The bidding:
West North East South
1♥ Pass 2♦ 2♠
4♥ Pass 4♠
5♥ Pass Pass 5♠
Dble

Opening lead — four of clubs. There's lots of meat in this hand. First can be noted the leisurely sequence of bids made by South to buy the hand, which, with a different division of the East-West cards, might have bought the contract one level sooner.

Next we have the fine defensive play made by West which succeeded in defeating the five spade doubled contract.

After winning the singleton club lead with the ace, declarer led the nine of spades. West promptly stepped up with the ace and led back a low heart. Dummy's eight was topped by East's nine, and that worthy, to his surprise, found himself on lead.

It wasn't difficult for East to figure out his partner wanted a club ruff, so East returned a club. West trumped and the contract was defeated one trick.

Finally, we have to note that South should have made the hand. The opening lead was clearly marked as a singleton—no other club holding could justify the lead of the four of clubs—and some thought should have been given to a method of play to prevent the imminent ruff from taking place.

If East was put into the lead, and the most likely suit where East could obtain the lead was hearts, this entry was one that had to be cut off.

Declarer, therefore, should have taken the club lead in dummy with the king, and then played the king of diamonds from dummy, discarding the deuce of hearts.

This play would have effectively spiked the defense. West would win the ace of diamonds, and later the ace of trump, but no more.

The method of play suggested might not have succeeded if East had either the ace of diamonds or ace of spades, but nothing whatever would then have been lost by the attempt.

The point is that declarer cannot afford to sit idly by as the opponents pass the ball back and forth. Interception is clearly in order.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L E A A X R
is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
