

Orientation Blues

How about a definition of "Orientation" all ye Freshmen and Freshettes of this wild and wonderful community we call a University? According to a reliable Dictionary the aforesaid word should hit you (clink)as: the ability to locate oneself in one's environment with reference to time, place and people. Does anyone feel dislocated"?

I'm going to give the orientation chairman a hand and a whistle for the program he planned..... unfortunately he forgot a few minor details

Do you suppose a little razzing and a few laughs would dull the average persons mind so that he couldnt take part in a discussion?it is my opinion a little more mixing among Freshmen and upperclassmen would have erased the very human inhibitions we've all got in us. Not entirely, of course, but enough to get everyone talking and even yelling.

About those discussions... they were alright to a certain extent, but not too many of us came to University to rap about pollution, prejudice and Univeristies from way back when. Get the point?we've talked about these things before.

On Monday morning everyone knew a Frosh when they saw one. They were the pumpkins wandering around looking for the building where their particular class was. Guess they missed a few points of interest in that jog around the campus they called a tour. (if you were told to go to a Psych class in the Convent, where would you go?— sorry Tim)

Since I would rather not end this work of art on a sour note, I shall close by thanking the University President for his "Warm welcome and talk" last Thursday September 10. Hope to see more of you.

p.s. To be quite serious, this freshette thinks the upperclass men and women are good heads!

drapes and bedspreads, carpeted floors, convenient washrooms and ample storage area, not to mention the tasteful choice in toilet tissue.

However, as the days rolled on (Pardon the unintended pun of the afore mentioned toiletry conveniences) a number of annoying incidents were transacted which tried my ability to 'turn the other cheek'. The lighting was insufficient for the most part (the part which was to light the room), and the desks must have been built by a left-handed carpenter because us right-handers are faced (or should I say elbowed) with a minor barrier - the wall.

Then due to unexplained outside forces, I had to evacuate my room and move into another - which was nothing but a damned nuisance (the move, not the room)

This was the good news - things went downhill after that - the plugged toilets, Phone duty and main desk duty were further testimony to the invaluable training one received in residence.

So if you love being cut off from mankind and enjoy the wonders of primitive technology in your own dimly lit room, then apply to Bernadine Hermitage - Zip Code 36-24-36. Please include the wicks of two candles or one bunsen burner. Only those answering the skill testing question will be included.

Basics of Bernadine

Impressions usually come in two's: the first and the last-the latter being more important of the two. (Specifically when the two are being considered together).

Residentially speaking, (a Homey expression) I have been exposed to some of the marvels of modern man.

After a small 'mix-up', (which I overlooked) I discovered that I was in Bernadine and not Marion as I had been let to believe through correspondence from the university.

My first impression was one of unbelievable joy and foolish pride on being one of the chosen few. The decor was impeccable: matching
