JOHN NEWSON

DESTRUCTION OF THE COLENZO BRIDGE.

Relief of Kimberley Expected Soon.

The Boers Retiring in Cape Colony.

Lancers in Contact with the Boers on the 30th.—General French wishes to advance but not strong enough.—Latest news from Ladysmith reports continued shelling.

[SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER.]

LONDON, Dec. 6.—The latest news from Ladysmith is dated Nov. 27.

On that day the Boers shelled the town, without, however, causing any serious damage.

The situation continues practically unchanged, but the garrison is anxiously awaiting relief.

There is no fresh news of the British advance in Natal.

Five spans of the railway bridge at Colenso were blown into the river; but the road bridge apparently remains intact.

Nothing is known regarding Methuen's advance. But in many quarters it is believed that his arrival in Kimberley may be affected this week.

In Cape Colony the Boers have fallen back upon Galesburg.

General French's force is anxious to be allowed to advance but is not strong enough yet to undertake an offensive movement.

Gen. Gatacre is moving north.

The Cape Attorney General will, it is reported, probably proceed to England as ambassador of the Bond to negotiate for a cessation of hostilities and secure the independence of the Free State. But the British Government is unlikely to enter into any negotiations until war has been definitely concluded.

LONDON, December 6.—The Telegraph's correspondent at Pietermaritzburg, in a despatch dated November 20th, says that General Dornier, the Boer commander, is alive and well.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—The Daily Mail says: General Yule, who succeeded to the command of General Symons, after the latter had been fatally wounded at Dundee, is about to return home, his health having been broken under the strain of the exposure to which he has been subjected in Natal following his arduous campaign in India.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—The Telegraph publishes a despatch dated, "Modder River," which gives additional details of the fighting there. It says that the two British batteries ran out of ammunition and were compelled to retire. They lost twenty-five horses, and the horses of the officers were used to assist the guns out of the action.

A driver, though shot through the lung, drove his gun out.

General Methuen's original intention was to take the town with the bayonet after dark; but the troops were too exhausted.

The enemy left many rifles and quantities of ammunition.

The Boers now occupy a strong position on the ridge six miles north of the town.

The Lancers were in contact with them on November 30th.

HORRORS OF THE KLONDIKE

Death by Starvation of Three Men Who Found Rich Diggings.

VANCOUVER, Dec 5.—The steamer Danube, from Skaguay, brings news of death by starvation of M. C. Daly, of Boston, and two Frenchmen. Last fall two Americans named Lawler and Smithson formed a partnership with the other three. About Christmas they began to stake ground on Bonanza river. A blizzard came on. Daly and the two Frenchmen became separated from the other two, and were lost. They wandered away without provisions, and with scant clothing and blankets, and a single tent. After the storm Lawler and Smithson followed their footsteps in the snow. They found messages written on trees telling a sad tale of privation and suffering. A few days later their camp was found.

On the ground, his form wasted to a mere skeleton, was the corpse of one of the Frenchmen. The kettle on the camp stove contained a frozen mass of rawhide thongs of snowshoes, which the men had attempted to use for food. Daly's body was found a short distance away, and securely buckled around his hollow ribs was a buckskin belt containing $1,000 in gold dust, with a scrawled note that they had found rich diggings. Lawler will leave here in a few days for his home in New York.

SECOND LETTER FROM

SANTA CLAUS.

Arctic Circle, Saturday, 2nd Dec, 1899.

DEAR MR. PATON.—I have been in the west since Friday morning and I can tell you I feel tired. You would have laughed if you had seen me last night. I had to sleep out in the cold snow. Several Polar Bears came prowling around, but I had two guns that I used and kept them at a safe distance. After lighting my camp fire had a few hours sleep and started off again this morning. When I get to Ch'town, I am to show all the boys and girls my guns, pistols, cannons, war horses and battle-ships. I heard about the war first time last week, and had I known sooner I would have gone south and helped "our boys" to whip the Boers," but as it is I won't forget the boys.

Did you order the candies yet? Be sure you get them as nice as last year's. My, but they were lovely! I am glad you liked the toys I sent you in advance. I picked them all out especially for your store.

Your friend
SANTA CLAUS.
