Site Of Viking Settlement Believed Found In Nfld.

OTTAWA (CP) — Norwegian explorer Helge Ingstad said here it is "overwhelmingly likely" that the Vikings who discovered North America about the year 1000 built a settlement at L'Anse aux Meadows on the northern tip of Newfoundland.

He also told a press conference there is a possibility that further Viking sites will be discovered in future explorations along the coasts of Newfoundland and Labrador.

Dr Ingstad said the Vikings sailed from their settlements in western Greenland to Baffin Island, which they probably called Helluland. They then followed the coast of Labrador, presumably their Markland, south to the northern tip of Newfoundland which they called Vinland.

Dr Ingstad said his expedition this year excavated eight sites at L'Anse aux Meadows with remains of sod walls and a smithy.

One of the house sites was some 60 feet long and 45 feet wide with a large hall connected with four rooms. The hall was some 48 feet in length, about the same size as the hall in Leif Eriksen's Greenland home. In the centre of the hall there was a long fire and ember pit of the same type built in Greenland.

"Of particular interest is the smithy with an anvil of stone," he said. "In the smithy we found many hundred pieces of iron and slag. Close to the smithy there was a large hole in the ground where charcoal had been made.

"It seems clear that the people living there had made iron from bog iron—a rather complicated process well known to the Vikings but unknown to Indians and Eskimos. In one of the house sites we found a piece of bronze."

Dr Ingstad said carbon dating tests have been made on seven samples taken from the house sites. They all were grouped around the year 1000, about the time Eriksen and other Norsemen, according to Icelandic sagas, sailed from Greenland to America and built homes.

"We have made a number of tests and we shall have to wait some time before the different scientists have worked up all their material," he said.

SAYS FACTS STRONG

"The facts we already have, however, are so strong that I consider it overwhelmingly likely that the houses at L'Anse aux Meadows were built and lived in by the Vikings."

Dr. Ingstad said among the items found in the house sites were iron nails similar to those used by the Vikings in the year 1000. He said they could not have been made by Eskimos or Indians.

The Norwegian explorer now is on his way home to Norway. He said he is not sure that he will be able to continue his exploration work next spring, stating this will depend on funds and organization.

The Newfoundland government has declared his discovery an historic site and now is erecting wooden shelters to protect it.

O'Leary Is Sharply Critical In Maiden Speech In Senate

OTTAWA (CP)— Senator M. Grattan O'Leary has accused the British government of "cynically disregarding" the vital trade interests of the Commonwealth in his maiden address in the Senate.

Often called the last thundering editor in Canada, the new senator let fly with verbal bolts at Liberals, businessmen, professionals and British and Canadian newspapers.

The outspoken president of the Ottawa Journal said he is convinced that Britain will join the European Economic Community (Common Market) and that Canadian exports to Britain will be seriously affected as a result.

British cabinet ministers had promised "again and again" to safeguard Canada's "vital interests" but now their spirit was "EEC or bust."

Referring to the recent British Conservative party conference in Wales, Senator O'Leary said:

"Look at the communique issued by the prime ministers' conference, and compare that with the speeches made in Wales the other day.

"If that is not an exercise in cynicism then I do not know what it is."

Prime Minister Macmillan had pledged that Britain would not join the Common Market if there was a choice between the Commonwealth and the Common Market.

"He is not talking exactly that way now, but that is the pledge he gave.

POLITICAL INSTRUMENT

"The Common Market is primarily a political instrument seeking political union in Europe." If Britain joined, it would be a retreat from greatness.

Senator O'Leary, 73 and a veteran behind-the-scenes architect of Conservative policy, said Prime Minister Diefenbaker was merely trying to protect Canada's economic interests at the London conference last month.

But Mr. Diefenbaker had been rewarded with attempts to "stab him in the back" in Canada and "scurrilous attacks" in British Sunday newspapers.

"What was happening over here while Mr. Diefenbaker was in London? Over here an effort was made to stab Mr. Diefenbaker in the back. Everybody knows that."

Without referring to Liberal Leader Pearson by name, he said the opposition leader has adopted the policy that Canadian interests and jobs should be left in the hands of "bureaucrats" in London and Brussels.

Senator O'Leary said the present political instability in Canada is due largely to the decline of the two-party system and constant attacks on public figures.

He said leaders of the professions and captains of industry are setting a bad example by constantly decrying the actions of politicians, while refusing to take part in politics.

This situation did not exist in the United States and the two-party system there had outlasted all splinter groups.

He said 90 out of Canada's 100-odd daily newspapers probably would call themselves independent. In fact they were neutral and "afraid to stand up and be counted" on politics.

Winner Of VC Named To Board

OTTAWA (CP)—Lt.-Col. C. C. I. Meritt, 53, of Vancouver, a holder of the Victoria Cross, is among four men appointed to the Canadian Services Colleges Advisory Board, the defence department has announced.

The others are Jean L. Corneille, professor at l'Ecole Polytechnique, Montreal; A. G. C. Whalley, professor of English at Queen's University, Kingston; and William Y. Smith, professor of economics and political science at the University of New Brunswick, Fredericton.

Opening lead—queen of clubs.

This hand was played in a tournament in Lebanon last year by the Swiss star Bernasconi.

He got to six spades and West led the queen of clubs. The hand looks impossible to make, and, no doubt, Bernasconi regretted having reached a slam when he saw the dummy, but this did not stop him from making it.

He ruffed the club in dummy and played a heart to the jack. West took the king and decided to return a trump. Bernasconi won it in his hand with the king, crossed to the ten of spades, and played a heart and finessed the ten.

The finesse succeeding, he cashed the ace of hearts, discarding a diamond, led the ace and another spade, and that brought about this position:

	North
	♠ Q
	♥ K986
West		East
♦ Q4		♦ 9
♣ J109		♣ 7653
	South
	♥ A75
	♦ K

He now led the queen of spades from dummy and East had to find a discard. He couldn't discard a diamond, which would automatically have given Bernasconi the rest of the tricks.

Nor could he spare a heart or a club, because either of these discards would permit South to shed a diamond and then cash a trick in whichever suit East discarded.

Thus, if East discarded the queen of hearts on the queen of spades, South would discard a diamond, play a diamond to the ace, and cash the five of hearts.

This, in turn, would again squeeze a vital card out of East's hand.

Similarly, if East discarded the ace of clubs on the queen of spades, he would run into the same difficulty. There was no escape from the squeeze position.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X B
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three Ln X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
