Wheat And Iron Ore Are High In Economy

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Wheat and iron ore gave renewed reminders last week of their place in Canada's varied economy.

Searle Grain Co. Ltd., predicted a possible western wheat crop of 500,000,000 bushels compared with only 240,000,000 bushels last year and 470,0,- in 1960.

The indications of bumper wheat are all the more welcome in that, following last year's crop failure, fears were widely expressed that the West might be embarked upon another drought period, and that we wouldn't have enough supplies to meet available markets

At that time the Searle Company, as a note of hope in an otherwise somewhat apprehensive analysis, commented: "Nature has a way of confounding the experts." Apparently that is just what nature has done this

On the iron-ore front came confirmation that the entire $235,00,000 project at Wabush Lake, in Newfoundland's Labrador, will go forward.

Financing arrangements have been completed for the whole project, which is already under way. It is a joint effort by 10 iron and steel companies, of which five are American, two German, one Italian and two Canadian. The Canadian companies are Steel Company of Canada Ltd. and Dominion Foundries and Steel Ltd., both of Hamilton.

Trade Minister Hees announces that response has been so good to the national industria expansion conference, scheduled for Sept. 7, that it will be moved to larger quarters. Originally planned for the railway committee room of the House of Commons, it now will be held in the convention hall of the Chateau Laurier Hotel.

Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba announced that an oil exploraton permit has been granted for a petroleum search along the province's Hudson Bay shore. The group getting the permit is headed by Franc R. Joubin, Canadian geologist known for his uranium discoveries in Northern Ontario.

Along with these generally cheering developments came warning that we are still deep in the woods in our international payments problem.

The warning came from Prof. John L. McDougall, professor of Commerce at Queen's University School of Business. In a talk with Toronto business writers he expressed fear that the Canadian public will be too easily lulled into a sense of security.

Prof. McDougall feels that the chief result of the June 24 austerity program is to buy us time and, he added: "The question is, will we use it wisely?" He sees the possibility of a return to 11-per-cent unemploy ment and is apprehensive that the government, under political pressure, may try to find money solutions, which, he states, would worsen the basic situation and probably bring on a new crisis.

Bureau of Statistics reports included:

Retail sales in the first half of the year were $8,351,314,000, up 5.3 per cent from the corresponding period last year. June sales were $1,554,145,000, up 3.8 per cent from June last year.

Steel ingot production in the week ended Aug. 18 was 147,969 tons, compared with 139,507 in the preceding week and 128,868 in the corresponding week last year.

Production of crude petroleum in the five months, January - May, totalled 102,785,906 barrels of 35 gallons each, compared with 86,168,939 a year ago.

Manufacturers shipments in the first six months totalled $12,559,600,000 up 9.6 per cent from June last year, and down 1.2 per cent from May.

Births in the seven months January - July totalled 278,271 compared with 276,229 a year ago. July births totalled 42,487 compared with 38,979 in July, 1961.

SCOTTISH PIPERS ANNOYED AT IKE

LONDON (Reuters)—Eighteen Scottish pipers are reported to have been annoyed with Dwight D. Eisenhower because he neglected to give them the traditional dram of whisky after a recent dinner concert.

The People, a Sunday newspaper, says the pipers played for four hours during the former U.S. president's dinner at his Scottish home, Culzean Castle, in Ayrshire.

The newspaper said Eisenhower gave the pipers a bundle of signed photographs of himself.

"But a photograph is no substitute for the 'water of life' to a thirsty piper."

They tore the photographs up and "as they marched out the 18 thirsty and angry pipers struck up the traditional tune 'the drunken piper" in protest," the paper said.

BRISTOL

Mr. and Mrs. Terrance Gallant and three children have arrived from Boston, to spend a vacation with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eldershaw in the village; and around their old home in St. Charles.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Gelderd Boston, Mass., and Mrs. Henning were visitors here recently. They were guests of Mrs. Amy Gelderd.

Other visitors to the village include Norma J. Bennett, North Lake, guest of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Squires; and Miss Corinne Leitt from Rexton and David Gallant from the city.

Opening lead — eight of diamonds.

Bad bidding will sometimes produce good results, as witness this hand where South got to six spades.

South was clearly right to investigate the possibility of a slam when his spade response drew an immediate raise to two spades. North might easily have had a hand which would make six spades a sound contract.

South therefore bid three hearts, planning to stop at game if North replied three spades, but when North jumped (unjustifiably) to four spades, South carried on to six. If North had had, say, a club more and a heart less, he would have had the proper valu[illegible] four spade bid.

West led the [illegible] East won with the ace. Suspecting the lead might be a singleton, East returned a diamond. It was a fatal error, as East later discovered to his sorrow.

Given a chance, South took full advantage of the opportunity. He took the diamond with the king, drew two rounds of trumps, ending in dummy, and ruffed the nine of diamonds, hoping the queen would fall.

When it didn't, South drew three more rounds of trumps, and that produced this position:

Declarer now cashed three club tricks. On the third club East couldn't afford to part with the queen of diamonds, so he discarded the queen of hearts. South thereupon made the last two tricks with the A-J of hearts to score the slam.

The outcome would have been different if East had returned the king of hearts at trick two. The squeeze would not have operated, because the heart return would have broken an important line of communication between declarer's hand and dummy.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
