26 Servicemen Killed When Plane Breaks Up

EBERSBERG, West Germany (AP)—A four-engined U.S. Navy Constellation aircraft broke up in flight Tuesday and crashed in flames near this South Bavarian town, killing all 26 aboard.

The plane carried 22 navy officers and men and four army personnel, authorities said.

Officials at first reported that the WV-2 Lockheed Constellation—which apparently exploded in the cloudless sky—was on a secret mission. Later, a spokesman for U.S. Atlantic Fleet Air Force headquarters at Norfolk, Va., said the secret mission report resulted from what he called a misunderstanding.

The spokesman said that the navy department in Washington confirmed 26 persons had been aboard although the flight manifesto indicated the plane was carrying 27.

All bodies were reported recovered.

The tail and other parts were strewn along a path of several miles leading to the crash site, in a grass field 10 miles east of Munich Airport.

A fish hatchery worker said the plane came down with a shrill and fearful howl, then "there was a terrible explosion and flames shot up."

Mathias Wolf, a community hall worker at the Hamlet of Markt Schwaben, said it plunged from an altitude of about 9,000 feet.

DESCRIBES CRASH

"It rolled over several times in the air and then fell several hundred yards from our village," he said. "There was an explosion as if an atomic bomb had been dropped."

Police reported the plane, flying out of Frankfurt but regularly based at Rota, Spain —had radioed an emergency signal and apparently was trying for a landing at Munich.

Pearson Claims Dief Failed On Big Five

By JAMES NELSON

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Leader Pearson declared here the Diefenbaker government has failed to carry out "the big five" of its promises.

Speaking at what he called a half-way point in the election campaign, Mr. Pearson said the big five "Tory promises" were to reduce unemployment, lower taxes, cut spending, balance the budget and lower interest rates.

"Not one has been kept," Mr. Pearson said.

He spoke to a luncheon of party workers during a day of storming 10 of the Toronto district's 18 federal ridings by automobile cavalcade.

During the day he visited a supermarket, decrying an increase in the cost of imported foods resulting from the government's devaluation of the dollar, and visited two old folks' homes and Sunnybrook Veteran's Hospital.

OUTLINES ISSUES

He said in his only major address of the day that the issues in the campaign are unemployment and mismanagement of the nation's finances.

He attacked particularly the government's move early this month to peg the Canadian dollar at 92.5 cents in United States funds.

"The world now puts less value on our money—less value on our work," as a result of the government's decision, he said.

He said the latest unemployment reports showed almost 500,000 unemployed persons and declared:

"How low can your standards be when you can accept almost half a million unemployed as all right? If the Tories think this is good, then they are not good enough for the Canadian people."

He described Progressive Conservative candidates as "desperate members of a desperate government wanting to be given another chance."

DEAD COWS HELP HIDE 'SHINE

NASHVILLE, Ga. (AP)—Officers discovered a moonshine liquor still buried under a sawdust pile surrounded by dead cows.

Sheriff Walter Gaskins said a room had been constructed under the sawdust at a sawmill. Authorities ran it down after arresting a man with five jugs of moonshine flecked with sawdust.

Why the dead cows? They were used to counteract the odor of the moonshine operation, Gaskins said.

Death Is Probed In Estes Case

FRANKLIN, Tex (AP)—Medical examiner Joseph Jachimszyk said after an autopsy here it was his personal tentative opinion the death of Henry Marshall, a key figure in the Billy Sol Estes case, was not a suicide.

The medical examiner said, however, that "complete findings of this autopsy will not be made until later this week when tissue tests are completed."

Dr. Jachimszyk spoke for an autopsy team hastily assembled to provide information for a grand jury investigating the puzzling death of Marshall, a 53-year-old agriculture department official, a year ago.

Marshall was found dead on his farm near here. He died of five bullet wounds in the body from a bolt-action, clip-fed .22-calibre rifle.

Officials have expressed wonder that Marshall could operate the bolt four times and pull the trigger five times and still live.

Sheriff Howard Stegall said it appeared Marshall may have lived as long as five hours after the last shot. He did not elaborate on how he reached the deduction.

Marshall was investigating the cotton allotment manipulations of Estes, West Texas financier now under fraud indictment and congressional investigations because of his allotment manipulations and grain storage practices.

Portuguese Rebels Expel Capt. Galvao

LONDON (Reuters) — Capt. Henrique Galvao, leader of a pirate group that seized the liner Santa Maria last year, has been expelled from the organized opposition abroad to the Portuguese government of Premier Antonio Salazar, the Sunday newspaper The Observer said.

It said that Humberto Delgado, leader of the Movimento Nacional Independente, had issued a bulletin announcing Galvao's expulsion.

The bulletin accused Galvao of dividing the opposition to Salazar with statements that the movement relies on Communist support, the newspaper said.

The bulletin also blamed Galvao for the failure of the Beja rebellion in January when a mainly civilian group of rebels seized and briefly held an army barracks at the old Moorish garrison town.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X E is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Opening lead — ten of diamonds.

When you're faced with what appears on the surface to be an even-money guess, you can sometimes readjust the odds in one direction or another by interpreting the opponents' play of the cards.

South was in six hearts and West led a diamond. Had West opened anything else, declarer would have made the hand without much trouble.

Even with the diamond lead, the contract seemed sure to make, but when declarer won with the king and played the ace of hearts, East showed out and presented South with a delicate problem of how to play the hand.

The obvious way of trying to overcome the unlucky trump break was to rely on a club finesse, hoping that East had the king. However, if South had adopted this line of play, he would have run into a second unlucky break because the finesse would have lost and he would have gone down one.

But South saw that there was an alternative line of play that had just as good a chance of succeeding as relying on the club finesse. He drew a second round of trump and then cashed the A-Q of diamonds.

West could have ruffed the last diamond, but, not being anxious to lead, he discarded a spade. South now had to make a crucial decision. The question was whether to throw West into the lead and force him to play a spade, or whether to lead the queen of clubs at this point and take a finesse.

Declarer decided that the reason West had not ruffed the diamond was that he was in no position to make a safe return. The location of the king of spades was superficially a 50-50 proposition, but East's reluctance to take the lead indicated that he very likely had that card. So South thrust West into the lead with a trump.

Against this play, West could do nothing. A club return would automatically give South twelve tricks, while a spade return would permit a spade finesse to produce the same result.
