NEW HIGH SCHOOL CREDIT TO CAPITAL OF PRINCE COUNTY

Province Wide Interest Centres In Formal Opening Of Institution Tonight.

Of widespread interest is the official reopening of the Summerside High School and Academy which takes place this evening under the patronage of His Honour Lieutenant Governor DeBlas. A splendid program commencing at 7:30 sharp, has been arranged consisting of short addresses by the following: Dr. E. T. Tanton, chairman Board of School Trustees; His Worship B. W. Robinson, representing the town of Summerside; Honourable Thane A. Campbell, Premier of the Province; Honourable Mark McGuigan, Minister of Education; Mr. H. H. Shaw, Superintendent of Education; Dr. W. J. P. McMillan, ex-Minister of Education and Mr. C. B. Jelly, Principal of Summerside High School.

This will be followed by an entertainment by the pupils of the school. Arrangements have been made for an inspection of the school and academy following the program.

The Summerside High School, originally known as the Davies School was constructed in 1878, the funds being raised mainly by private subscriptions among the citizens of the town, the last being the late Mr. Nell McLeod, K. C. whose incumbency ran from 1878 to 1894. His successor was the late W. D. McIntyre, followed in the following order by R. H. Campbell, Claude V. Bent, Robert Duncan, Hammond Johnston, George H. Campbell, Stanley K. Donalds and the present incumbent, Mr. C. B. Jelly.

For many years the two primary grades were taught in other buildings in the town, the last being the old Eastern and Western Schools. In 1915 the Summerside schools were consolidated into one unit and the Davies School enlarged to accommodate all the pupils.

In 1932 the school was again enlarged and a new assembly hall built in connection with the school. At the same time Grades 11 and 12 were added, those grades being known as the Summerside Academy which Miss Georgie McLean, M.A., has been the efficient principal.

On June 14, 1935 occurred the disastrous fire which totally destroyed the old Davies School and the 1915 addition, leaving only the 1932 addition.

THE NEW BUILDING

The building which has recently been completed was constructed under the supervision of Mr. Albert Baker, the Architect being Mr. J. M. Hunter.

The Academy and High School is situated at the north of Summer Street and gives a very fine appearance. The completed building is about 200 feet long and 115 feet wide. The old section has been practically rebuilt and has been modernized throughout. In this section a school library and a Teachers' Consulting room have been provided. The Academy and High School combined has a total of 26 class rooms. The new Academy covers an area of 115 by 62 1-2 feet. The section destroyed by fire was 78 by 50 feet.

The Academy has ten class rooms including a chemistry laboratory and a physics laboratory and lecture room. Eight of these rooms are located on the ground floor, having dimensions of 22 1-2 feet by 23 feet and two on the second floor 23 by 27 feet. The connecting corridors have a spacious appearance being 12 feet wide. This section of the building is of the best modern fireproof construction built of steel and concrete with fireproof hollow tile partitions. The outside walls are of brick.

CONSECRATION

"Much as we are interested in these facts, we know—and this eminent man would be the first to proclaim it—these items are of secondary importance, for we look beyond the man himself to that sovereign whom he represents and to whom our national love and devotion belong by the cherished traditions and promptings of our unswerving patriotism.

"This is what the office of an ambassador signifies, and what is supremely true of God's dealings with mankind. The pages of Sacred Scripture are one long narrative of the manifestations of God's truth to mankind through authorized ambassadors."

Workers sought dissolution of the National Congress which the labor union criticized as "hand-picked" by the late dictator, Juan Vicente Gomez.

Earlier the national parliament was reported to have passed a law making profession or suggestion of Communism a criminal offence.

NORSEMAN PRECEDED COLUMBUS

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)

OTTAWA, May 21—Theory that an ancient Norse explorer reached the Gulf of St. Lawrence and saw Prince Edward Island more than 500 years before Columbus made his landfall far to the south was contained in a paper read today before the historical section of the Royal Society of Canada by Col. Wilfrid Bovey of McGill University, Montreal.

