YACHT CLUB HOLD MEETING—The Summerside Yacht Club met this week to plan the season's activities. Commodore Campbell presided and called the meeting to order. Arrangements were made for the summer sailings, and plans were discussed for a clam-bake on July 1st and the annual dance on the 15th. It was pleasing to note there were several new members present, who were quite enthusiastic. S

DANCE WELL ATTENDED—The dance at Travellers Rest, put on for the benefit of Gordon MacInnis, was a very great success. The people turning out in large numbers to attend. Mr. MacInnis was an eye while assisting at the dance at Travellers Rest, last Friday which burned the fine residence of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander MacInnis and their barn, as well as the barn of Mrs. MacDonald. Mr. MacInnis has returned to his home from the Prince County Hospital. S

ALBERTON COUNTY COURT—The June term of the County Court was held at Alberton on Tuesday, June 9th. The only judgment was given in the case of Alvin Rayner vs. Frank Kinch and Roy Kinch of Alma. This was a writ of habeas corpus for the wife of the plaintiff to depart and remain absent from the house of the plaintiff and her husband, and for harbouring and detaining her. The defendant was the parents of the child. The Judge held that the wife from her own evidence stated that she had elected to live apart from her husband and that the evidence did not disclose active inducement on the part of the defendants, and no judgment for the defendants was accordingly. Wilfrid Tanton for the plaintiff and Heath Strong, K. C., for the defendant. The only other contested case on the docket was settled. The Court meets at Summerside on the 20th.

Y'S MEN'S MEETING—The closing meeting of the Summerside Y's Men was held on Thursday evening at the Presbyterian Hall. Mr. Davis Lidstone occupied the chair. There were about thirty present. The guest speaker was Mr. Allan Hopper, former Principal of the Sackville High School, who gave an excellent talk on manual training in the schools. He gave some practical suggestions and probable costs. It was decided to hold the Club dance about June 21st. The club approved of the suggestion that the candidate to represent Summerside at the Confederation carnival would be selected at the dance. Dr. John Jardine who is visiting in Summerside was in attendance. S

There will be heavy police patrols also in Central Park where 1,000 children—three times the number of those who greeted the King and Queen on the Plains of Abraham at Quebec little more than three weeks ago—will wave British and American flags at the King and Queen.

And there will be even heavier patrols along the East River leading to the World's Fair where King and Queen today. The only other contest case on the docket was settled. The Court meets at Summerside on the 20th.

RECEPTION AT CAPITAL
With the shrieking sirens of a motorcycle escort clearing the way, the party made a fast trip to the Capital. At the foot of the steps a reception committee, headed by Chairman Key Pittman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, a Nevada Democrat, and Acting Chairman of the House (New York) of the House of Representatives Foreign Affairs Committee awaiting them. Stiffly attired in formal day wear, the group had been standing under the broiling sun, occasionally removing a sleek black topper to wipe a perspiring brow.

Among them, Representative Joseph Martin of Massachusetts, a Republican floor leader, attracted some attention, for, unlike his colleagues, who all wore high silk hats, he turned up in a derby, and one that came rather more down over the ears than up on the head.

"Why don't you get a hat?" Someone in the nearby crowd shouted. Martin good-naturedly waved his hand.

The hundreds outside set up a din of applause as the Royal Party swept up to the Capitol. The King alighted first, to be escorted into the Capitol by Pittman, while the Queen followed, with Bloomfield, the House membership was worked at one side and the Senate at the other.

Vice-President John N. Garner presented the senators, beginning with their dean, William Borah of Idaho who had, after expressing doubts that it could be located, found his outway. One after another, the senators filed past, bowing deeply and saying: "Your Majesty." Similarly, Speaker Bankhead introduced the House members.

Bothered By Lights
The Queen had a smile for each, and a word for several, especially the women members. The King frowned uneasily under the glare of Klieg lights installed for the motion picture men. Finally, he asked that they be extinguished.

Among the first House members to be presented were Representative Joseph Mansfield of Texas, who for years has made his way about the capital in a wheel chair, and Representative William Miller of Connecticut, who flew in the Royal Air Force in the Great War and lost both legs when his plane crashed. The King leaned over and shook hands with each and both he and the Queen engaged them in a brief conversation.

Representative Nat (Cousin) Patton of Texas, so-called because he greets all and sundry about the capital with the exclamation, "Hello, Cousin!" Similarly, Speaker Bankhead introduced the House members.

"Cousin George, I bring you greetings from the far-flung regions of the Empire State of Texas, the only state that never fought the English."

"Cousin Elizabeth, you're a thousand times prettier than your pictures. You're nearly as pretty as the blue-bonnet girls of Texas."

"Thank you sir," he quoted the Queen as saying.

