IODE Provincial Chapter Arrange For Nov. Project

Members of the Provincial Chapter of the IODE voted on Saturday to hold a mammoth auction sale on November 14 at Parkdale Hall, if arrangements could be finalized.

The plan to hold the auction was finalized at the semi-annual meeting of the Provincial Chapter held on Saturday in Summerside at the Legion Home.

Mrs. L.A. MacDougall and Mrs. W.A. Smith were appointed co-conveners of the auction. It was decided at the meeting that members of all IODE Chapters in the province would contribute antiques and other articles and that the affair would be open to the public. Mrs. MacDougall and Mrs. Smith are working on final arrangements and will be announcing further details later in the week.

The meeting was chaired by the provincial president, Miss Wanda Wyatt and reports were heard from various committee conveners.

Marjorie Stewart, educational secretary, reported on the educational work of the chapter and told members that a plan to have rural school children taken into Charlottetown for tours of the Art Gallery at the Confederation Centre was being looked into. Miss Stewart said that the gallery provided wonderful opportunities for art education and that it would be a worthwhile project if the IODE could make these tours available to rural youngsters.

Mrs. Ronald Clark, services at home and abroad secretary, told members that the fall shipment of clothing would be sent overseas in November and asked each chapter to try and have some articles ready for the box.

Reports were also heard from the public relations secretary, Mrs. J.A. Bond and the Echoes secretary, Mrs. Wilfred Farrell.

A committee with representatives of all seven Island chapters was formed to make early arrangements and inquiries concerning the IODE's 1965 Red Glove Revue which will be held next fall.

A report was heard from a committee whose members are Miss Wyatt, Mrs. E.M. Phillips, Mrs Arthur Roper and Mrs. Tom Davies, regarding changes in the by-laws of the Provincial Chapter. Their report was accepted by the meeting and the revised by-laws were forwarded to the National Chapter for their approval.

Discussion also took place regarding an appropriate gift from the Provincial Chapter for the Fathers of Confederation Memorial Building and a committee was appointed to discuss this matter with officials of the building.

Following the meeting tea was served by members of the Summerside Chapters.

MR. AND MRS. NORMAN HALL

Autumn Flowers Decorate Church At Hunter's River

The autumn wedding of Phyllis Katherine Craswell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel Craswell of Hunter's River and Norman Gwilliam Hall, son of Rev. and Mrs. E. F. Hall of Sept - Iles, Que. took place in the Hunter's River United Church with Rev. A. C. Powell officiating, assisted by the groom's father.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, came down the aisle to the hymn "Praise My Soul the King of Heaven" sung by the groom's brother David Hall accompanied by his wife, Margaret. During the signing of the register, Mr. Hall sang "The Wedding Hymn" by Handel

For the double ring ceremony, the church was decorated in fall tones of yellow and bronze with baskets of gladioli and dahlias. The bride was wearing a floor length gown of white peau - de - soie enriched with sprays of Guipure lace applique. The long sleeves tapered to lily points at the wrists. A row of miniature front bows caught the inverted pleat of the full skirt, which ended in a chapel train. Her headdress of two rosettes held a bouffant veil decorated with lace appliques matching that of the gown. She carried a cascade of yellow roses, stephanotis and ivy.

Edith Glover, maid of honour and Marilyn Hall, sister of the groom wore identical full-length gowns of Montego blue peau - de - soie designed on Empire lines with a panel dropping from a back bow. A matching head piece of two-tiered veiling was held in place by organza flowers. They carried bouquets of yellow and white carnations.

The best man was William Hambly, and Boyd Weeks, brother-in-law of the bride and David Sellar ushered.

The bride's mother was wearing a crepe dress of dusty pink with matching lace jacket and feather hat. She wore a white carnation corsage.

For the mother of the groom she chose a two piece wool outfit of deep peacock blue trimmed with a fur collar. Her corsage was of white carnations.

The reception was held at Shining Waters Lodge, Cavendish. C. B. Matheson proposed the toast to the bride. Miss Alan MacKay was in charge of the guest book.

For a honeymoon to the New England States, the bride travelled in a knitted sheath of robin - egg blue and a matching full - length coat, gold accessories and a white carnation corsage.

The newlyweds reside in Halifax where the groom is a student and the bride is on the staff of the medical clinic at Dalhousie University.

MARY HAWORTH

Attend Christmas Bash, Divorcee Advises Wives

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: With reference to SY, whose husband's annual Christmas office - partying is a problem to her, since six years ago when he struck up an office romance with a "sweet young thing" that still goes on —

May I say, my ex - husband did the same thing, beginning only six months after our honeymoon.

Instead of staying home, as I foolishly did, working up a sense of injury that eventually caused divorce, I should have gone with him, invited or not invited, and flirted with other men at the party.

You didn't suggest psychological help for SY (as you often do). In her case, it wouldn't hurt a bit. It did help me. But too late. C. A.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: apropos your Correspondent SY, whose husband usually stays out until 5 a.m. with a girl co - worker, celebrating the annual "office Christmas party," which they're looking forward to again this year—what a traversty on Christmas!

