

Young Jocelyne Bourassa Wins Canadian Open Golf

By JIM CRERAR
KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Jocelyne Bourassa became the third junior-age player to win the Canadian women's open golf championship in the 65-year history of the event Saturday and she did it by beating her opponent on her own favorite spot.

Miss Bourassa scored a 5 and 3 victory over 27-year-old Mary Ellen Driscoll of Saint John, N.B., a teacher of mathematics and physical education at an Ottawa private school for girls.

The champion, an 18-year-old resident of Shawinigan, Que., who plays out of nearby Trois-Rivières, all but clinched the title on the 12th hole of the difficult Westmount Golf and Country Club by sinking a 12-foot putt for a birdie-two. It came on the 30th hole of the 36-hole match-play final and left Miss Bourassa two holes up.

"But it didn't bother me," she said. "When I go home I'll see a doctor about it. But nothing is broken. I just pulled some tendons."

Miss Driscoll thought the 30th hole was where Miss Bourassa captured the grueling match, played in near-90 degree temperature.

"I agree that was where I won it," said the five-foot-six, 130-pound champion who succeeds Australian-born Marg Masters of Ottawa as the top woman golfer in Canada. Miss Masters turned professional and was ineligible to compete this year.

HAD CLOSE BATTLE

The two finalists staged a close battle until the turning point at the 30th hole. Miss Bourassa won the first hole but Miss Driscoll evened it on the sixth and went two holes up by winning the 12th and 13th.

FIRST IN 47 YEARS

Miss Driscoll, in her 11th open tournament, was the first Maritime golfer to gain the final since Miss M. Thompson of Saint John won the championship in 1918.

Miss Bourassa, who learned her golf from her brother Gilles, a professional in Shawinigan, played with her right wrist wrapped in tape.

P.E.I. SINGLES CHAMP

David Boswell, provincial director of physical education is seen presenting the winner of the P.E.I. tennis singles championship Paul MacLean with the trophy. MacLean who plays out of Halifax defeated another Halifax player Pete Aucoin in the finals of the tourney played on Saturday at the local tennis courts.

One thing about daily newspapers:

they talk a fella's language

So much happens so quickly these days that a lot of things could sail right over a fella's head. But they don't. Thanks to the daily paper. In this rapidly changing world, the daily newspaper keeps you up to date; and goes right on talking your language. Yes indeed, whether it's a new art form or a design for a rocket ship, you look to your daily paper to learn about it.

In fact, some 53% of Canadians read their daily paper for just that reason: "as the best way to keep up their education", according to a survey validated by the Canadian Advertising Research Foundation. Of course, they read the paper for other reasons too. For homemaking hints. For sports and financial news. For information about local social events. For theatre and TV listings. And for ads.

Yes ads. Daily newspaper advertising is news. News about products and services. So Canadians use their daily paper as a shopping guide (83%). They prefer newspaper ads to ads they see and hear elsewhere. Because they find newspaper ads less irritating (92%) and more reliable (41%).

When you talk to people through the daily newspaper, you're talking their language. And that's a mighty smart move. Especially if you're an advertiser.
