THE FOLLY OF GUESSING

The "eye-guesser" is everywhere. Men and women guess. Children do not bother to do even that. Many guess their eyes need attention, many more that they DON'T. The former guess is more likely to be true. FACTS are easily obtained, and should be secured by everyone who is not sure of his vision.

Social Function at Buckingham Palace

LONDON, July 23.—(A.P.)—The London social season moved to a close last night with the second garden reception of debutantes by the King.

Seated under a silken canopy in the grounds of Buckingham Palace, His Majesty received a second group of smartly-gowned women. Presentation ceremonies yesterday were cut short by rain after half of the 500 waiting guests had been announced by the Lord Chamberlain. Among those presented yesterday were 11 Canadians.

Soon society leaders will leave for the country residences and Mayfair will lapse into its usual August siesta.

Rev. Dr. MacGregor's Original Call Is Exhibited

NEW GLASGOW, N.S., July 23 (C.P.)—A framed letter written by Rev. Dr. James MacGregor and the original call to the clergyman to take up his duties in Pictou County were exhibited at a meeting of descendants of the scholarly missionary who preached the first sermon in this district 150 years ago.

Mrs. Harold Oxley of Halifax, a great granddaughter of Dr. MacGregor, presided at the banquet and about 90 descendants from many parts of Canada and the United States were present.

The prized exhibits, both legible, are owned by Judge George Patterson and were made available for the evening by him.

REV. DR. MURPHY REVIEWS ADULT EDUCATION

Interesting Paper Traces History and Predicts Future of Movement in P.E.I.

At Tignish Wednesday the following paper was read by Rev. Jas. Murphy, D.D., Rector of St. Dunstan's University. The same paper was read at St. Peter's Bay rally by Rev. Dr. Ellsworth of the St. Dunstan's University staff:

Adult Education activities in P.E.I.:

"The adult education activities on Prince Edward Island during the past year, in as far as these activities were initiated and directed by St. Dunstan's College, were the first fruits of an attempt by the College to comply with what was practically a demand of the people of the province. At the conclusion of the afternoon session of the Rural-Parish Rally at St. Peter's last summer, a lively discussion of our rural problems brought forth the following resolution which was passed unanimously:

"Whereas the young men and young women residing in the rural parts of this province are handicapped after leaving school in continuing their education, and

Whereas some system of adult education in the form of parish study clubs would remedy this situation and provide a means whereby greater interest would be created in the further study of modern problems affecting the agricultural, economic and religious life of our country, and

Whereas such study clubs would, under proper direction and supervision, provide the facilities for this work, therefore Resolved that this meeting favor action of this nature and would respectfully request His Excellency, our Bishop, to adopt measures for the organization and promotion of such educational work throughout the diocese." A similar resolution was passed at the Rural-Parish Rally at Tignish.

"Acting on this resolution, His Excellency the Bishop turned to St. Dunstan's as to the logical center from which an adult education program should be initiated and its activities directed. Indirectly, therefore, from the people, directly from the Bishop, the College received a definite mandate to undertake the work, the results of the first tentative steps of which this paper is a brief review.

"May we say in passing that the members of the College Faculty were pleased to receive this command? They had long been convinced that the influence of our chief educational institution should extend beyond the boundaries of the College campus, that its activities should not be restricted by the limits of its own curriculum to the teaching of a limited number of subjects to a limited number of students, but should be directed also towards assisting all our people to understand and to solve intelligently their problems.

The Solution of the Problem

"But faced continuously by our own problems of maintaining a college on very limited finances, and of equipping professors to meet the ever increasing demands of higher standards, we were not in a position to undertake extension work earlier. Fortunately, when the people made their recommendations at St. Peter's last summer, Dr. Croteau had already become established as Carnegie Professor of Economics and Sociology at the two Colleges, and declared himself willing and eager to cooperate in an adult education movement.

