CONTRACT BRIDGE

By B. JAY BECKER

FAMOUS HANDS

After playing a club to the queen she led another heart, East winning with the ace. Back came spade, declarer aying low, and West's ten forced the ace. A diamond was led from dummy and ruffed, after which the king of hearts was cashed.

Seven tricks had been played. West by this time was down to Q-2 of spades, queen of diamonds, and J-10-7 of clubs.

Mrs. Gardner now led the ten of hearts and West had to find a discard. She couldn't afford a diamond or a club discard and was therefore compelled to discard the deuce of spades.

East took the heart ten with the queen and returned a spade. Mrs. Gardner rejected the possible finesse, playing the king, caught West's queen, and made five hearts for what looked like a winning score.

But when the hand was played at the other table, the result was duplicated. Mrs. Peggy Solomon, of Philadelphia, held the South hand and reached four hearts on identical bidding.

Again the king of diamonds was opened and again the five of hearts won the second trick. The same excellent series of plays took place and Mrs. Solomon also made eleven tricks to bring about a tie on the deal.

So we have a sample of the fine bridge that's played in the women's team championship. No wonder I've never won the event!
