ANOTHER VINDICATION.

The longer the Liberals are in office the more clearly it is seen that the Conservatives were not so bad after all. "Liberal journals and speakers are continually forced to use the tu quoque argument, and not unfrequently to admit that the late Government were right upon points in regard to which before they were declared to be all wrong." For instance, there was no "extravagance" of the Conservatives upon which the Liberal journals inveighed more strongly than the expenditures in connection with the High Commissioner's Office in London. Sir Charles Tupper's management of the office was characterized as useless, worthless, and expensive, when the Liberals were out of office. But now that the Liberals are in office, the Toronto Globe is constrained to admit that the High Commissioner's office has always been "worth more than we have ever paid for its maintenance." This open admission of Sir Charles Tupper's value as High Commissioner is the more remarkable in view of the fact that the editor of the Globe has lately been in London investigating the matter. Not only does the Globe now believe that the office of High Commissioner has "always been worth more than we have ever paid for its maintenance,"—it now contends that another expensive department, "a great permanent exhibition of products, manned by Canadian officers, thoroughly equipped for their work and established in the very mid-stream of traffic in one of the chief London thoroughfares," ought to be opened.

TUBERCULOSIS IN CATTLE.

The report of the select standing committee on agriculture contains an interesting chapter on the diseases of animals. Under this heading, Dr. McEachran, Dominion Veterinary Inspector, says that after mankind cattle are most susceptible to tuberculosis; swine come next; sheep very little; horses but rarely,—but poultry are very susceptible to it. The presence of one affected animal in a stable is, the doctor says, a fertile source of distribution throughout a herd of cattle, especially when housed for the winter; and milk from a diseased cow distributes the disease readily to the human subject. Dr. McEachran believes that the cattle of Canada are as free from tuberculosis as those of any other country in the world. But watchfulness and care in regard to it are nevertheless essential. He suggests that all male animals be subjected to the tuberculin test before being introduced to new herds, and that herds in which its presence is suspected be similarly tested. In destroying animals affected by tuberculosis it is not, he says, necessary in all cases to condemn them as unfit for human food; but the milk of suspected cows should invariably be boiled before it is used,—indeed all milk would be safer as a beverage if boiled.

—A correspondent of the London Times directs attention to the official career of Sir Arthur Halliburton. Sir Arthur, was the youngest son of Mr. Justice Halliburton, of Nova Scotia, better known as "Sam Slick." He served in the commissariat department of the army abroad and at home until 1870. Since then he has been assistant director and director of supplies and transport, and Assistant Under-Secretary and Under-Secretary of State for War, retiring from the latter position about three weeks ago. The review of his career given in the letter concludes as follows: "At a moment when the tendency is increasing to open the ranks of the Imperial service to all the Queen's subjects, in whatever part of the Empire they may chance to reside, it can hardly fail to be a source of gratification and interest to colonists to note the exceptional success which has attended the career of this distinguished Canadian. Our army boasts already many colonial members. Sir Arthur Halliburton's example encourages the hope that the Imperial Civil Service may also in the future draw recruits from the field of colonial talent."

A CORRECTION.

"RELIGIOUS NEWSPAPERS" (so called) ought to be, if possible, more careful in the selection of their reporters and the verification of their facts than those which make no religious profession. Yet there are frequent and regrettable lapses on the part of religious newspapers to prove that they are not careful. The latest we have noticed is that of the War Cry. This journal describes the horrors of a passage from Pictou to Charlottetown, and says:

"The motion of the little vessel was convulsive and alarming; it acted as if it wanted to turn somersaults. The steward, stewardess and some of the crew, as well as the passengers, were prostrated and could do nothing."

This description is calculated to be alarming to readers of the War Cry on the mainland who may contemplate a visit to this Province. It is sensational, but not true. The veteran steward of the Princess, as we learn on good authority, has not been seasick for well-nigh fifty years, and the Princess herself is a stout, strong and swift little seaboat not at all given to turning somersaults. In one trip out of ten the run from Pictou to Charlottetown is pleasant rather than unpleasant. Occasionally in the fall or early spring there is a storm which makes the crossing unpleasant; but the actual sea-sickness of even the most delicate persons does not usually last for more than two or three hours, and it often does good by carrying off an overplus of bile. The Princess is an excellent new steamer officered by thoroughly competent men—men who are not liable to be "prostrated" by a squall; and if passengers are occasionally seasick, on her they are, at all events, always prepared for any crisis that may arise by the excellent dinner which the never seasick steward invariably provides.

—Under the terms of the Quebec dairy act of last session, which provided among other things for the registration of cheese factories and creameries, a register was opened a few days ago by the department of agriculture. As a result a number of applications for registration certificates have been received from all the provinces. The act provides that the person to whom a registration number is assigned shall have an exclusive right to use it to designate the dairy products he manufactures. This means that he obtains free of cost what is practically a trade mark under which he may make a name for the butter or cheese which he puts on the market.

Heat holidays have been established by law in the public schools in Switzerland. Recognizing the well known fact that the brain cannot work properly when the heat is excessive, the children are dismissed from their tasks when the thermometer goes above a certain point.

The following is going the rounds of the press: "The country editor is a reliable encyclopedia. A subscriber sent him this: 'What ails my hens? Every morning I find one or more of them keeled over, to rise no more.' The reply was: 'The fowls are dead. It is an old complaint, and nothing can be done except to bury them.'" — Lockhart (Minn.) Phonograph.

DEATH OF MR. JAMES ELLIS.

It is with deep regret that we chronicle the death of Mr. James Ellis, senr., which sad event occurred at his residence, East Bideford, Lot 12, on the 13th inst. The deceased was born at Bideford and was 76 years of age. In his death one of the old land marks of the place has been removed. His life was a most active one and during his long and useful career he was engaged in various occupations, in all of which he discharged his duties faithfully and well. In his younger days he went to sea, and crossed the Atlantic several times. Abandoning the seafaring life he settled down on his fine farm near Lot 12 Point. Mr. Ellis was also a mechanic of very considerable skill. For many years he built ships on the banks of Bideford River. In his day he was employed as master of coasting schooners, and in this capacity always showed good judgment. For upwards of 30 years he filled the position of pilot for Miramichi and other harbors on the north side of the Island, and was eminently successful at this perilous work. He was harbor master for the port of Port Hill for a long period. And in all the different positions he was called upon to fill, he was ever faithful in the performance of his work. Mr. Ellis was highly esteemed by those who enjoyed his acquaintance. He had a great fund of anecdote and he often entertained his friends by relating his varied experiences on land and sea. The deceased gentleman will be much missed in the community. His remains were laid to rest at Tyne Valley Presbyterian cemetery on Friday, 15th inst. The funeral was very largely attended.—Summerside Farmer.

A German doctor has started a theory that most drunkards can be cured by a very simple and pleasant course of treatment—namely, by eating apples at every meal. Apples, it eaten in large quantities, possess properties which entirely do away with the craving that all confirmed drunkards have for drink.

It is estimated that the total length of the world's telegraph lines has now reached 4,908,823 miles, exclusive of 181,440 miles of submarine cable. This mileage is divided as follows:—America 2,516,548 miles, Europe 1,764,760 miles, Asia 310,685 miles, Australia 217,499 miles, Africa 99,419 miles. According to these figures America almost doubles Europe.
