Girls Having Enjoyable Two Weeks In Holland Cove Camp

A group of eager young girls, boarded the ferry "Fairview", June 30, headed for two weeks of roughing it at the Y. M. C. A., Holland Cove Camp. The camp, under the supervision of Miss Ruth Boswell was blessed with an island for the first few days, with sunny weather. But as all good things come to an end so did the sunshine, and the girls, aged from 9 to 11, donned their wet weather equipment, which usually meant only a bathing suit, and usually meant only a trooped to the camp craft shop where they turned out the camp paper, The Compass, and prepared their displays for Visitor's Day, which was yesterday. The camp, to the sorrow of both campers and mothers, will end next Saturday with the Fairview carrying the girls and their thousands of memories back to Charlottetown.

CANADIANS, more than any other people, benefit from ELECTRIC POWER

Abundant low-cost power provided by Canada's alert and progressive electric utilities is a vital contribution to our country's growth and to better living

ELECTRICITY is almost as much a part of our life today as the air we breathe. Abundant low-cost power is one of the important reasons for so many busy factories . . . greater production of goods than ever before . . . and better paying jobs. In rural areas, too, wherever the power lines run, you'll find prosperous farms and greater living comfort. And in offices and homes, everywhere, electric power makes life easier and more enjoyable.

Since 1945, the demand for electricity has almost doubled and it is expected to double again within the next ten years. Keeping pace with this ever-increasing demand reflects great credit on Canada's power companies. Their engineers have changed the age-old courses of rivers, have tunneled through mountains, created immense reservoirs and built massive dams to harness the energy of rushing water.

Other sources of energy being used increasingly

Over 90% of Canada's output of electricity is developed by water power. In some areas however, all the usable water power resources have been put to work, or soon will be. To help meet future needs, engineers are turning their attention more and more to other sources of energy to operate steam or gas-driven turbine-generators.

The gas turbine is one of the newer methods of converting heat to electrical energy. Low-grade oil or natural gas is mixed with compressed air in a combustion chamber and the force of the resulting exhaust gases turns the turbine which drives the generator. Canadian General Electric is supplying gas turbines for a new station in British Columbia, which will be one of the largest of its kind in the world.

Canada's first atomic electric power plant being built

Canada's first atomic electric power plant being built near Chalk River, Ontario, by Canadian General Electric together with Atomic Energy of Canada and Ontario Hydro, signifies new horizons in the generation of electric power. The engineering knowledge and experience gained will be freely available to the nation's power companies.

For over 60 years Canadian General Electric has built much of the vast amount of equipment needed to generate, transmit and distribute electricity . . . and the wide variety of products that put electricity to use in homes and industry. There are over three times as many C.G.E. employees today as there were in 1939. They are designing, manufacturing and supplying the largest volume of electrical products in this Company's history. These products, including many which didn't even exist a few years ago, help assure that Canadians will continue to live better . . . electrically.

These generating stations are typical of some 350 hydro-electric plants that produce over nine-tenths of the country's electric power.
