By ALAN HARVEY Canadian Press Staff Writer
LONDON, (CP)—With cartoons and uneasy editorials, British newspapers give further vent to suspicions about United States policy in Asia.

Press treatment of such issues as the forthcoming political conference in Korea, and the 16-power declaration on what might happen if the armistice is broken, indicates growing concern over apparent Anglo-American differences of approach in the Far East.

The situation seems similar to that two years ago, when conflicts over relations with Communist China appeared likely to threaten the basic unity of the Atlantic alliance.

Critical of Declaration
The Times, in its main editorial yesterday, sharply criticizes the declaration by 16 United Nations countries made public last Saturday. The key sentence of the declaration is an affirmation that in event of a breach of the armistice, "in all probability, it would not be possible to confine hostilities within the frontiers of Korea."

The Times calls this "deceptive and dangerous," warning that threatening policies should never be announced unless there is a readiness to carry them out. The same issue of the newspaper, which is independent politically, carries a joint letter from two Labor members of Parliament, Patrick Gordon Walker and Douglas Jay, criticizing the declaration.

Gordon Walker was formerly secretary of state for Commonwealth relations. Jay was a junior minister.

Favorite Target
A favorite American target for British critics is State Secretary John Foster Dulles, who is regarded as having come off second best in his talks with Korean President Syngman Rhee. A cartoonist in the right-wing Daily Express pictured Dulles coming home from Korea minus most of his clothes.

Liberal Manchester Guardian presents Dulles in the likeness of a hooked fish, extending to President Eisenhower the fishing rod which Dr. Rhee sent as a gift to the President.

The Yorkshire Post, Conservative, editorially supports the theme of the cartoonists, saying it looks as though Dulles made himself "the instrument of Dr. Rhee's potential blackmail."

Sharp Contrast
This criticism of Dulles is in sharp contrast to British feeling toward the former state secretary, Dean Acheson, whose policies were warmly defended here.

Basically the Anglo-American differences of approach probably arise from contrasting attitudes toward China. American feeling, as seen here, is conditioned by the lingering sentimentality of the New England missionary and the San Francisco trader. Britain would prefer to treat new China empirically, recalling the Chinese mystique of suffering which, a recent Times article said, lies deeper than Marxism.

"The picture of suffering," said the article, "is a picture of a country misrepresented, despised and bullied: Its society overturned, its beliefs scorned and much of its culture trodden underfoot; at the mercy of gunboats and of any government prepared to make its predatory demands. The clue to the picture... is suffering."

Investigation Opens Into Crash Which Took 9 Lives

VILLE JACQUES CARTIER, Que. (CP)—Official investigation got under way Wednesday into the crash of an RCAF CF-100 jet fighter which speeded flames over two frame houses and took the lives of nine persons.

Two airmen and seven civilians, including five children, died in the flames that swept the exploding plane and the little homes in this south shore community.

The plane crashed late Tuesday shortly after it had taken off from the nearby RCAF St. Hubert airport, a few miles south of Montreal.

An RCAF squadron leader from the accident investigation branch at Ottawa, who happened to be at St. Hubert, began a preliminary investigation Tuesday. Other officers arrived Wednesday from Ottawa.

St. Hubert authorities suggested possibly one of the jet's twin engines failed or some of the control cables on the craft became fouled.

The dead: Mrs. Emilien Fournier, 57; her daughter, Mrs. Marcel Bourassa, 30; Michael Bourassa, 6; Ginette Bourassa, 2; Pierre Lavoie, 6; Genevieve Lavoie, 5; Normand Lavoie, 28; St. Hubert and formerly of Calgary; FO Albert Miles, 23, radio observer on the plane, of Bonavista, Nfld.

The burned body of one child was found under a porch. Apparently the youngster had crawled there seeking safety as the plane came hurtling toward the two homes.

A cordon of airmen arrived from St. Hubert carrying rifles loaded with blank ammunition. There were snuffles with newspaper men and photographers. Some cameras and notebooks were taken away, and the airmen fired blanks into the air to keep spectators away from the crash scene. Hoses were turned a few times on the pressing crowds.

Air Vice-Marshal A. L. James issued a statement at St. Hubert saying it is necessary to mount a guard in such instances so nothing is disturbed and causes of accidents may be ascertained. The guard also must protect citizens against injury from fire and explosion. He said he had reports that spectators attempted to take away pieces of the plane and interfered with firefighters.

Britain Enters Four Jet Bombers in Big Air Race

WYTON, England, (CP)—Britain's New Zealand Air Race Council, sponsoring the race, will give a top prize of £9,000 and a gold cup to the first plane of each division to land at Christchurch. There will be prizes of £2,800, £930 and £466 for second, third and fourth places in each section.

Among six planes entered in the transport handicap will be a DC-3 flown by women. It has been entered by the Dixby Airlines of California in the name of Mrs. Gertrude Mackenzie, Australian widowed flyer who is the mother of two children.

Mrs. Diana Dixby, of Long Beach, Cal., who runs Dixby Airlines with her husband, will be in the planes' crew with another American Betty Haas from New York.

There are two other American planes in the transport section. Rauch Aviation has entered a Lockheed Lodestar and the Custer America a COW-5 twin-engine Channel Wing Corporation of Executive.
