Rebel Leader Claims Is Lumumba Successor

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—Rebel leader Gaston Soumaliot disclosed himself as the man behind an invasion of Stanleyville, when he broadcast Thursday: "I am the new Lumumba."

In a broadcast on Stanleyville radio, Soumaliot told the people of Patrice Lumumba's former stronghold: "Lumumba said that someone stronger than himself would come to complete his work. That man is me."

Lumumba, former leftist and first prime minister of the independent Congo, was slain Jan. 18, 1961, after having escaped from detention in Katanga.

Moise Tshombe, then president of Katanga but now Congolese prime minister, has been accused of complicity in Lumumba's murder.

It is not known whether Soumaliot was actually in Stanleyville when the broadcast was made Thursday, or whether it had been taped previously.

He asked army troops in the area to surrender to his rebel forces and promised they would be treated well if they did. The Congolese and European populations in the city, The Congo's third largest, were both warned not to hide soldiers.

Diplomatic and government circles here said they thought Soumaliot took Stanleyville by an invasion of a small number of his followers, joined by a large number of local dissidents.

Stanleyville has always been a centre of anti-central government activity. After serving as Lumumba's base it was the headquarters for Antoine Gizenga's short - lived break - away central government.

Although Tshombe received an overtly enthusiastic welcome when he visited Stanleyville about 10 days ago to lay a wreath on Lumumba's monument, observers here said then that if the rebels reached Stanleyville they were sure to be joined by many segments of the local population.

Iron Curtain Dispute Splits Ukrainian Camps In Ontario

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — A whiff from behind the Iron Curtain has split two Ukrainian summer camps at Palermo, eight miles northwest of here.

Facing each other on Highway 5 are Camp Kiev, a 103-acre children's camp operated by St. Vladimir's Ukrainian Orthodox Church of Toronto, and Taras H. Shevchenko Memorial Park, a 109 - acre camp sponsored by the Association of United Ukrainian Canadians.

The two riverside camps attract thousands of Canadians of Ukrainian descent from nearby Toronto, Hamilton and U.S. centres.

Members of Camp Kiev say they will have nothing to do with their neighbors who they have dubbed "Communists."

The officials of the other camp maintain they are on friendly terms with camp Kiev.

Michael Krol, president of the national committee of the group running camp Shevchenko, said his group was "progressive" but not communistic.

John Dubno, manager of the camp, said: "Some left-wing organizations come here and rent facilities. They make speeches and we don't stop them because we need the revenue from rent to operate the camp. We do not try to force politics on anyone."

Shevchenko is named after a revered Ukrainian poet whose productive life was a lifelong battle with the ideologies of the reigning czar.

Officials at Camp Kiev said the love Ukrainians feel for their poet is being used by Communists for their own purposes.

Goldwater Explains Extremism

By JAMES DEVLIN

NEW YORK (AP) — Senator Barry Goldwater says the extremism he advocated in the defence of liberty could be paraphrased as "whole-hearted devotion" to the cause.

The Republican presidential nominee, in a letter to former vice-president Richard Nixon, said misunderstandings must not stand in the way of party unity.

Goldwater has been under pressure from various prominent members of the party to elaborate on his use of the term extremism in his acceptance speech July 16 in San Francisco.

The Arizonan did so in the letter to Nixon, who had written asking for clarification. Nixon made the letter public Sunday.

Goldwater said in his Republican convention speech: "I would remind you that extremism in the defence of liberty is no vice. And let me remind you also that moderation in the pursuit of justice is no virtue."

"In a "dear Dick" letter, signed "Barry," Goldwater said:

"If I were to paraphrase the two sentences in question in the context in which I uttered them I would do it by saying that whole-hearted devotion to liberty is unassailable and that half-hearted devotion to justice is indefensible."

The senator said at another point that devotion to liberty and justice "would not countenance illegal or improper means to achieve proper goals."

