Important Improvement

Method of lowering the net and dragging it in. On the old style boat there are two gallews frames on one side to shoot the net.

Seining Operations

Local officials expressed the thought that the new boat would also be used for seining as well as dragging. With this in mind it is proposed to place the deckhouse, winch, and all necessary machinery as far forward as possible.

It is believed that there has been no seining operations here for several decades although 35 and 40 years ago it was popular especially among American fishermen who came into the waters surrounding this Province.

PLANE MISSING

Goose Bay, Grant left North Ring Lake for Chimo. The sound of a plane circling was heard at Chimo Sunday, then the sound of a dive before the engine failed.

Penmore Iron Mines of Toronto reported it chartered the plane, owned by Mont Laurier Airways of Quebec Province. It was flying to Chimo to pick up supplies and geologist Andre LeClerc of Montreal.

At Montreal, engineer Charles Cashman said that because the pilot was to pick up LeClerc and supplies it was unlikely he carried any passengers. There was only one pilot aboard.

FLY. Lt. Jim Barlow flew to Goose Bay from Greenwood, N. S., last night to direct the search. The air force said it was possible Grant attempted to reach Churchill, Man. if the weather was too bad to land at Chimo. The plane's identification letters were FCFPN.

Makes Plea In Commons For Incapitated & Other Groups

OTTAWA, Nov. 21 — (Special) — A plea for Federal Government assistance to the incapacitated and other groups of persons in dire need but not eligible for pensions of any kind was made in the House of Commons this afternoon by W. Chester S. McLaughlin, Conservative member for Quebec. Speaking on the Draft Address, Mr. McLaughlin affirmed it was the duty of the Federal Government to give aid to needy citizens.

"It is deplorable," he said, "that the incapacitated person, whose need is very real, is being ignored in the government's program of social security."

Mr. McLaughlin cited instances of persons incapable of earning a living through no fault of their own who are a serious burden to their families. He urged Health Minister Martin to submit legislation to aid this class of Canadian before another session of parliament passes.

The Queen's member called the attention of the Commons to the fact that there are many ex-railroad workers in Prince Edward Island who are forced to live on inadequate pensions.

"These railroad employees were retired under the old law," Mr. McLaughlin pointed out, "and at the time of their retirement, their pensions were sufficient to live on. But this was before the soaring cost of living. Today they have not enough to make ends meet. Many have less than $40 a month. Those who have reached the age of 70 can apply for the old age pension but there are others in serious straits."

"A man actually working for a railroad and getting insufficient wages can strike for more. But the retired railroad worker has no weapon whatever to use to better his condition."

Other Retired Officials

He urged Transport Minister Chevrier to have the question of ex-railroaders' pensions in Prince Edward Island studied with a view to making them more equitable. In addition to the former rail workers, Mr. McLaughlin said, there are not a few retired civil servants in Prince Edward Island who are forced to get along on very meagre pensions. Some improvement should be brought to their situation, he said.

The Queen's member reminded the House that all parties equally supported the bill to grant old age pensions to those 70 and over without a means test. There was no question now, he said, of Liberals saying on the public platform that they were the ones who gave the people these pensions.

There had been considerable difficulty, he noted in the matter of proof of age on the part of old age pension applicants. While he realized the Government must be protected against fraud, he felt the proof-of-age clause could be modified. If an applicant took an affidavit supported by a person who had known him for many years, these declarations should be regarded as sufficient, he contended.

Mr. McLaughlin made a plea for maintenance of existing public works and construction of promised public works in Prince Edward Island. He was well aware, he said, that money as needed for national defence, but such utilities as harbors, shipping, highways, bridges, railways and buildings were all in themselves part of an overall national defence program.

Wood Islands Service

He pleaded for Federal encouragement and support of extension of the Wood Islands-Caribou ferry service. This service had been of the greatest value to farmers and others in Prince Edward Island and had

Preparing For Winter Roadwork

Practically all machines used on the roads by the Department of Public Works and Highways are now being brought into the Government garage here for the customary winter repairs. However, Hon. Douglas MacKinnon, Minister of the Department, said there were a few bulldozers still out for final clean-up work or to prepare some of the roads for next season's work.

At the same time the Government is getting the snow fences distributed in readiness for the coming season. They will be set up as usual along the main trunk roads. All of them available will be used, but it is the opinion of the Minister that a far greater number of them than at present on hand would be of value to island motorists and others using the main trunk highways during the winter months.

Demara Makes Plans To Live In England

VICTORIA, B. C., Nov. 21—A life in England, free from a bogus medical career, is planned by Ferdinand Waldo Demara, Jr. Demara, dishonorably discharged from the navy at Esquimalt, today, is making plans to live in England, it was learned.

While serving as a lieutenant-surgeon aboard the Canadian destroyer Cayuga in Korean waters, he wrote a Victoria travel agency. The letter told of plans for a trip to England where, it said, he might establish permanent residence.

The letter, sent to the agency last September and signed "Dr. Cyr"—the name under which he masqueraded in the navy—asked for information on air and steamship transportation to London.

It said the trip would be made "sometime in July, 1952." Demara, a 29-year-old American from Lawrence, Mass., was brought to Esquimalt last week from Korea and a naval board of inquiry ordered his discharge. He was found guilty of fraudulent entry into the navy.

Since his return from Korea a week ago Demara has been lodged in the navy hospital at Esquimalt. He is reported to have received some lucrative offers for the story of his life, but his answer has been: "Sorry, no comment."

The notes he wrote in a bold hand replying to the offers were signed with his real initials, "F. W. D."