Christmas should at least have a familial feeling, if not a spiritual character.

Isn't it ironic that under the guise of "Christmas celebrations" each year, so many people go to excesses in self - indulgence. And this at the very time when they should be really practising the authentic Christmas spirit of thinking of others — especially of their own families! L. G.

DEAR CORRESPONDENTS: Thanks for these further reflections on SY's problem, which may help her to see it in better perspective, and thus add to her self - possession in coping.

I was so engrossed in putting ground under her feet, figuratively, and shoring - up her capacity to think straight about the moral bankruptcy of her husband's Christmas routine, that I failed to touch on the considerations you've supplied. M. H.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a girl age 13½, a freshman in high school. My problem is that my mother won't let me wear mascara to school, as my friends do.

She insists that make - up isn't suitable for school girls, while I maintain that it is entirely appropriate. I generally don't allow my opinions to be swayed very much by public opinion, being somewhat of an individualist in my thinking.

However, I feel (as my friends do) that mascara, properly applied, definitely improves one's appearance. I would appreciate your viewpoint. R. E.

Dear R. E.: Your stationery, penmanship, use of language and residential address all suggest a gentlefolk type of background. Doutless your mother was reared in the lady-tradition (or married into it) and aspires to transmit this precious heritage to you.

According to the lady - traditions, it is fiercely vulgar (the classic case of gilding the lily) for a school girl your age (like a rose in bud) to use mascara or lipstick, or to smoke.

Mascara is for older women, to "touch up" tired eyes, actually. Hence on young girls it gives them a wizened, hedifened look, as if they were lifeworn prematurely.

Better use a good eyebrow brush and a lash curler, plus occasional applications of a suitable cosmetic cream to enchance the feathery sheen, while also getting plenty of sleep, systematically, if you really want to stand out in a crowd as the girl with the naturally beautiful eyes. M.H.

Mary Haworth Counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Guardian.

Apples, Dates 'Dated' In Deep-Dish Dandy Pie

MUCH of this year's huge apple crop all over the country is already harvested.

The cool nights and warm sunny days have produced many apples of unique flavor.

These varieties would be difficult and expensive to obtain out of season were it not for modern "Controlled Atmosphere" storage plants. In these plants, a constant temperature of 37 degrees F. and an atmospheric content of 3 per cent oxygen and 5 per cent carbon dioxide preserve the apples at the peak of their flavor.

Modern "Controlled Atmosphere" storage makes a year-round supply of apples possible for use by producers. "Controlled Atmosphere" storage helps to safeguard top quality, enables the crisp, juicy, tangy apples to retain their taste and freshness

Measurements level; recipes for 6

DEEP - DISH APPLE-DATE PIE

6 tart apples
1 c. pitted dates, sliced
½ c. granulated sugar
½ c. firm - packed brown sugar
½ tsp. ground nutmeg
1 medium lemon, grated peel

1 medium orange, grated peel
3 tbsp. butter or margarine
Homemade pastry for a 1-crust pie or use a mix

Peel and core apples; cut into eighths. Arrange apple slices in buttered 1½ qt. baking dish. Top with half the dates. Repeat.

Combine sugars, nutmeg, grated peels; strew over top; dot with butter.

Top with square of pastry rolled ⅛ scant ¼ inch thick, trimming it down over top edge of baking dish. Cut pastry in 3 places for steam - escape.

Bake about 45 min. in hot oven, 425 degrees F., or until apples are soft when tested through one of the slits cut in the pastry.

Serve warm, cut in squares, with whipped or pouring cream.

Note: For a change, try raisins or tenderized figs instead of dates.

TOMORROW'S NEW HAMPSHIRE OVEN DINNER
Grapefruit Halves or Sections
Pork Chop-Potato-Onion Bake
Baker Squares Peeled Pumpkin
Deep - Dish Apple-Date Pie
Coffee or Tea Milk

ONION - POTATO BAKE

6 peeled half - boiled medium potatoes, sliced ½" thick
1½ c. sliced peeled mild onion
3 tbsp. flour, plain enriched or "Instant"
1 tsp. ground sage
1½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
6 pork chops, any cut, a scant ¾" thick
3 c. heated milk (whole or skim)

Butter 2-qt. low baking dish that can go - to - table. In it, arrange alternate layers of potato and onion dusted with flour, sage, salt and pepper mixed.

Brown pork chops on one side. Arrange atop vegetable layers with a little space between chops. Pour in milk; cover. Bake 1½ hrs. at 350 degrees F.

THE CHEF COMMENTS ON APPLE VARIETIES

McINTOSH: Cooked with the skins on, when sieved make a colorful and tasty sauce, besides being one of the best varieties for eating.

CORTLAND: Noted as a cooking apple, particularly for baking; it is the best for Waldorf Salad - type dishes because the white apple meat does not discolor quickly.

DELICIOUS: Both yellow and red are excellent eating apples and highly regarded for baking quality.