Goldwater made a surprise visit to New York Saturday and met with former president Hebert Hoover and Francis Cardinal Spellman, Roman Catholic archbishop of New York.

Orphan Back As Doctor At Mission

MONTREAL (CP) — An orphanage run by the Grenfell Mission at St. Anthony, Nfld., was home to Clifton Way. He left home at 15.

Seventeen years later, Dr. Clifton Way returns as a doctor on the mission's hospital staff. With him will be his bride of six months, who will continue her nursing career at the 120-bed institution famed for its service to the isolated northern communities in the island province.

Dr. Way spent two years at the senior resident he left his grandparents' care. His performance at the mission school was so impressive that Dr. Gordon Thomas, then a staff doctor and now hospital superintendent, made arrangements for the boy to continue his education at Sherbrooke, Que., High School.

Then followed three years at Bishop's University in Lennoxville, Que., 15 months as a chemist and entry into McGill University's medical school.

Dr. Way graduated in 1958, and in recent years he has been senior resident in cardiology at the Montreal Children's Hospital.

"I've always had a wish to go back to work in my home surroundings," he said.

Segregation End Asked In RC Shools

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—The Roman Catholic bishop of Mississippi has called for all Catholic schools in the state to end segregation of first - grade classrooms next month.

Bishop Richard O. Gerow called for the move as three public school systems also prepared to begin the first integration below the college level in the state's history.

He said "it is to be the policy of the Catholic schools in the diocese to admit qualified Catholic children to the first grade without respect to race."

In a pastoral letter read to all parishioners, Bishop Gerow asked Mississippi Catholics "to give witness to a true Christian spirit by their acceptance of and co-operation in the implementation of this policy."

The order encompasses 25 high schools, white and Negro, serving 3,334 students and 51 elementary schools, white and Negro, serving 13,408 students. CATHOLICS NUMBER 71,132

There are an estimated 71,132 Catholics among the 2,178,141 Mississippians.

The implementation of the order will be voluntary.

"We have no idea how many or when students will integrate classrooms," a Catholic source said.

A federal court recently ordered public schools in Jackson, Biloxi and Lake County to integrate its first grades and then add a grade a year toward total desegregation.

The order had been gained by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in a suit which was initiated by slain Negro leader Medgar Evers.

HAMMERS SOFTLY

SYDNEY (CP)—An Australian inventor has taken the deafening noise out of the jackhammer, replacing it with a burring noise. Frank Stephens, 41, developed a sound-absorbing rubber muffler which experts say cuts the noise level by 75 per cent. He is asking $120,000 for the invention.

The bidding:

Opening lead—six of spades.

Let's say you're declarer at six hearts and West leads a spade. When you play the ten, East plays the queen and you win the trick with the ace.

You are now faced with a crucial problem. Obviously you must lose a spade, and the big question is how to avoid a diamond loser. This would be easy enough to solve if you could see the opponents' cards—all you would have to do is finesse against the player with the queen of diamonds.

But you don't see the adverse hands and therefore have to call upon your ingenuity to help solve the problem. The only clue so far as to the probable location of the queen is that East entered the bidding and is hence more likely to have it.

This evidence is far from conclusive, however, and it would not be right to depend exclusively on it. It is far better to first learn some more about the defenders' hands before committing yourself to a final decision.

In line with this, you cash the ace of clubs at trick two and then play a heart to the ten and ruff a club. When you now play a heart to the jack and return the jack of clubs, all your worries suddenly end when East plays the king on it.

Instead of ruffing the club, as originally planned, you discard your spade loser on it. This play solves the problem of the two-way diamond finesse. You no longer have to guess how to play the diamonds.

East is on lead and is bound to give you the contract regardless of what he returns. If he leads a spade, dummy's jack becomes a trick, while if he leads a diamond, the queen is trapped, wherever it is. It turns out that the best way of dealing with the queen of diamonds is not to guess its location at all.