Col. Bovey, recapitulating evidence of Norse discovery contained in ancient accounts, including the saga of Eric the Red, in the light of new evidence concluded that Bjarni Herjulfsson sailed from Iceland about 986 and was driven far south by the wind, missing Newfoundland and entering the Gulf of the St. Lawrence through Cabot Strait.

After reaching Prince Edward Island on which he did not land, Col. Bovey suggested, Herjulfsson sailed north through the Straits of Belle Isle and landed at the southern tip of Greenland.

He suggested also that evidence of old records indicated that Eric, son of Eric the Red, voyaged up the St. Lawrence a considerable distance about the year 1000 and that the country he named Vinland was in that territory at a point impossible to fix at this date.

Col. Bovey said there was evidence to support the belief also that Thorfinn Karlsefne and Freydis, a daughter of Eric the Red, reached Vinland about three years later.

Hands Off Egypt And Palestine Italy Warned

"At the other end of the world," he said, "Japan is arming and is in the highest state of national exultation. All the old perils of a year ago are presented in aggravated form."

"The only new and prime factor is the grave antagonism that has grown up between us and Italy. And where will the others be if you are late? What will be the strength of the German army or air force in 1938 and 1939, for broadly speaking, the effective result of your work only matures in the third year?"

"The British public has no idea of the efficiency of German war production, of its enormous skill, nor with what marvellous smoothness it can be made to pour out an almost limitless flow of the most horrible weapons of human destruction ever placed in the unworthy hands of men."

CLAIMS BLUNDER

He charged the government had made a serious organizational blunder in linking the functions of the head of the supply board with the coordination of strategic thought.

For example, he said Sir Thomas Inskip would have to deal with problems like the retention of British command of the Mediterranean.

In the now changed diplomatic conditions, Churchill went on, there was also the tremendous question of the military value of Russia and whether Britain was endangered from the air not only by bombs but by substantial landing forces by air in parts of the country where nobody was armed and trained.

"This was important points could be seized."

Sir Thomas Inskip, he continued, was responsible for seeing the country had enough cobalt and chromium and nickel, and a hundred other vital matters.

"In the meantime everything is worse from the viewpoint of peace and safety than a year ago. The country will have to pass through a long valley of unpreparedness and in that period events in Europe may reach a climax."

PROPOSES MINISTRY OF MUNITIONS

He advocated the establishment of a ministry of munitions with the assistance of a "dozen of the most active young businessmen in the country."

Sir Thomas Inskip said the government was subsidizing extensions of private automobile factories to speed up plane production for the Royal Air Force.

"If a storm should beat over our heads we are unlikely to have a long time to expand our production," said Sir Thomas in introducing estimates for his ministry. It was his first long speech before the Commons since assuming the new cabinet position.

"We must be prepared, with an output capacity that can switch-

KENSINGTON

A TRIBUTE

The news of the passing away last Saturday, May 16th, at her home in Tignish, of Mrs. A. J. MacFadyen, was heard with widespread regret by many friends all over Prince County where the family was so well and favorably known.

Her husband, the late A. J. MacFadyen, was a member and manager of the firm of J. H. Myrick & Co., and a son, Benjamin R., successfully carried on a drug business in Summerside and Kensington for years; both predeceased her, her husband some ten years and her son three years ago.

Many will remember the MacFadyen home, famed for its hospitality, where to enter was like going into a beautiful garden, with the finest and best awaiting one.

Mrs. MacFadyen was a lady of a rare type; with her kindness, her charity, her fineness of mind and character, to meet her was a delight and to know her was to love her.

We know and bear testimony that her life here was so lived that when the summons came to join the innumerable caravan, that she went forward with unflinching trust—like one who wraps the draperies of his couch about him and lies down to pleasant dreams.

"I think the gentle soul of her, goes softly in some garden place, With the sweet smile—time may not dim upon her face."

To Mrs. Wickham who remained at home to care for her mother, and to the other members of the family, sincerest sympathy is extended.

