The following greetings from His Honour Lieutenant Governor Prowse have been received for publication in today's Centennial issue:

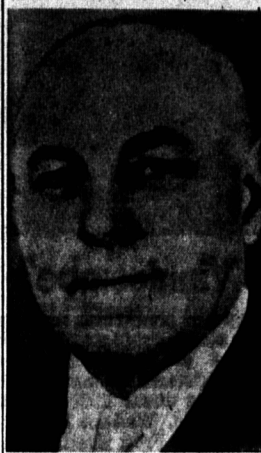

"May I on behalf of the people of Prince Edward Island extend to the citizens of this historic City heartiest congratulations and best wishes on the occasion of Charlottetown's 100th Anniversary.

"The founders of this beautiful City in their wisdom builded better than they knew, and who are reaping the benefits of their sagacity, initiative and careful planning have much for which to be grateful in our lovely Provincial Capital. It is therefore fitting that we pause for a short moment in history to honour the memories and deeds of our pioneer forefathers at the 100th milestone in Charlottetown's history as an incorporated City.

"Succeeding generations of energetic citizens have contributed much to the growth of Charlottetown until today it is a modern, progressive city in every sense of the word—and one of the most beautiful and gracious capital cities in the Dominion.

"His Worship Mayor Stewart

and the City Council together with the Centennial Committee, have left no stone unturned in their efforts to plan entertainment befitting the momentous occasion of the City's Centennial year, and the anticipated celebrations this summer should be Continued on page 29, Col. 1

Charlottetown Moving Confidently Forward Into Its Second Century

By Lt. Col. J. D. Stewart, D.S.O., Mayor of Charlottetown

It is fitting at this time, when so much has been said about the founding of Charlottetown, the incorporation, and the events of the last one hundred years dealing with its progress, that we record something of Charlottetown as it is today, in the year 1955, so that one may at some future date look back on Charlottetown as it stood at the 100th. There is no doubt that Charlottetown is both a modern city and a city of memories. It was not incorporated as a city until 1855; but its memories go back beyond 1765, when it was designated by Captain Samuel Holland as the capital of St. John's Island, to 1720, when Denis De La Ronde and Sieur de Gotteville chose the south-western side of its harbour as the site of "Fort La Jole," administrative centre of the island during the French regime, and the scene of many a stirring incident.

Charlottetown is situated on one of the finest harbours in Canada capable of receiving ships of heavy burden into a sheltered basin formed by the junction of the north and west rivers with Hillsboro River.

Lt. Col. J. D. Stewart, Mayor of Charlottetown

The tradition of the past is strong in Charlottetown. To many of its citizens the desire is strong to link the past with the present, and consequently, in this our centennial year, significant events of the past are being recalled by means of lectures, pageants, etc., thus paying tribute to those whose hopes have far exceeded their fondest expectations, when they first ventured into the isolated town on the edge of a remote island.

Attlee Hints At Retirement

DURHAM, England (AP)—Labor party leader Clement Attlee set the politicians talking Saturday night with what could be a hint he is thinking of retirement.

$75,000 Damage In O'Leary Fire

—Fire which raged out of control for an hour in the basement of the O'Leary Co-operative Store Saturday evening destroyed practically the entire stock in both the basement and main floor with a total damage estimated at $75,000.

The fire was believed to have originated from an automatic oil heater and was first noticed by Raeford McLea, whose efforts to put out the flames with a fire extinguisher proved fruitless. Within seconds all employees and customers on the main floor were forced out of the building by the intense heat and black oily smoke rolling up from the basement.

The O'Leary Fire Brigade was called on the scene, followed a short time later by the Alberton Fire Brigade. Thousands of gallons of water was poured through cellar windows finally extinguishing the oil-fed blaze.

Although the fire did not actually spread to the main floor the intense heat of the gaseous vapour and oily smoke from the burning oil and stock in the basement cracked the plate glass windows in the front of the store and caused the loss of almost all shelf stock and groceries. Mr. Bernard Shea, manager of the store, gave great praise to members of both fire departments for their efforts which resulted in saving the store from a complete loss. The modern two-story building was opened in Feb., 1953, and is one of the most modern on the island with up to date fixtures and equipment. All losses are covered by insurance.

Until repairs are affected and stock replaced business will be carried on in the Co-op's former store on main street.

The building itself was of fire proof construction.

Probe Triple Ontario Deaths

TIMAGAMI (CP)—An inquest to determine if the deaths of three people here was a "double murder and suicide or a triple murder," has been ordered. It was first thought the two women and a man died of asphyxiation in a fire in their home.

The inquest was ordered by coroner Dr. I. Joyal at North Bay, who said Saturday an autopsy revealed that both women died of suffocation, but also suffered fractured skulls.

He said the man, Allen W. Doughty, 47, had a deep stab wound in the neck, but it was not known if he died of suffocation or because of the stab wound.

Dr. Joyal said the presence of "black soot" in their lungs indicated they were breathing some time after fire broke out, and yet they had made no attempt to get out.

The women were Doughty's wife, Muriel, 39, and her mother, Mrs. George Barker, 75.

The scantily-clad bodies of the trio were found in the frame home after clouds of oily smoke were seen pouring from it Friday morning.

NEW DELHI, (AP)—A bride and her four attendants died from heat stroke shortly after a wedding at Benares, India, reports reaching here Saturday said.

