

Lounge Lizards

By Kathy Griebrecht and Aldera Chisholm

ALL LOUNGES ARE NOT CREATED EQUAL. With this in mind we'd like to take you on a tour of the department lounges. This week we tour Main Building.

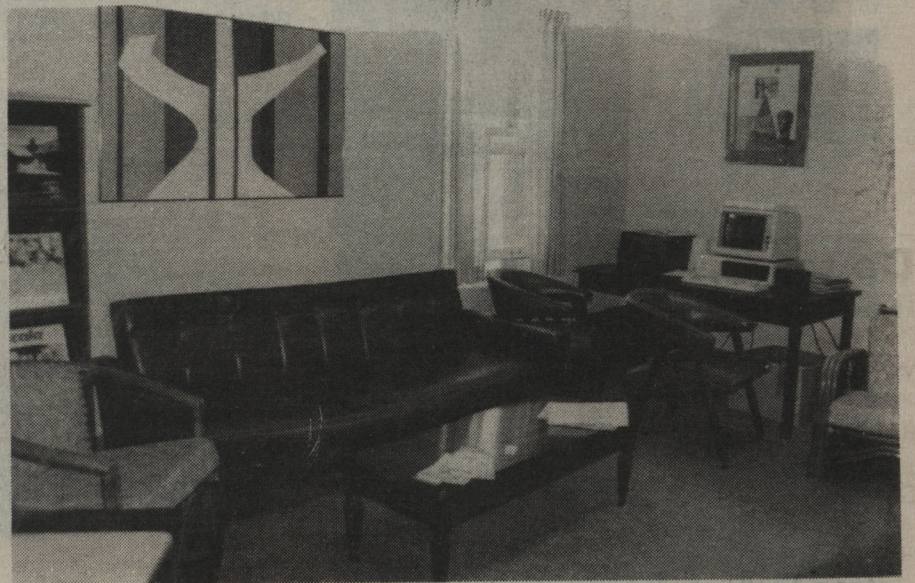

The History, Classics and Canadian Studies lounge shows that if you want style, ask the profs to donate antique furniture— but what the hell is that machine in the corner?

We weren't even sure we were allowed to enter the faculty lounge, let alone sit on the furniture. This place is truly swank, it even has a piano and a dishwasher.

The English and Fine Arts lounge is the first lounge we came across without a microwave, but does supply you with a friend 24 hours a day.

Found in a small dark corner, the Modern Languages lounge looks like no one has found it since the seventies.

Despite the dead heads, we really liked the Sociology, Anthropology and Religious Studies lounge. Kathy says the furniture is "just like home, and they even supply you with a clean table cloth!"

This is all that remains of the now defunct Philosophy lounge and is hidden in the bowels of the X-Press office.
