Britain To Put U. S. Production Methods Into Use

LONDON, (Reuters) — After years of gathering reports on efficient United States production methods, Britain finally is going to put these ideas into widespread practice.
The "good word" will be spread by the more than 900 British workers and industrialists who visited the U.S. under the auspices of the Anglo-American productivity council.
Many U.S. methods have already been introduced into individual British factories, but large-scale application has not yet been tried.
The council said Wednesday that the first step in the campaign will be a conference March 19, at which the 900 "experts" will thrash out ways of adopting the U.S. methods which impressed them.
Groups of the experts then will be sent to factories throughout the country, emphasizing the "human factor" in production.
Many of the teams reported the American will work largely by responsibility to their U. S. output. But mechanization was given as the main factor responsible for higher rate of individual output in the U.S.

Abitibi Company Advises Increase In Newsprint Price

TORONTO, (CP)—Abitibi Power and Paper Co., Ltd., advised its Canadian customers Wednesday of an increase of $10 a ton in the price of newsprint, effective April 1.

This will put into effect an increase originally announced last November for Jan. 2, but which, in effect, was not changed.

Action by Abitibi, big Ontario producer, follows announcement of similar action by Province of Quebec producers.

Under the increase, the basic price of newsprint in Canada will be $122 a ton, but with variations below and above that figure in various parts of Canada.

A 10-per-cent sales tax on newsprint was removed in the federal budget Feb. 19, so that, from April 1, the cost of newsprint to Canadian consumers, chiefly newspaper publishers, will be about the same as it has been for some time.

A $10-a-ton increase was put into effect last June for Canadian newsprint in the United States where the price is $126 a ton, delivered in New York.

Confirm Route Of Summerside, Bedeque Highway

Elimination of the sharp corner at Bedeque will permit the proposed new highway from Summerside to connect with the Trans Canada Highway in a straight line. This will be done through the co-operation of Mr. E. H. Strong, Summerside, who owns a home at the former turn. He has agreed to move the house to allow the highway to go through.

The highway will go directly through Bedeque and cross the present fields to Hogg's Corner on the Middleton Road. A new bridge will be erected across the Dunk River to by-pass Ross' Corner, but the old highway will then be followed into Bedeque, according to information received from Premier J. Walter Jones last night, confirming the route as previously published in the Guardian.

After leaving Bedeque the road will follow the Middleton Road to the intersection of the Arnett Road and on to the union with the Trans Canada Highway near Albany. It is expected that much of the preparatory work will be gone on the new route this summer.

Views Conflict On Censorship Of Publications

OTTAWA, (CP) — Conflicting views on government censorship of publications were expressed Wednesday before a Senate committee investigating distribution and sale of salacious literature.

The Montreal diocesan committee of Catholic Action suggested formation of a censorship board composed of government and church officials, parents and educators. Similar suggestions were made by previous hearings by the Catholic Women's League and other groups.

Opposition to this form of censorship was expressed by the Periodical Distributors of Canada, an organization of 55 independent magazine and book distributors.

Victor Cartier of Montreal, president of the Catholic Action diocesan permanent censorship board suggested that it be given "flexible and very extensive judicial powers to investigate and enforce its rulings.

"The censorship bureau can detect evil at its source and act without the need for procedure and complaints. It can be a preventative rather than a cure."

J. D. Geller of Windsor, Ont., president of the Periodical Distributors of Canada, said the organization opposes censorship on principle.

He said distributors are as anxious as others to keep indecent publications from children's hands. But in any action taken to do this, the distributor should not be made the censor. The publisher should be responsible for the contents of a book or magazine.

Charges Wholesale Dismissal Of N. B. Veterans From Jobs

FREDERICTON, (CP) — Charges of "wholesale slaughter" of war veterans in job dismissals since the change of government in last September's provincial election were made in the New Brunswick legislature Wednesday by Liberal opposition members.

The debate started when Hon. W. J. West, attorney-general in the Progressive Conservative government, moved the establishment of a new House committee on veterans' affairs. W. J. Gallant (L-Norumberland) asked if veterans' preference would be ignored by "the bully boys of the Tory patronage committee."

Similar charges came from the opposition financial critic, J. E. Connolly (L-Glochester) when he rose to continue the budget debate. In some instances, he said, the government has ruthlessly discharged veterans, who were good and faithful employees, for the sole reason they were appointees of a former administration.

Hon. Roger Pichette, minister of industry and development, said there has been no "wholesale slaughter" of veterans since the election. Hon. Norman Buchanan, minister of lands and mines, said the number of veteran employees in his department had increased by 20 per cent since the election.
