Actor David Niven Thinks Time Quit Military Role

Dr. Raymond E. PALMER LONDON (AP)—David Niven thinks it's about time the movie industry gave him his military discharge.

"I've had enough of real war and of the movie wars," he said. "The British army has retired me to the officer reserve. But the movie business keeps me on the active list."

Niven played an ensign in Charge of the Light Brigade, a Philippine constabulary lieutenant in The Red Glor, an RAF officer in Stairway to Heaven, an army captain in Appointment with Venus, a retired major in Separate Tables, a U.S. cavalry lieutenant in a number of westerns, and a corporal in The Guns of Navarone.

He is a civilian in his latest movie Act of Mercy. But he still gets involved—this time in a South American revolution.

"It's the same in my next movie, The Captive City," said Niven.

"I play a member of a dog-gone mission doing out blankets during the Communist drive to take over Athens after the Second World War.

"Then I find I'm sitting on a former German arms cache and I get mixed up in the fighting again."

At one time Niven planned to make the army his career—and along with movies it has been. He entered Sandhurst, Britain's military college and spent two years there. Then as an officer he spent 4½ years in the British army before bowing out.

He was on a machine-gun course at the time and at one lecture on ballistics he was worried about getting away to keep a date. Gen. Sir Hierward Wake, who was giving the lecture, finally asked if there were any questions.

"Yes, sir," piped up Niven. "Can you tell me the time?"

NOT FUNNY

He was promptly placed under arrest with a fellow officer and friend guarding him in his quarters. The guard sent out for a bottle of whisky and by the time they had finished it the guard was suggesting he would go to the washroom while Niven escaped.

From his hideout—in the Naval and Military Club in London—Niven at the suggestion of friends resigned his commission.

His resignation letter read: "Dear Colonel—Request permission to resign commission. Love, Niven."

Col. Telfer-Smallett told Niven years later that he was so intrigued with this document that he framed it and kept it on the wall of his house in Scotland for years.

Niven swapped his vintage auto for a round-trip ticket to Canada and then sold the return half to raise funds to stay there. Later he went to the United States, made his way to Hollywood and began working as an extra.

REJOINED ARMY

He was right at the top in Hollywood when the Second World War broke out. Niven hurried back to England and re-joined the army.

He dismisses his war record with a shrug.

Niven led a squadron of 160 officers and 20 men in what amounted to a private army. It was an offshoot of the Commandos.

During the invasion of Europe its operations consisted of going beyond the front line so that Field Marshal Montgomery would know what was up ahead.

"Now I want to forget war for a while," said Niven.

"What I'd really like is the comedy part I love comedy. I love making people laugh."

Ban To Apply To Wrestlers

WASHINGTON (AP)—State department officials say a ban on travel by East Germans in NATO countries probably will apply to amateur wrestlers as well as ice-hockey players.

The restrictions on East German travel were made public last week in connection with the world ice hockey championships at Colorado Springs, Colo., March 7-18.

Unless there is a change for the better in the Berlin situation, the restrictions apparently would apply to East Germans who want to compete in the world wrestling championships at Toledo, June 21-27.

The state department said the tougher policy was agreed to by the United States, Britain and France in retaliation for the wall which Communist East Germany erected in Berlin last August. NATO members have endorsed the restrictions.

The United States does not grant passports to citizens of East Germany but in the past the Allied travel office in Berlin, representing the three major Western powers, has granted temporary travel documents which qualify the East German traveller for a subsequent temporary visa.

The travel documents are no longer being granted.

Protesting the NATO restrictions, the East German Ice Hockey Association announced that neither the Soviet nor the Czechoslovakian teams would compete at Colorado Springs.

Whether the same would hold true for the wrestling meet at Toledo remains to be seen. Russia consistently produces some of the world's best amateur grapplers.

Steel Outlook Reported Good

CLEVELAND (AP)—The inventory buildup will not smother United States steel demand in the second half of the year because of high consumption and buyer restraint in building inventories, Steel Magazine said Saturday.

Steel analyzes the situation this way:

"Steel inventories will reach about 21,000,000 tons on July 1, 5,000,000 tons above normal. So they'll probably be cut by about that much in the second-half."

"During July, August and September, users will liquidate inventories at the rate of 1,000,000 tons a month.

"Result: The average rate of steel production will fall from more than 10,000,000 tons a month in the second quarter to about 7,000,000 tons a month in the third."

championships. Apparently, the trials were a success, since the team selected went on to win and will represent Europe in the world championship event to be played in New York starting February 10th.

The deal was played at five tables and at three of them the bidding went as shown. North responded to the spade cuebid with three hearts and South then bid three notrump.

At each of these tables the contract went down one when South won the third round of spades, cashed the A-K of hearts, East discarding a club, and then prayerfully played a low club towards the jack.

At the fourth table, South also cuebid spades, but when his partner, responded three diamonds, (responded for reasons obscure), he jumped to five diamonds, apologizing, for not having gone to six with his huge hand. The apology was later retracted, however, when a poor North wound up three tricks short of his contract and went down 300 points.

It remained for the North-South pair at the fifth table to produce the oddest result. There the bidding went:

East	South	West	North
1♠	2♠	Pass	3♥
Pass	3NT

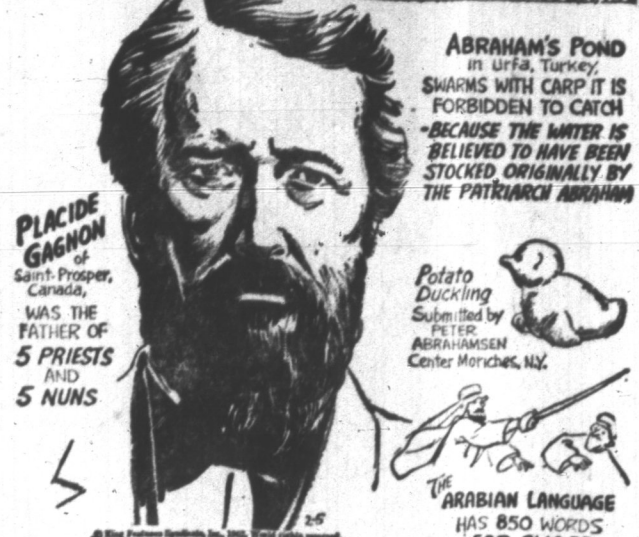

Obviously, South intended two spades as a cuebid to compel partner to rebid hearts if he had a sufficient length, or to name a new suit.

But North either misunderstood the bid, thinking South had a real spade suit, or else decided he had had enough of the hand.

So, South, much dismayed, found himself playing at two spades. He won the spade lead, cashed the A-K of clubs and ruffed a club, finessed the queen of diamonds, and ruffed another club. As a result, he wound up making two-spades for the only plus score with the North-South cards.
