

MARGARET RUTH ROBINSON

Island Girl Joins Noted Canadian Legal Firm

Miss Margaret Ruth Robinson, daughter of Mrs. Mary Robinson of Tryon, and the late Mr. A. J. Robinson, has lately been admitted to the Bar, in the Province of British Columbia, and has joined the firm of Bull, Housser, Tupper, Ray, Guy and Merritt, Barristers and Solicitors, in Vancouver, as an associate lawyer of that firm.

Miss Robinson was born in Augustine Cove, P.E.I., and attended Tryon Consolidated School. She went from there to Moulton Ladies' College, Toronto, Ont., from which she was graduated in 1937. In 1937, the year of George VI's coronation, Miss Robinson went to England to visit at the home of Mr. Earl MacPhee, who was formerly from Tryon, P.E.I., but who was, at that time, a controller of the Dent Glove Co. of England. She stayed on in England, after the coronation, and was admitted to London University. She studied there for two years, but, because of the outbreak of the second world war, and also, because her father had taken ill, she returned home to the Island.

After her return to Canada, she furthered her education by taking a business course in Moncton, N.B. She passed the Civil Service examinations, consequently going to Ottawa to take a Civil Service position.

In September, 1943, she joined the Air Force and went immediately overseas to London, England, again.

C.G.I.T. Girl Included In List Of Beautiful Women

"The Most Beautiful Women I've Photographed" is the heading of an article by Gerald Campbell appearing in a Toronto paper. Mr. Campbell, twenty-nine years old, is now vice-president of Ashley and Crippen. He started his photographic career doing chores in the firm's dark room. His partner, Mr. Dan Gibson, another well-known Toronto photographer, is married to the former Miss June McCleure of Montreal. Her father, the late Mr. F. Gordon McCleure, superintendent of the Royal Bank in the province of Quebec, was a native of Prince Edward Island.

Mr. Campbell lists the following women as beautiful: "Glowing" Mrs. R. Frederic Porter, Junior League past president; Sophistication, Mrs. Rose Clarke, Jr., executive's wife; "Majestic" Mrs. B. C. Heintzman, wife of Forest Hill Village councillor; "Photogenic Grandmother" Mrs. Alan Skelth, artist, writer, club-woman; "Ethereal" Mrs. Kenneth Thomson, art collector, former model; "Figure" Mrs. T. King, (Barbara Ann Scott), figure skating star; "Devastating" Susan Gooderham, debutante of the year; "Classical" Mrs. William Hatch, mother of four; "Most Glamorous" Joyce Davidson, television star.

Two weeks after society photographer Campbell had selected the nine most beautiful women he'd photographed, he chose a tenth beauty. He had been overwhelmed by the response to his invitation. Pictures were sent in by the dozen.

Miss Anne Marie Currie, a nineteen-year-old office worker was his choice. Anne's mother had sent in a pocket-sized picture of her daughter.

Here is why, in his own words, that Gerald Campbell picked Anne Marie for the tenth beauty.

"There were pictures of grandmothers and grandchildren. There were many pictures of models and actresses, but I decided that it wouldn't be fair to use them. It's their business to be beautiful.

Every sort of picture — from snapshots to formal portraits — was sent in.

Nearly half the entries were colored snapshots.

After hours of studying pictures, I decided on 19-year-old Anne Marie Currie — and these are my reasons for choosing her.

She's beautiful, of course. But more than that, she has a fresh young charm that I think is typical of Canadian girls.

She's an outdoor girl, and does not depend on make-up for her good looks.

(Incidentally, that was a help in photographing her, because I always have my subject remove her make-up with cold cream. That leaves her with a fresh

In 1946, because of ill-health, she returned to Canada. When she recovered, she decided to take up the study of law, and entered the University of British Columbia, in Vancouver. She lost a year through sickness, but was graduated in 1951.

She did not article to a law firm when she first completed her law course, but worked in the Civil Defense and Fire Fighting programmes in the city of Vancouver, for a number of years, winning honors in both fields, and becoming an instructor in the second.

In June, 1957, Miss Robinson article to the firm of Bull, Housser, Tupper, Ray, Guy and Merritt, and early this year, finishing her training and passed her examinations. After she was admitted to the Bar, she was honored by being invited to join the firm, and did so.

She makes her home, in Vancouver, with Dr. and Mrs. Earl MacPhee.

Dr. MacPhee, who as before mentioned, is from the Island also, the son of the late Mr. Harry MacPhee of Tryon. He is dean of the department of Business and Commerce in U.B.C., and his LL. D. was conferred on him, lately by the University of Alberta, for his services to that college during the summer terms.

Miss Robinson has two brothers, Mr. Eric Robinson, of Augustine Cove, P.E.I., and Mr. James Ralph Robinson, who resides in Edmonton, Alberta.

I always look for bone structure in beautiful women — and Anne Marie's is perfect. I'm really pleased with my choice (which, incidentally, I made as a photographer, out as a beauty expert).

