad said after the second singles match:

"It's nice to be where we are now."

McKinley, 21 - year - old No. 2 U.S. player from St. Ann, Mo., had too many guns for Godbout, 24, a University of Montreal law student from Waterloo, Que. But for a time, McKinley had trouble mastering the southpaw attack of Canada's No. 2-ranked player.

Fontana, from Toronto, like Godbout was able to wrest only one set from his opponent. Douglas is the fourth-ranked U.S. player.

The clay courts at the Cleveland Skating Club were in top condition for the matches, played under sunny skies with the temperature in the mid-70s.

SERVICE BETTER

Godbout and McKinley battled from the start, but McKinley's service was better than that of the Canadian in the first set.

McKinley broke Godbout's service in the third game of the set, going ahead 3-1 when the Canadian double faulted. However, the southpaw stormed back to break McKinley's service in the fourth game and even it 3-3.

The American moved to a 4-3 lead but Godbout narrowed that to 4-3 on his service in a hard-fought deuce game. McKinley took the next, showing fine service form as Godbout returned only one serve.

The Canadian got his serve working in the next game, slamming in some hard aces, but went down to defeat on McKinley's service in the 10th game.

Godbout moved to a 3-0 lead in the second set and was never headed. He still was having some trouble with his service and double faulted on one set point, but wrapped up the set 6-3.

The American settled down in the third set, a tussle that brought some fine rallies.

Godbout had his forehand and backhand passing shots working well in the early games and scored many points with these shots as the two battled to a 3-3 deadlock. But McKinley played deadly tennis to sweep the next three games and the set. He won the final game at love on his own service.

McKinley's booming service continued through the last set, which he won 6-4. Godbout continued to have trouble with foot faults and double faults.

LUCKY TO WIN

"I was lucky to win," McKinley commented as he left the court. "It was a good match, and the only difference were a few points here and there."

"Godbout played very well," Kelleher said. "His low volleys were beautiful in that second set." The U.S. captain said the Canadian made two lapses in serving during the third set and pointed to that as being decisive.

"I had no strength in my left leg to hit my backhand as well as I would have liked," Godbout said. "I didn't fire at all—just made some bad mistakes. But I enjoyed the match, and McKinley is a wonderful player."

The second singles match was in sharp contrast to the first. Both players were content to stay back and exchange long rallies. But Douglas was sharper and faster than his older opponent.

"I tried to make a match out of it," Fontana said. "I had no consistency, and Douglas kept pressing me." I felt I could win that fourth set, but that double fault call didn't help me one bit."

Both teams played without their country's No. 1 ranked players. Whitney Reed of the United States was on the squad, but Kelleher passed over him because he hasn't been playing well. Bob Bedard of Sherbrooke, Que., Canada's top player, didn't join the team because he is teaching school.