"It is admitted that we have our peculiar problems, that are pressing in this province; and that the intelligent solution of these problems lies chiefly in educating the people to meet them with under-

Everybody is saving Smiles with Snapshots—get your Share

ONE KODAK—one man to press the button—one girl to smile. So often romance begins this way.

When the prints are ready—there's that smile again. Hard to forget it, when it's aimed right at you. "Only a snapshot"—but how many are worn next to the heart.

Take your Kodak in hand this week-end. Keep what it sees. Things live up when the snapshotting starts. Everyone's a little gayer.

And you bring back the picnic—the trip—the swimming party—in a form you can't forget.

Be prepared, take snapshots. The snapshots you'll want tomorrow you must take today. Kodaks as low as $5; Brownies from $1.25 . . . at your dealer's.

In Canada "Kodak" is the registered trade mark and sole property of Canadian Kodak Co., Limited, Toronto.

YOU NEED ONLY one baby for quintuplets and quite a lot of snapshot opportunities.

standing and optimism; in other words, that our immediate need is education.

"The great majority of people regard education as a sort of episode in a man's life, an episode that terminates when he has graduated from school of college or university. This notion is entirely erroneous, for, whether education be regarded from the point of view of earning a living, or of enjoying the better things of life, or what is most important of all, of saving one's soul, it must be a sustained, life-long process. Man is essentially a rational being. His purpose in life is his own perfection, the perfection of the whole man, physically, mentally and morally. To live a rational, normal life, therefore, he must be equipped to make the very best of his opportunities and to gain the most from his surroundings, or to move himself to other surroundings where his faculties may find a fuller expression and his potentialities a greater measure of development.

"Once he leaves school, he comes face to face with life, not as he imagined it to be, nor as he would, perhaps, like it to be, but as it is. His education, as a preparation for a future career, perhaps only vaguely defined, has come to an end, but as a means of getting all he can from life, of coping successfully with the ever recurring problems of the present, it is only beginning. In as much as his intellectual and moral growth falls to keep pace with his advance in years, in so much does he fall to live.

"Education must, therefore, continue beyond the schools, not intermittently and for a time, but continuously throughout life. It must now be voluntarily entered upon and continued under one's own initiative. It is no longer carried on in schools, under professors, but partly by individual study, and since man is a social being and most of his problems are social, by group study.

Study Clubs

"With these fundamental notions in mind, and with a knowledge of the results achieved elsewhere in the field of adult education, it was an easy matter to decide that the first step in the promotion of an adult education program was to stimulate the formation of study clubs.

"Accordingly, a pamphlet on study clubs was prepared and about five hundred copies were distributed. Requests for copies of the pamphlet came in from practically all sections of the province. To further stimulate interest in study group work, Dr. Croteau, through the courtesy of Colonel Rogers, gave four radio broadcasts on adult education over Station CFCY during the month of November. The response was immediate and encouraging. About three hundred requests for further information were received from nearly all sections of the province, from New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Quebec and United States, from Catholics and non-Catholics alike.

"Our difficulty then was to find material for the various study groups already established. We at once appealed to Carnegie Libraries. Miss Bateson, the Supervisor, responded with her characteristic enthusiasm. She and her staff, in as far as they were able, cooperated to find the material desired. The movement had now become so encouraging that a second series of broadcasts was arranged for the winter months under the capable management of Dr. Croteau.

Subjects of Practical Interest

"It was now thought desirable to develop subjects that would be of practical interest to the people. Ten broadcasts on Economics and Credit Unions were delivered in dialogue form by Dr. Croteau assisted by Professor Sullivan. In order that the cultural side might not be neglected, arrangements were made with Professor Blanchard to deliver six broadcasts on the history of Prince Edward Island. Favorable comments on these broadcasts were received from the Maritimes, Quebec and United States. Subsequently, literature on Economics and Credit Unions was sent out to those who requested it.