Representative Robert Mouton of Louisiana, who is of French descent, addressed the King in French and kissed the Queen's hand. Representative George Gilffe of Indiana said he told the Queen he was born in Greenlaw, Scotland. She replied that she had been there and once had lived not far away.

A checkup shows that of the 71 senators who met the King and tish gestures towards Germany were described by sources close to the London Government as not meaning a return to a policy of appeasement.

Mr. Chamberlain in a speech declared he was searching out the cause or war in an effort to overcome them but that at the same time was strengthening Britain's armed might to protect her "vital interests."

Missionary Society Holds Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Missionary Society of the United Baptist Church at Summerside was held in the Church Hall on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Jack MacLeod, the president, occupied the chair. Guests were present from Bedeque, Preetown, Tryon, Wilnot and Belmont, Lot 16.

The meeting opened with a devotional period and the usual business, after which the election of officers took place. All the officers were re-elected and were:

President, Mrs. Jack MacLeod; vice-president, Mrs. John F. MacNeill; secretary, Mrs. O. J. Kelly; treasurer, Mrs. John Smallman; pianist, Mrs. O. C. MacNeill.

Mrs. Jack MacLeod gave a splendid address on the subject for the meetings: "Go your way into all the world and preach the Gospel." Mrs. MacLeod stressed the importance of foreign missions and pointed out that if we are to be true followers of Christ we should give most heartily to further the work of the missionaries.

Those taking part in the program were Mrs. Bert Tyler who gave a reading from Edgar Guest; Mrs. Colin Stewart, who sang a solo. Four ladies read papers on the lives of modern missionaries: Mrs. Everett Phillips on Dr. Stanley Jones; Mrs. J. B. Wilson on Dr. Grenfell; Mrs. Joan MacNeill, on Albert Schweitzer, an African missionary; and Mrs. C. B. Jelly, on Kagawa, a Japanese missionary.

A short prayer service followed with Mrs. John Crockett giving the concluding prayer. Hymns sung were: "Oh God Our Help in Ages Past"; "Take My Life"; and "Oh Master Let Me Walk With Thee". At the conclusion of the meeting, afternoon tea was served by the ladies of the tea committee.

King & Queen

the complete informality of their readings to people has won American hearts as nothing else could.

"Why, the royal couple exclaimed one amazed Senator at today's legislative reception. "I never would have believed it."

Climax of today's program was the visit of Their Majesties to Washington's tomb at Mount Vernon.

Symbolizes Friendship
The laying of a wreath by the King and Queen on the tomb of a man who led a revolution against one of his predecessors symbolized the peaceful ties of friendship between the United States and Britain.

Only a handful of people were able to witness the historic ceremony. The wreath bore a card which read: "From George R.I. and Elizabeth R."

In the sunlit tree-studded Embassy this morning, about 1,000 British subjects gathered for the King and Queen to honor Their Majesties.

On their arrival from the White House, where they passed the night, the King and Queen found several hundred of their subjects formed in a hollow square, surrounding 250 former soldiers.

Queen Elizabeth waited on the terrace with the House membership while the King and his attendants moved slowly along a double line of the veterans, shaking the hand of each and stopping to talk to about every fifth man.

Makes Appearance
The Queen was not expected to walk through the garden but when she showed up in "We Want The Queen," Her Majesty graciously strolled around the lawn with the King so all could get a close look at her.

It was at this point she met little Miss Kinloch. While about the guests at the reception were Canadians, there were British subjects from many parts of the Empire.

Particularly striking in a long flowing robe and hat was John Karofa of Sierra Leone, Africa, grandson of a chief of the Sherbro Tribe there. He explained that his native attire was worn only for special occasions and that the British Government is aiding him to complete a medical course at Ohio State University.

Her Majesty also conversed with Bandmaster Leonard Bagley of the British Cruiser Exeter, who told her he had not been home for 1-2 years and admitted he was homesick.

The reception ended with the playing of "God Save The King," and the crowd breaking into spontaneous cheers.

Wilson Wins Hurling Duel With McCallum
The Pioneers scored three runs in the 7th inning at Summerside last night to break up a pitchers' battle between Jim Wilson and "Boo" McCallum and defeat the visiting Kensington squad 6-3 at the school diamond. At this stage deadlocked at 2 runs apiece. A walk to Jim Millman and successive singles by Downing and Hunter provided the winning tallies.

The opposing pitchers, both right hand speedball artists, Wilson for the Pioneers and McCallum for Kensington, went the full route and pitched sparkling ball. Wilson allowed six singles and struck out 11. McCallum struck out 16, walked one but was nicked for 10 hits including two triples and one double. Wilson aided his own cause with a triple in the 8th and a timely single in the 4th.

Crossman starred for the winners when he boomed out a triple in the 4th to drive in the tying runs. Downing and Hunter hit 2 for 4 for the Pioneers and McCallum and Webster got two apiece for Kensington.

The next game is slated for Monday between the Red Sox and Vitamannas.
