Down with Tarte and Tartarism.

"The record of our party while it has been in power under its present leaders is one long, shameful story of promises unfulfilled and broken; of reckless extravagance; of jobbery and corruption; and of utterly disgraceful betrayal of every principle for which as a party we stood. For the purpose of securing themselves in office the men who have been entrusted with positions of leadership have brought disgrace upon our party and dishonour upon the name of Liberalism."—H. H. Cook.

THE DAILY EXAMINER

OCTOBER 24, 1900

TARTE AND HIS SONS IN LAW.

THE Patriot comes out with the latest in campaign tactics in its clap-net report of an incident which occurred at the York meeting.

It seems that Mr. Martin was describing a notorious transaction of Mr. Tarte in the Montreal harbor dredging wherein he gave his own son-in-law, without calling for tenders, $10 per hour for working each dredge. The son-in-law in turn sub-let the contract for $3 per hour, thus earning, with his hands in his pockets, about $20 per day on each dredge,—on three of them at least $60 per day.

When the item came up in supply, the Opposition asked Mr. Tarte who the Government contractor was. But the Minister was profoundly ignorant of his name. Then Mr. Tarte was pelted with questions from all sides:—"Is he an engineer?" "Is he a merchant?" "Is he a shoemaker?" etc. But to all came the answer, "I don't know,"—till a member on the back benches, well versed in family history, asked, "Is he your son-in-law?" Then the coon came down, and the answer came, "Yes,—but I don't see any reason why a man with daughters should not have sons-in-law."

Are we, then, to infer that, in the improbable, calamitous, event of Mr. Tarte retaining the portfolio of public works, the spending power of the department must increase in proportion to the number of his daughters entering the matrimonial state? No doubt the youthful reporter fondly hopes ere long to hold dalliance with some younger scion of that noble blood and even now glazes over the good fat sums he would, in like manner, wring from the electors of Canada. Nay, perhaps he feels the gnawing pangs of jealousy when he thinks how natural the beautiful French accent comes to Mr. Martin and how awkwardly he would repeat "Je t'aime, oh la plus jolie fille de Monsieur Tarte."

We notice that the reporter refers to the man who called him down as Mr. Gallant. Now, Mr. McKinnon, himself, was the first and only man to attempt to call Mr. Martin down; and we therefore infer that he would make his friends believe Gallant to be the translation of McKinnon. What strange ties of kinship would they not resort to catch votes.

No doubt Mr. McKinnon would like to pose here as the P. E. Island Tarte. But we very much fear that, even if he were returned, he would have the smallest chance of redeeming half of the profuse and ridiculous promises he is now scattering broadcast through the Riding. Let him beware of the fate which was in store for the Hon. Fred Peters had he again appealed to the Fort Augustus district. The sword of vengeance will certainly be wielded on an imitator of such antics.

RETURN OF THE TROOPS.

We have private advices from South Africa concerning the sort of a reception that would be pleasing to the men of P. E. Island. Our correspondent writes from Klip River, on the 17th of September. We quote:

"On behalf of the majority of the Island boys now in Africa I beg leave to offer a few suggestions in regard to our home coming. The boys are not in favour of any great ceremony but would be much better pleased with a short and hearty welcome. The members of our party who reside out of town would prefer spending the first few days of their return with their friends to taking part in parades or attending receptions and banquets. The town boys also feel the same way.

"As you may possibly be aware, we have suffered much in this country and there is scarcely one who will not need a rest and possibly treatment from medical men. The water out here is bad, and our teeth are in a bad state of repair. Many will be unable to go to work at once and the task of providing for themselves and their dependents on them may prove a hard one. Scarcely any of the boys can furnish enough ready money to buy new outfits of clothing—which will be required in almost every case—and pay the numerous other expenses incidental to their return. So for these as well as other reasons we have decided to ask that no great reception be given us, but that if the people of Prince Edward Island wish to show that they really appreciate what little we have done out here let them make up a purse to be handed among the men and their action will be more warmly appreciated than if we were given a banquet every night. I must not forget that we are to receive a small amount from the Dominion Government—but it will not be sufficient for even our most pressing needs and as you know it is but a trifle in comparison with the amount given by other colonies to their contingents."

These suggestions from one of the boys—one who is not himself in need of financial assistance, but who speaks for his fellows—will, we have no doubt, be favorably considered by those who have the matter of the "Welcome Home" in hand and by the public at large.

SOLOMON SLOW'S ADVICE.

What I Would Do or Have Done Were I Boss.

I would stop officials of the P. E. I. Railway from writing editorials to the Patriot or any other paper.

I would have the School Trustees allow the pupils to use the school closets unless they are built for ornamental.

I would like to know from the Guardian if it is on account of the election that he is silent on the liquor question, and if he does not know that the saloons are open until midnight and later.

I would keep John C. McKenzie in the Registry office to do his work, if he has any to do, instead of chasing round the country to do political canvassing.

I would also get Norman Campbell the Liquor License Inspector at work, if there is anything to do. But I forget he draws his salary; so does J. C. McKenzie in the Registry office.

I would like to know how many hours per week John C. McKenzie has worked in his office for the last three weeks, and how many he expects to work from now to election day.

I would keep government officials, both Dominion and Provincial, from making a political canvass in town and country, during office hours at least.

I would stop the disgrace of Government officials going up and down, to and fro in both country and town doing personal canvasses, and give them work in their respective offices, if there is work to do; otherwise dismiss them and save the country their salaries. At present it looks as if they had nothing to do (many of them) only draw their salaries.

I would suggest that Eric Paul Pry continue in his good work. Don't stop it, brother.

I would like brother Jonathan, of Summerside, to continue his good work.

SOLOMON SLOW.

—In cutting down Great George Street sidewalk and leaving the new Brighton Bridge unfinished, are not the civic authorities doing that which they ought not to do and leaving undone that which they ought to do?

—It is evident that "Honest John Charlton" does not believe with Mr. Fielding and the rest of his party, that it is impossible for Canada to obtain any trade concession from Great Britain. His idea is exactly like that of S. R. Charles Tupper and all really patriotic Canadians: "Let us Try."

A Race..

Is a friendly contest between ladies and culture and refinement in the matter of style in dress, and head-dress particularly. The productions of our milliner take first place. The hats she and her assistants create are marvels of beauty and a joy while you wear them.

We Raced

All over North America, England and France to pick up the latest modes in Millinery, and as we look over our stock we must say "we did it." Thousands of dollars' worth of stylish millinery is at the command of our milliner, when you ask her what looks nicest.

No wonder

She can make you look so much prettier. She has the taste, she has the goods, and you have the face. Now let's get them together and see the result. If you wish to create your own hat, then we have lots of trimming, and it's priced right, too. Our Felt Sailors are all the rage this fall, and we don't wonder at the rage, because they are truly beautiful, and the prices—50c, 75c, $1, $1.25, $1.50, $2—is not too high at all. We sell stylish Millinery at what it should cost.
