ing industry," says the Rootes venture, "took Scotland into production of agricultural machinery, clocks a d scores of other products. The automobile industry moved in after Colville's Ltd., a steel company, had invested $300,000,000 in a strip mill and other improvements.

INDUSTRY GROVS
"Since 1950 an investment of some $150,000,000 has transformed Scotland's chemical industry. Most of it has been spent at Grangemouth, where a chemical complex includes a refinery and a range of associated petrochemical works.
