L'NEMAN DUNN. Of Dundas, Endorses Dodd's Kidney Pills for Rheumatism.

Dundas, Oct. 22 — "Gentlemen—I have been troubled with Rheumatism for a year past, and have used several so-called cures. None of them did me a particle of good, however, until I started on a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills. Since then my sufferings have been brief as my story is. Three boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills completely cured me, and you are welcome to make my statement public. W. L'Neman Dunn, Telephone Lineman."

Here is information, more precious than a gold mine to men who follow the same occupation as Mr. Dunn, and who are great sufferers from Rheumatism. Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure them as they cured Mr. Dunn.

"THE WHITE DEATH'S" WORK. REMARKABLE MIST IN THE ROCKIES WHICH OFTEN PROVES FATAL.

Of all the natural phenomena peculiar to the Rocky Mountain region none is more strange or terrible than the mysterious storm known to the Indians as "the white death." Scientific men have never yet had an opportunity of investigating it, because it comes at the most unexpected times and may keep away from a certain locality for years. Well-read men who have really been through it say that it is really a frozen fog. But where the fog comes from is more than anyone can say. This phenomenon occurs most frequently in the northern part of Colorado, in Wyoming and occasionally in Montana. About two years ago a party of three women and two men were crossing North Park in a wagon in the month of February. The air was bitterly cold, but dry as a bone and motionless. The sun shone with almost startling brilliancy. As the five people drove along over the crisp snow they did not experience the least cold, but really felt most comfortable, and rather enjoyed the trip. Mountain peaks fifty miles away could be seen as distinctly as the pine trees by the roadside.

Suddenly one of the women put her hand up to her face and remarked that something had stung her. Then other members of the party did the same thing, although not the sign of an insect could be seen. All marvelled greatly at this. A moment later they noticed that the distant mountains were disappearing behind a cloud of mist. Mist in Colorado in February? Surely there must be some mistake. But there was no mistake, because within ten minutes a gentle wind began to blow and the air became filled with fine particles of something that scintillated like diamond dust in the sunshine. Still the people drove on until they came to a cabin where a man signalled to them to stop. With his head tied up in a bundle of mufflers, he rushed out and handed the driver a piece of paper on which was written: "Come into the house quick, or this storm will kill all of you. Don't talk outside here."

Of course no time was lost in getting under cover and putting the horses in the stables. But they were a little late, for in less than an hour the whole party was sick with violent coughs and fever. Before the next morning one of the women died with all the symptoms of pneumonia. The others were violently ill of it, but managed to pull through after long sickness.

A STORY OF KITCHENER.

Mr. Bennett Burleigh writes to the London Telegraph, from Middleburg, as follows:

Volunteers who wear shoulder decorations often are on the too-exacting side, becoming slavish imitators of the more martinet disciplinarians. Let this story be told to Lord Kitchener's credit, though it may surprise many! A certain Yeomany commander, whilst on parade, rated his men in unmeasured terms. Nothing was right, in his judgment, that the troopers did. They set their horses wrong, they moved unlike machinery, etc., and were "no better than a d--- rabbit." "A lot of gutter-snipes, etc." "That," said Lord Kitchener, who came up "is not the way to address men. They are not a d--- rabbit, but soldiers, and to be spokeu to as such. No troops can be trained in that fashion, and the commander who does not respect his men is unable to lead them." The whole force heard the observation, and the men were as decorously elated as the Yeomany officer was obviously crestfallen. Lord Kitchener said no more openly upon parade, but he took that overstrung gentlemen aside and read the "Riot Act," or what stands for it in military phraseology, to him in such severe fashion that he will never forget the lesson. But there's swearing and swearing. Much of it may be easily forgiven, while some bitter words rankle in the breast. With the vigour and efflorescence of youth, the Colonials, democratic and free of manners and tongue, give the sons of the Old Country the go-by. There is an abundance and variety in their "cuss words" creditable to their imagination and invention. They startle rather than shock you, for they mostly swear good-naturedly—without malice—from exuberance of spirits. Take, for example, dear (Father) Colonel Snaffs, of the Antipodean Ramblers. His fluent swearing is almost exhilarating, as he means it to be, and not in the least depressing or discouraging to his comrads. Not one of them harbours the smallest grievance against him on that account or at his heaped adjectives applied to themselves. Whenever he rattled a bit to rough in imposing fatigues and punishments, they would say: "Daddy, Daddy, play the game. Play the game fair." While the next time they'd meet him in a quiet way it would be: "Hallo, Colonel! Come and have a drink?" and his cheery answer would be: "Don't care if I do." Shocking, abominable want of discipline, cries Pall Mall. But there is no better material and no better soldiers in any service than the Antipodean Ramblers. Now, if Capt. Fanny, of the Black Ruffs, loses his temper, as he frequently does, under his "beastly surroundings," he hisses maledictions, like a python, and it is easy to learn that every man under him hears him an undying grudge.

Wornout Nerves.

So Weak she Couldn't Sleep or Work—Hands Trembled—Could Scarcely Walk—Restored by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mrs. Margaret Iron, Tower Hill, N. B., writes:—"Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has done me a world of good. I was so weak that I could not walk twice the length of the house. My hands trembled so that I could not carry a pint of water. I was too nervous to sleep, and unable to do work of any kind.

"Since using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I have been completely restored. I can walk a mile without any inconvenience. Though 76 years old, and quite fleshy, I do my own housework, and considerable sewing, knitting, and reading besides. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has proved of inestimable value to me."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the world's greatest restorative for pale, weak, nervous men, women, and children. In pill form, 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Don't cough, use Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, 25 cents a bottle.
