

On the 14th October, as we understand the intelligence received at the Indian Board, these combined mutineers, or a considerable portion of them, appeared before Agra and attacked it. Not only, therefore, were they repulsed with great loss, but they were pursued, routed and dispersed. The chase was continued until the enemy had been driven across the Kharee with the loss of 1000 killed, all their guns, all their baggage, and all their plunder; five lacs of rupees, the spoil of British treasuries, were captured at the same time; and this brilliant achievement was performed with very small loss. At the latest dates Col. Greathed had crossed the Jumna, and was on his way to Lucknow, where it was expected that he would arrive on the 30th of October. Successes so striking as these, added to the certainty that no reasonable alarm need now be felt for our brave countrymen at Lucknow, leave little room for any slight despondency or gloom which may gather over the reader's mind as he reads other portions of this intelligence. Thus we can afford to hear with equanimity that "Maun Singh, heretofore our friend, has turned against us since the storming of Delhi was announced." Perhaps Maun Singh is a Hindoo "trimmer" who always sides with the weaker party. If so, we hope he may speedily come to a better frame of mind. So, too, we are not overwhelmed with the news that part of a Bombay regiment has mutinied at Deesa, on the extreme west of the Bombay Presidency, for these partial outbreaks may be expected in a force which is largely recruited from Upper India, and has, no doubt, been sorely tempted by emissaries from the mutineers. So also we may hope that Bajm Singh—whoever he may be—and "most of the large Talookdars" who have turned against us in Central India, will speedily find that their true interest would have prompted them to be with rather than against a Power which will soon be more than ever in the ascendant. On each and all of these minor outbreaks and petty rebellions speedy retribution is sure to follow. The intelligence that the Punjab is not so well affected as it might be, though unpleasant, is now comparatively of small importance. The Punjab and its gallant native regiments have served our turn. They have enabled us to capture Delhi and turn the tide of disaffection, and, now that a full stream of British bayonets is flowing into British India, any attempts at disorder beyond the Sutlej will be put down with British steel by the same stern hand which regained Delhi and preserved the Punjab by native levies. The only real source of anxiety which we can discover in the advices by this arrival is the fact that a large number of our countrymen and countrywomen are shut up in the fort at Saugor. Unless relief is speedily afforded to those who have sought refuge within its walls—above a thousand in number—fears are entertained lest our feelings should be shocked by a repetition of the savage atrocities committed at Cawnpore; but we trust that the energetic measures taken to send troops up the country will avail to rescue those whose condition excites so much alarm from their perilous position. When we add that a commission has been issued for the trial of the King of Delhi, whose life does not appear to have been unconditionally spared, that two more of his sons were to be shot, that the fall of Delhi had had a wonderful effect in making defaulters to the revenue pay up their arrears, that loyalty was the order of the day in the North-Western Provinces, and that "all was quiet in Scinde, Bombay, Madras and the Nizam's dominions," we do not know that any expressions of our own case add to the deep satisfaction and relief with which this Indian intelligence must be received by the country at large.

MECHANICS' INSTITUTE SOIREE.—This entertainment came off on Tuesday evening last with great éclat. All who attended pronounced it to be the best that had yet been held under the auspices of the Institute. An excellent Tea was served to a very large number of persons, sitting around the different tables—at each of which a lady gracefully presided, and kindly pressed her guests to partake once more of the cup that cheers but not inebriates. The superior band of Captain Lobban discoursing perfect melody in the meantime. About half-past seven o'clock the tables were all cleared away, and His Hon. the President took the chair, supported on the right by His Worship the Mayor of the City, and on the left by the first Vice Patron. The President having read a note from His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, the Patron of the Institute, apologising for his absence on account of indisposition, and expressing the interest he felt in the success of the Institute, then delivered an address appropriate to the occasion. The Hon. Col. Swaby then gave an address upon the all absorbing subject of India, and was highly complimented for the luminous and comprehensive manner in which he had brought this interesting country before his audience. John Kenny, Esq., then spoke upon the arts and sciences with his usual ability; and William Monk, Esq., addressed the meeting upon general literature, and the organization of Mechanics' Institutes for the diffusion thereof, and acquitted himself most creditably. Between each address the band played some favorite air. The hour of separation having nearly arrived, the following resolutions were severally put and carried by acclamation:—

"Resolved, That the thanks of this meeting are due and are hereby awarded to those Ladies who have so kindly and so gracefully presided at the several tables of this Soiree."

"Resolved, That the thanks of the Institute are due to Captain Lobban and the members of his Band, for discoursing such sweet music during this Soiree."

The Band then played "God save the Queen." Three cheers having been given for the Queen, three for His Excellency the Lieut. Governor, three for India, three for the Mayor and the City, and last, though not least, three cheers for the Ladies:

The Institute then adjourned until Tuesday the 29th instant, when the Officers-bearers for the current year will be appointed and some important business transacted, at which a full attendance of the members is desirable.—People's Journal.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE EXAMINER.

Sir,—The teachers in this portion of the community having witnessed with extreme pleasure the notices of the organization of several associations in different parts of the Island, have resolved with a determined and unanimous voice to construct a similar association here—assured that when such a grand and praiseworthy object is set on foot, success must certainly crown their efforts; and deeply impressed with the certain hope that its beneficial tendencies shall not only be confined to the teachers alone in aiding them to discharge the arduous duties devolving upon them, but largely extending its influences to the pupils entrusted to their care in cultivating the field of intellectuality. Consequently, sir, as we have agreed to organise a similar institution, for which purpose we intend to meet together on Monday, the 4th day of January, 1858, at 4½ o'clock, p. m., at the Vernon River school house, (Mr. Egan's). We sincerely trust that the friends of education, particularly the teachers of this locality, will endeavor to attend, and heartily co-operate to promote and assist in establishing such a laudable institution, the main object of which is, the cultivating of our intellectual faculties—the promotion of all well-regulated systems adopted for the welfare of the present and rising generations, and the universal and accelerating spread of knowledge.

By giving insertion to the foregoing you would confer a favor on, yours, &c.

J. H. FLETCHER, Acting Secretary.

Alberly Plains, Dec. 18, 1857.

P. S.—Should Monday prove two disagreeable to attend, we shall meet on the following Wednesday, at the same hour. The different papers would oblige by copying.
