S. Viet Nam Children's Hospital Is Being Considered By Canada

By DAVE McINTOSH
OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's proposed 1966-67 foreign aid appropriations have been sent to the cabinet for approval but no significant change from the last two years is expected, informants said Friday.
In the 1964-65 and 1965-66 fiscal years, the Canadian foreign aid program amounted to some $225,000,000, mostly loans. The 1965-66 program has not yet been approved by Parliament, scheduled to reconvene Jan. 18 after a summer vacation and a fall election.
Eternal Affairs Minister Martin told the Commons external affairs committee June 29 that the government hopes to increase foreign aid to $400,000,000 by 1970.
Informants indicated that no advance toward this goal will be made in the coming 1966-67 fiscal year, which begins April 1.
Though no significant change in the financial allotment is contemplated, there may be one fairly significant change in the form Canadian aid takes.
The possibility of Canada equipping and staffing a children's hospital and rehabilitation centre near Saigon in South Viet Nam is under study.
Buildings already exist for such a purpose. The idea would also be to train Vietnamese so that they could take over operation of the centre eventually.

So far, Canada has supplied some food to Viet Nam and some limited technical assistance—one technical expert last year, for instance. Some Vietnamese students are studying at French-language universities in Canada.
Outright aid—that is, grants and food—to developing countries in the current fiscal year amounts to some $90,000,000. The remainder of the aid is in loans—$76,000,000 by the Export Credits Insurance Corporation, $50,000,000 by the external aid office and about $4,000,000 in subscriptions to the International Development Association.
Informants said there may be an increase in food aid next year above the $20,000,000 in 1965-66. But loans by the Export Credits Insurance Corporation and the external aid office are expected to be approximately the same amount.
The credits corporation now has Parliament's authorization to make long-term loans totaling $400,000,000. It has committed about three-quarters of this amount in loans to developing countries. The government may have to ask Parliament to increase the ceiling in the next year or two if it wants to continue.
British Facing Breadless Days
LONDON (Reuters) — More than 1,000,000 British homes Friday faced a weekend without bread unless housewives made it themselves.
A 48-hour strike of bakery workers in four of Britain's most heavily populated areas spurred a rush on record quantities of flour and yeast.
The strike, which took place in Birmingham, Liverpool, Durham and South Wales, is over shorter hours and more pay.
Breadless bakeries in the worst-hit areas prepared seven-ounce bags of flour and gave instructions to young housewives making bread for the first time.

SOME DISAPPOINTMENT Religious Liberty Okay Given At Rome Meeting

By GERALD MILLER
VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Church voted final approval Friday of a religious liberty declaration designed to improve relations with all the world's non-Catholic, Protestant observers at the Vatican ecumenical council said it would.
A vote of 1,954 to 249 the bishops of the Vatican council cleared the declaration for promulgation by Pope Paul Dec. 7. The declaration says all men must have religious liberty and recognizes the right of followers of non-Catholic faiths to worship according to their conscience.
Protestant observers at the council greeted passage of the declaration as "an immense step forward."
But they, and American prelates who had led the fight for the document were disappointed at the site of the opposition vote and changes in the declaration made in hopes of satisfying conservative opponents.

Two Aims Are Outlined In N.B. Municipal Plans

FREDERICTON (CP) — Municipal Affairs Minister Theriault, introducing a massive new municipalities act in the New Brunswick legislature Friday, said the Liberal government's "program of evolution" has two aims.
These are: to ensure all the province's people of at least basic minimum standards of essential services; to strengthen local government to fulfill its local obligations.
"Implementation of our proposed legislation will change the structure of all forms of municipal government but it would have its greatest effect on the county administrative unit," he said.
"The assumption by the province of the full responsibilities and costs for education, health, welfare and justice leaves virtually no functions to be performed by county councils.
We believe the creation of village units will provide the necessary machinery for the provision of adequate local services."
Earlier, Mr. Theriault told reporters the province will take over assets, as well as obligations, of counties when county councils disappear. County boundary lines will remain unchanged.
Government spokesmen previously said the program is a long-range one requiring action over a period of years.

PM's Office To End Corridor Scrambling

OTTAWA (CP) — The prime minister's office decided today to end the corridor scrambling and jostling that almost invariably mark the quest for news after a cabinet meeting.
The second-floor corridor outside the cabinet room in Parliament's East Block is to be "off limits" to reporters just before, during and after cabinet meetings.
Instead, reporters are to wait in a special press room for either the prime minister or a spokesman to appear after such meetings to make statements and answer questions.
The step apparently was sparked by a noisy corridor conclave following the first cabinet meeting after the Nov. 8 election.
Steps to end the scramble as reporters clustered around the prime minister's office cabinet

Princess Margaret, Husband Enjoy Sight-Seeing In N.Y.

By BORIS MISKEW
NEW YORK (CP) — A boycott by African Commonwealth leaders at a United Nations reception and a bomb scare in the Empire State Building Friday failed to deter Princess Margaret and the Earl of Snowdon from making a sight-seeing round of New York.
The Royal party began their day with a visit to the Empire State Building and it was there that police received a report of a bomb threat.
The bomb scare was touched off by an anonymous telephone call from a woman who referred to the building rather than the Royal visitors. The threat led to a police search of the building but found no bomb.
Princess Margaret and Lord Snowdon, who arrived here Thursday for a six-day private visit, then were driven by police escort to the UN headquarters for a three-hour whirl of social activities.
A crowd of members of the diplomatic corps as well as a large contingent of UN employees welcomed the party with warm rounds of applause as the visitors arrived at the delegates' entrance.
Greeting Princess Margaret and her husband on behalf of Secretary-General U Thant was Pierre de Meulemeester, chief of protocol.
GAVE RECEPTION
The Royal visitors were escorted immediately to the second floor where a reception was given in their honor by Lord Caradon, Britain's permanent representative to the UN.
Lord Caradon invited about 50 guests to the reception in the Indonesian Lounge, including senior officials of the UN secretariat and leaders of the Commonwealth delegations to the UN.
It was at this reception that the boycott by the African leaders took place in an apparent protest over Britain's unwillingness to use military force to put an end to the rebellion in Rhodesia by the white minority government of Premier Ian Smith.