Following the ceremony, in a heat wave with the temperatures above 115 degrees, the bride was carried to her husband's home in a close palanquin—a type of litter—by the attendants.

The bridegroom, following tradition, accompanied the group on horseback.

During the journey, the reports said, the four bearers died of sunstroke.

The bridegroom opened the palanquin to give his bride a drink only to find she was dead.

Island Capital Remains Close To Its Nurturing Rural Roots

The following Centennial message has been received for today's issue from the Hon. A. W. Matheson, Premier of Prince Edward Island:

"It is not the years alone that make a place historic. Rather, it is the people of a nation or city who lend it its color and give it a place in history.

"This year's centennial celebrations in Charlottetown are posterity's tributes to the pioneers who cleared the woods and established their homes on the spot where now stands our capital city. Inspired by the deeds of those hardy settlers, their descendants built a proud and happy community on Canadian soil.

"In the census books, Charlottetown is not listed as one of the more populous cities. But it does have the distinction of being one of the ten provincial capitals. And most important of all it has gone down in history as the Cradle of Confederation.

"A most important date in Canadian history is the year 1864 when the first meeting to discuss Confederation was held in Charlottetown.

"Nine years before that meeting, in 1855, Charlottetown became an incorporated city. The centennial of that important event is being observed this year.

"By observing this milestone and renewing ties with the past, the people of Charlottetown are not necessarily daydreaming. They are only tapping old sources of strength for new undertakings ahead. As it rolls into its second century of existence, the city of Charlottetown faces a confident future.

"Perhaps no other city in Canada is as close to the rural roots that nurtured its early growth as is Charlottetown. Its growth will continue to come from the prosperity of the rich farmlands and abundant sea waters that surround it on all sides. And new opportunities are opening up for these primary producers, these farmers and fishermen who have made Prince Edward Island known the world over as 'Canada's Garden Province'. The advances of these rural citizens will be reflected in any future expansion of the Province's capital city.

"It is only fitting that a great anniversary such as Charlottetown is having this year should be celebrated with pomp and pageantry. Continued on page 26, Col. 3

Saint John Man Has Odd $1 Bill

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—R. E. Isaacs has a $1 bill with the ordinary green coloring on one side but the yellow-green of a $20 bill on the other. It's the second reported case of its kind in Canada.

The first case, also involving a $1 bill with the wrong coloring on the side bearing the Queen's picture, was reported in Calgary early last week.

Bank of Canada officials in Ottawa then said the bill probably went through color-changing fumes after printing. They added that although currency is printed in sheets of 24 there was no possibility of 23 similar bills being in circulation as bank note printers would not have passed a sheet of 24 with such a color flaw.

Mr. Isaacs, a collector of rare currency, said he had refused an offer of $100 for the bill, which he noticed while changing money in his father. He has placed it in a scrapbook.

Plan To Censure Mayor Whittom

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa aldermen who said they planned to censure Mayor Charlotte Whittom today for criticisms she has made of council members, learned Saturday they would have to put it off.

Ottawa's controversial lady mayor is in Northampton, Mass., getting an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from Smith College.

Miss Whittom, who has many times brought her male colleagues to boiling point with her woman's view of things is an amazing an envious array of degrees. The Smith College honor will be added to others she has already received from King's College, Halifax; Queen's University, Acadia University and the University of Rochester.

British Prime Minister Issues Stern Warning

By John Dedman
LONDON, (Reuters)—Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden warned Britons Sunday night that crippling labor and dock strikes threaten to "smash up our hard-earned prosperity" and throw Britain into economic chaos.

"I am not going to leave you in any doubt about the deadly seriousness of what is happening to our country," the prime minister said in a country-wide radio broadcast from his country home, Chequers.

He warned that the rail strike, now in its second week, is going to bring unemployment since "you cannot stop most of the trains in a land like ours without soon bringing some factories to a halt."

Eden said the strike will interfere with attempts to build up coal supplies for the winter, forcing Britain to import coal if it continues. The twin stoppages were also crippling the vital export trade on which British economy depends to pay its mammoth import bill.

"If we go on like this we shall smash up our hard-earned prosperity," the prime minister said bitterly.

Eden said his government is ready to help in fresh negotiations between the striking rail workers and the British Transport Commission, which runs the nation's state-owned railroads. He said, the strike "can only end when negotiations begin."

"And let me repeat, for the sake of everyone in this land—including all grades of railwaymen and citizens—the quicker the better."

Lighthouse in Position

QUREBEC, (CP)—In an unprecedented operation a 4,500-ton lighthouse was settled into position Sunday in the St. Lawrence river, 100 miles northeast of here, to warn river traffic of treacherous reefs and shoals.

Two attempts to settle the lighthouse onto a specially-prepared rock bed on the floor of the river failed Saturday because of rough water.

The lighthouse, held over the rock bed to taut tow lines, slowly settled into position as the tide subsided Sunday. At the same time, five crew members inside the lighthouse opened the valves to let the water into the lower compartment.

The lighthouse which projects 30 feet above the surface, will be held on the river bottom with 2,500 tons of cement and crushed rock. It will be the base for a light-lower approximately four stories high which will guide ships through the channel near White Island.

The new lighthouse, which will replace an old lighthouse, is expected to be the forerunner of a program which will see all transport department river lightships retired.