BALDWIN: A real old standby variety, an all - purpose apple for eating, baking, and tops for traditional apple pies.

There are many other varieties which may be favorites with many people. Among them are SHEEPNOSE, an old-timer for eating; GRAVENSTEIN, an early variety, good for pies; GREENINGS, excellent for baking or coddled apples; NORTHERN SPY, for eating, pies and apple cakes.

ELLEN'S DIARY

A Smile Costs So Little But Enriches The Receiver

"Listen to her purr" Peter observed this afternoon of one of the kittens cuddles down beside Tabby in a nook of verandah. "She has a smile on her face" he smiled happily.

"Why, so she has — a kitten's smile!" we chuckled... And the gray of the sky brightened considerably, and we fancied there were signs of the sun smiling through. Smiles are infectious things. They reach out, in pretty eddies to encircle all about.

One writes: "A friend of ours remarks about the power of a smile, and relates an observation of his own, made on a bus the other day. A man looking out the window saw something that interested him. He was smiling as he turned away, and he continued to smile. People sitting near him, saw him smile and re - acted. The girl across the aisle dimpled. The young fellow and girl in the next seat suddenly lowered voices to a whisper, smiled, the girl blushing prettily. The little man who had been shopping for his wife, and was loaded with bundles did his best to look haughty and commanded an air of quiet dignity. But his eyes belied this. They held glints of good cheer. The smiling man noticed none of these things, and smiled on at the recollection of what he had seen through the bus window."

Recently, a good friend sent us this fine collping for our scrapbook: "A smile costs nothing, but gives much. It enrich those who receive, without making poorer those who give. It takes but a moment, but the memory of it sometimes lasts forever. A smile creates happiness in the home, fosters goodwill in business, and is the countersign of friendship. It brings rest to the weary, cheer to the discouraged, sunshine to the sad, and is nature's best antidote for trouble. Yet it can't be bought, begged, borrowed or stolen, for it is something that is of no value to anyone until it is given away. Some people are too tired to give you a smile. Give them one of yours, as none needs a smile so much as he who has none to give!"

The plowing continues to be our fieldwork. "There's more to it than that, these times — there's another angle" we overheard Mack remark to his grandfather today. "It's not only how well I can do it, but he added with a grin, "how fast I can get it done!"

A quiet day—this, the air warm and moist. And over the valley, seemingly hanging so low we wondered how the company of starlings on the road to summery haunts, stopping briefly in the front meadow, could find an air-route through the cloud!

Now the night's shadows have fallen. Perhaps, the thought comes, if we should chance to awaken in the wee sma' hours we shall see moonlight patterning the walls. But not yet. And where is the star gone, we were used to seeing away to the east, the same that when wake ful has kept us company, and grown hazy, as sooner or later, we found sleep's magic again in our pillow?

Until tomorrow — Diary — Good - night....

MRS. HERBERT E. RAMSAY

Resident Of Darnley, P.E.I. Celebrates 91st Birthday

Mrs. Herbert E. Ramsay, of Darnley, today celebrates her 91st birthday Wednesday, October 28th.

The former Lillie Ann Cousins Mrs. Ramsay was born in 1873 at Burlington the daughter of Alexander and Margaret Cousins.

The last surviving member of the Cousins family, she was married to Herbert Ramsay July 9, 1907 at her home in Burlington by Rev. A.D. Sterling

Hard work and good neighbours are the secret of her longevity, says Mrs. Ramsay. Three years ago she developed arthritis which made her a semi-invalid, but she is able to get up her wheel chair once or twice a week. She reads without glasses, does some sewing and writes letters.

Mrs. Ramsay enjoys social visits by her friends. She has one daughter (Margaret), Mrs. Arthur MacKay, Darnley, with whom she resides. Before that she and her late husband lived in Malpeque.

She has also three grandchildren, Mrs. Clair Profitt, Burlington, who made the birthday cake she is holding; Sheila, Mrs. Paul Jacques, Sidney, N.S. and George, a teacher at Kensington Regional High School; and two great grandchildren, Tracy Jacques and Kevin Profitt.

YORK

Mrs. Harald Taylor has returned to her home after visiting her parents in Hopewell, N.S.

York is a busy region this fall as some are digging potatoes, cutting grain and ploughing.

Prince Philip Is Brilliant In Mexico Polo

MEXICO CITY (Reuters) — Prince Philip won a polo match for his team Monday by scoring two goals in rapid succession in the last chukker.

Playing a brilliant game in a fast-moving match, the prince broke a tie which had held the score at 7-7 in the fifth chukker and in sixth drove the ball through the goal against determined opposition, leaving the final score 9-7.

As in Saturday's match at the tree-lined field eight miles from the capital, all the other players were Mexicans.

One of the two referees was the Maharaja of Jaipur who is here for talks with the Mexican tourist institute.

It was a popular win for Philip who was surrounded by many of the 1,300 spectators as he was presented with an inscribed silver salver, bearing the symbol of the Aztec Sun, commemorating his two games with the Polo Association of Mexico.