Mr. Frederick Jardine, McGill medical student, has returned to his home in Kensington for the summer holidays.

Mr. Sidney Webster, Kensington, is in the Prince Edward Island Hospital taking X-ray treatments.

Mr. Hammond Toombs, Kensington, entered the Prince Edward Island Hospital, Charlottetown, last week for treatment.

Miss Vera MacLeod, R.N., Kensington, is at present in Charlottetown, on professional duties.

Mrs. John Walker, Kensington, left by car Tuesday morning on a trip to the United States and to make a visit of some weeks with her brother, Mr. John Crozier, of New York City. B.

ABERHART ASKS TREASURY CO-OPERATION

Continuation of Senate Debate Awaited With Interest At Ottawa.

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire) OTTAWA, May 21—Negotiations between the Dominion government and representatives of the Social Credit administration of Alberta, and the debate in the Senate on proposed amendments to the British North America Act, were matters of chief political interest in Ottawa today.

Premier William Aberhart, the burly, bespectacled schoolmaster who converted Alberta to the Social Credit ideal in a whirlwind provincial election campaign last year, prepared for a final meeting tomorrow with Prime Minister Mackenzie King and his colleagues.

He is seeking federal treasury co-operation in putting his financial house in order so that he may proceed with the machinery for distributing Social Credit dividends.

The British North America Act amendments, which are quite closely related to Mr. Aberhart's problems, were strongly opposed in the Senate Tuesday by Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, who urged his fellow members to give careful consideration before voting on the resolution. Rt. Hon. G. P. Graham last night moved adjournment of the debate for that purpose and will speak when the Red Chamber meets Tuesday night.

Seek Compromise

Mr. Aberhart and three of his ministers have been here since Tuesday and have had one conference with the government. He has not made public the proposals he is presenting to the government but it is understood the main purpose of his visit is to discuss some compromise arrangement whereby he may obtain federal treasury support for his plan to refund $100,000,000 of provincial debt at lower interest rates.

The Alberta delegation also took up other matters with government departments, including appropriations for relief works to be undertaken jointly with the Dominion, public works and tourist attractions.

Today Mr. Aberhart and his ministers held long conferences with the contingent of 17 Social Credit members who sit in the House of Commons for Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King and his associates have declined to comment on the Alberta situation but it is anticipated some statement will be forthcoming when the discussions close. Mr. Aberhart expects to leave Ottawa tomorrow night.

Loan Defaulted

Refusal of Mr. Aberhart to accept the Dominion's scheme for provincial loan councils resulted in the refusal by Finance Minister Dunnington to recommend a loan needed to enable the Alberta government to meet a bond maturity April 1. It was defaulted.

The determination of the government to make acceptance of loan council control a condition to future loans to the province, has been maintained, and the resolution now being debated in the Senate involves a petition to Westminster for the necessary constitutional amendments to legalize the proposed arrangement.

Judging from Mr. Meighen's address and that of the only other Conservative senator who has thus far spoken, Senator Cole of Ottawa, it would appear possible the move will be defeated or drastically amended. The opposition group, with a majority in the Senate proportionate to that enjoyed by the government in the House of Commons, could kill the resolution if it desired. There has been no official intimation as to what course is planned.

Tomorrow it is expected the session will be devoted to ways and means with the possibility, voiced by Mr. Mackenzie King last night, that they would move the resolution with respect to nationalizing the Bank of Canada. It is likely, however, that there will be little more than a quorum and that work will be confined to ways and means.

Defends Arms And Munitions Makers

(A. P. By Guardian's Special Wire) LONDON, May 21—Arms and munition makers are important to defence and should not be subjected to "mud-slinging," Sir Maurice Hankey, secretary to the committee for imperial defence, declared today before the Royal Arms Commission investigating munitions manufacture and traffic.

The witness, who said he never held a share in a private armaments firm, asserted the munitions manufacturer is the victim of "long sustained propaganda with the object of creating prejudice" against him. He submitted passages from a schoolbook used in one of the Dominions in an effort to prove it.
