

Sees Room For Expansion In N.S. Livestock Industry

By GERRY MARTIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer
HALIFAX (CP)—A Nova Scotia farm expert says that the success of the province's agriculture industry during the next 10 years rests on development of the livestock industry.

F. Walsh, deputy minister of agriculture, says that the value of the industry can jump from $60,000,000 a year to $100,000,000 during that time if the proper steps are taken.

Mr. Walsh noted that Nova Scotia imports $18,000,000 worth of meat a year. The market is there, he said, and if Nova Scotia farmers wish to cater to it they must produce an additional 160,000 hogs, 50,000 cattle, 20,000 calves and 30,000 sheep annually.

SECRET OF SUCCESS
Good farm management practices are the secret of success, Mr. Walsh said, as he showed up to the poultry industry was brought up to a $13,000,000 business from one which once was considered a sideline by farmers.

As a result of modern management practices Nova Scotia poultry today commands a premium price on many markets.

Answering those who questioned whether Nova Scotia's climate was favorable to a sound agricultural program, Mr. Walsh said more feed grain could be produced per acre in Nova Scotia than in any other part of Canada with the exception of the irrigated land in British Columbia.

"We have proved that we can grow grass in Nova Scotia," he said, "now what has to be done is to convert this natural resource into livestock."

WOULD IMPROVE ECONOMY
This can be accomplished, he feels, and when it is done it will reflect in an improved economy not only in agriculture, but in every other line of activity which has an interest in agriculture.

All that is required, he said, is to put into this project the same energy and initiative that prompted the growth of the poultry industry.

The growth of that industry was based upon the provision of up-to-date marketing facilities and the payment of top prices for a quality product.

He said it took the poultry industry almost 20 years to reach its present stage, but from the lessons learned in developing that industry it shouldn't take more than 10 years to make the livestock industry boom.

The wharf, 60 feet long by 40 feet wide, is constructed of close creosoted piles around the front and side. 10 by 10 stringers will be used to tie in the wharf and it will be completed with rock and clay fill covered with gravel.

Fire Destroys Bakery At Murray River Tues. Morning

Fire of unknown origin yesterday morning destroyed the bakery of John Earl Jenkins at Murray River. The building, 28 feet by 39 feet, was a complete loss.

Mrs. Jenkins, who was out in the yard about 9:30, first noticed the smoke coming from the roof of the building, but thought it was swirling snow. On realizing that the bakery was on fire, she rushed to the building but smoke and flames prevented any entry.

A large crowd gathered, but owing to a breakdown of the local fire equipment, they were unable to do anything.

The Montague Fire Department was called. They responded quickly and were on the scene shortly after the call was placed. In the meantime hand extinguishers were used but without avail.

The fire spread so rapidly throughout the building that the Montague Fire Department was unable to save it, but stood ready in case either of the two adjacent homes was endangered.

The building, put up six years ago, contained all the equipment necessary in a modern bakery, the whole building and equipment now being a total loss.

Mr. Jenkins was unable to estimate the amount of loss, but said it was partly covered by insurance.

able income he gets from his successful business affairs.

Last summer I visited an Island family that had suddenly come into a considerable amount of money. I was touched to see one use to which the money had been put. A daughter had enrolled for art lessons (private) and the walls of the living room were covered with her paintings of pets, flowers and landscapes. It may well be that a still-ton or a Rembrandt cannot be stifled by adverse circumstances but tiny sparks can be fanned into small but steady heart-warming fires. And one approach to this desirable goal is surely through art societies and art exhibits such as the present one at the Civic Center.

(Next week, a few observations on the Drama).
