Festivities, Coronation Set For Souris Regional High

SOURIS — The third annual coronation ceremony at Souris Regional High School here is scheduled for Friday night. An elaborate program will be launched by a torch parade through the town. It will start at the school at 7:30 and will include members of the fire department, convalescing carrying the candidates for king and queen, last year's king and queen, Robert Pierce and Wanda Burke, and marching students of the school, the boys carrying lighted torches.

Mr. Dielenbaker said the present case bears a "strange resemblance" to the Banks affair. He said he had never heard of such revelations as those made by Mr. Nielsen since he entered Parliament 24 years ago.

Labor Minister MacEachen said in the Commons he would have his departmental files searched for any Norris commission documents requested by Mr. Douglas.

One could have heard a pin drop on the carpeted aisle of the chamber when Mr. Douglas posed his question about possible payments by Banks to Mr. Tremblay's former executive assistant.

Immediately, the realization seemed to flash through the Commons and the galleries that there might be a connection between the Banks case and the charges leveled by Mr. Nielsen against Denis.

The afternoon started with Mr. Rouleau's statement, a surly question period in which price enough all by itself.

Mr. Favreau's announcement on the inquiry followed. Then came opposition blais.

Mr. Pearson confirmed this and also said Mr. Favreau did not inform him about the case until Sunday.

Rivard was arrested in Montreal June 19 at the request of U.S. authorities. A hearing for extradition to the United States was held in September and requests for bail were put forward at that time. The case is still before the courts and Rivard remains in jail in Montreal.

In September, the RCMP made a report to Mr. Favreau on the allegations of bribery and coercion. Denis, 31 a native of Joliette, Que. later left his job as executive assistant to Mr.

Paper Drops Day, Increases Price

The change to five times a week coincides with an increase in the single-copy price to 10 cents from seven. The paper cited "ever-increasing production costs."

The city's other daily, the Evening Telegram, discontinued Saturday editions several years ago when a Saturday-closing law went into effect in St. John's stores and offices.

After that there was the question period in which the opposition hurled sarcasm and cat-calls at the government benches as well as questions.