"Interest in Credit Unions became so keen that certain groups began to ask for legislation. Various Credit Union Acts were reviewed by Dr. Croteau with a view to determining a form that would be most suitable to this province. The local government was so favorably disposed that, at the last meeting of the Legislature, the Credit Union Society Act was passed. By this Act, Credit Unions were legalized for the province and a constitution and by-laws by which they are to be governed, were determined.

Survey of Progress

"During the month of February Dr. Croteau made a survey of the Study Clubs as a check-up on the progress being made. The results of this very encouraging survey were printed in pamphlet form and copies were distributed. Again, requests for more copies poured in.

"Visits were made to various centers, notably to Holy Redeemer Parish, Mt. Stewart, St. Peter's, Bedeque and Georgetown, where study groups were found to be very active. Altogether Dr. Croteau gave sixteen talks before study clubs and other groups. As an example of what is being done by particularly active groups, we cite Mt. Stewart, where, under the direction of Father McCormack, thirteen study clubs were seen in joint session. This group confined their study chiefly to Credit Unions. They already have a Credit Union in operation. The lively interest and intelligent activity of this group alone would have been sufficient to warrant a continuance of the work.

The Results

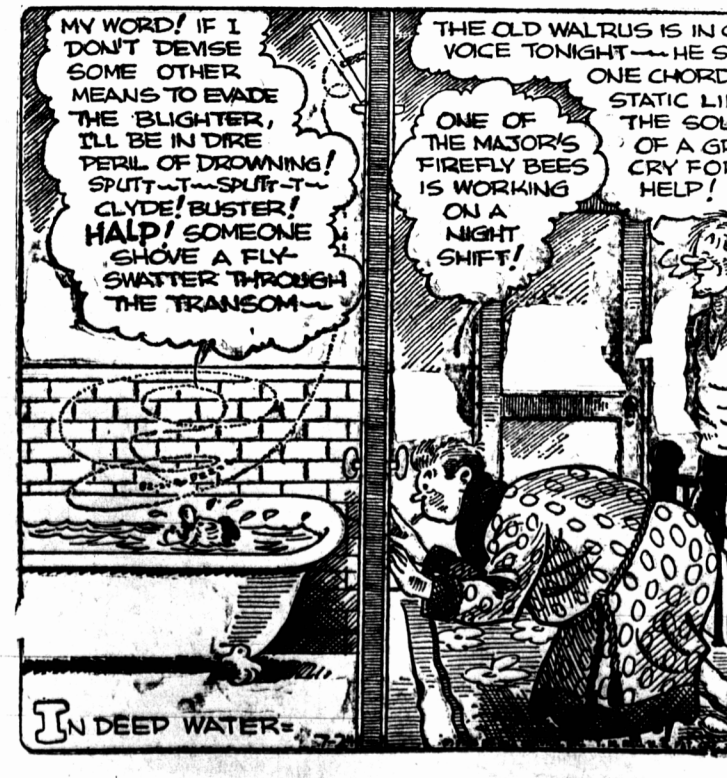

"The practical results already obtained by this and other particularly active groups were so encouraging that we began to plan a wider program for the future. Accordingly, we invited representative men of all denominations to meet at the College on the fourteenth of May, in order that, by our combined efforts, a provincial-wide program might be adopted for the coming year. All who attended that meeting were keenly interested, and all pledged themselves to work for the expansion of the movement to all the people of the province irrespective of creed or calling. An adult education committee was formed and, at a later meeting of that committee, a small working committee was appointed.

"This working committee is composed of the following: Mr. H. H. Shaw, Deputy Minister of Education; Mr. Walter Shaw, Deputy Minister of Agriculture; Miss Nora Bateson, Supervisor of the Carnegie Libraries, or her successor; J. T. Croteau, Carnegie Professor of Economics and Sociology at the two colleges, and Dr. J. A. Murphy, Rector of St. Dunstan's.

"On invitation of this committee, Mr. Harpel, of the Garden City Press, and Dr. Coady, of St. Francis Xavier University, Antigonish,