Those were Gerald Campbell's reasons. It is also interesting to add that the Toronto Telegram continues the further information that Anne Marie is an active member in Bonar Presbyterian Church and also teaches Sunday School. She plays the piano and hopes to take up lessons in church music. She has two sisters, a nurse at the Women's College Hospital and Jacqueline, age 17, at Bloor Collegiate.

Anne Marie swims, skates and bowls. Of special interest is the fact that Anne Marie is a member of a remarkably fine organization, the very name of which is spoken with pride. That organization to which this photographic beauty gives unstinted service is none other than the Canadian Girls in Training. They in their turn are very proud of this lovely young Canadian woman who has added another pleasant distinction to the Canadian Girls in Training. — and of course to Gerald Campbell's photography.

Ontario Author Praises Beta Sigma Phi Sorority

An Ontario author, Mrs. Marjorie Scott, visiting Saint John says that Canadian writings are most acceptable. There is a very fine story in the Saint John Telegraph on Mrs. Scott which is of special interest here because Mrs. Scott tells of her regard of the Beta Sigma Phi sorority. Mrs. Scott is a representative of the sorority's international governing body. The following is the article:

Excited that one of her novels about show business may be made into a movie, Mrs. Margerite Scott thinks it all came about through hard work. But she says she's enjoyed every minute of it.

The tall Englishwoman, who since 1947 has made her home in Windsor, Ont., arrived in Saint John last week aboard the CP's Empress of Britain. She'd been in England and Scotland since early December on a visit.

Mrs. Scott will be in the city about a week. She will aid Beta Sigma Phi, largest Greek-letter sorority in the world, in a membership drive here.

At present, three chapters, Exemplar, Delta and Alpha are active, coordinating their activities through a City Council of the sorority.

Last week, Mrs. Scott was honored guest at a reception in the IOOF Hall, Germain Street. Saturday she attended a luncheon in her honor given by Alpha Chapter and Sunday Exemplar Chapter played host to her.

Mrs. Scott is a representative of the sorority's international governing body. She is also a contributing editor to the sorority's "Torch of Beta Sigma Phi."

No stranger to Saint John, Mrs. Scott was last here three years ago, returning from the Canadian Authors' Association convention Halifax. She is a member of the Association's national executive. Of Canadian authors, she thinks they shouldn't apologize for their work. "It is good," she said. Mrs. Scott should know. She's been writing almost as long as she could hold a pencil. She wrote while she played theatres all over the United Kingdom. "I did Shakespearean comedies and those silly women of Noel Coward's plays," she said. Radio was the perfect marriage for her. And she also acted on television in England before the Second World War. Part of her education was gained in Belgium. She learned several languages. And later, to gain first-hand information for a book she wanted to write called The Other Side of The Street, she went to university to take a social service degree. As Britain began to dig trenches in Hyde Park during the early days of the war, Mrs. Scott began to look after refugees flooding across from the continent. Her training in languages was her main forte. Then the bombs began to fall on London. The Yorkshire-born girl had the qualifications and was pressed into service as a housing officer in the London area of Chelsea. There she stayed until 1945, lecturing to troops and entertaining. Then she went to Germany. Again she went in radio work. There was a shortage of players, and she began to act several roles using different names. This has carried over to the present day. In her writings, she uses as many as four names, all of which are really Mrs. Scott. In Canada, Mrs. Scott has appeared on the CBC's International service, and wrote and directed for a CBC playhouse in Windsor. She has had six novels published, hundreds of short stories accepted. Canadian, British and U.S. magazines and newspaper have used her works. Her happiest moments, she says have been with Beta Sigma Phi, of which she became an honorary international member in 1940. "It was the best thing that ever happened to me in an interesting life," she said. The sorority, dedicated to self-development, friendship and culture, now operates through the United Kingdom, North and South America, Australia, Europe, the Middle East and Japan. "Just like they used to say of the British Empire, the sun never sets on it," she said. The sorority raises and gives away $5,000 yearly in scholarships across Canada. A UNB student won a $1,000 English scholarship last year, she said. Canada's three largest cultural bodies were and aid the sorority in their scholarship activity. Work of the Saint John chapter in organizing and helping into being the School For Mentally Retarded Children was praised by Mrs. Scott. She said it was a call of sorority endeavors. "It fell it is so much better to say," she said. Back on the subject of pictures, Mrs. Scott says she her fingers crossed that the actuality will be made into a film theatre, in one form or another. "All my life I've been in the said. "But, do you know, it is the only book I've written with it as the subject."

Through fire and flood—always the Red Cross

The grim spectre of Disaster is no respecter of time, place or persons. In 1952, it was the "Noronic" Fire. In 1954, it was Hurricane Hazel. In 1956, Budapest and the Hungarian Revolt. In 1957, Beauceville and Springhill. In each case the Red Cross heard the call, and immediately mobilized for the work of comfort and mercy. It is the same story whenever and wherever disaster strikes. The Red Cross always stands ready for action. So remember—You Also Serve By Giving. So please give generously when your Red Cross Volunteer Canvasser calls.
