

French Official Gives Comments

PARIS (Reuters) — President de Gaulle's special envoy Jean Sainteny, who recently visited Hanoi, said Friday night he believes the American airmen captured in North Viet-Nam will be tried and condemned to death, but their sentences will not be carried out.

In an interview with the privately owned Radio Europe Number One, Sainteny said: "In my opinion—the American airmen imprisoned in North Viet Nam will certainly be tried in the presence of a very large crowd."

"But I do not think that the resulting sentences—probably capital punishment—will be carried out."

Sainteny, a former French government minister, said earlier in a newspaper interview he warned North Viet Nam's president, Ho Chi Minh, against having the airmen executed as war criminals. He was in Hanoi when captured U.S. airmen were paraded through the streets. He told Ho such displays made a bad impression in France.

Sainteny told his radio interviewer that while the North Vietnamese government might not be hostile to a negotiated solution of the Viet-Nam War, it would never give in to an ultimatum.

PENTAGON BRIEFING

Secretary of the Navy Paul H. Nitze, he recently returned from an inspection of U.S. Navy and Marine Corps units in South Viet Nam, uses several maps to brief newsmen in the Pentagon. He also said that the "future disposition" of 19 North Vietnamese sailors captured by U.S. forces in a Gulf of Tonkin naval engagement in June, has not yet been decided. (AP Wirephoto)
