Mrs. Melvin Ellis, O'Leary has in her possession an old Dictionary which is 141 years old. The print is clear and most readable and the ancient volume is in a fine state of preservation. It is entitled "Johnson's English Dictionary" with an appendix containing several thousand words omitted by Dr. Johnson and such as have been introduced by good writers since his time, with their pronunciation, etymologies, definitions and authorities. There is also a Chronological Table on remarkable events, discoveries and inventions; a list of men of learning and genius. The ancient volume contains the whole of the Scripture Proper Names, and an epitome of the Heathen Mythology arranged alphabetically with their pronunciation. The dictionary also contains "A Table of Precedency" with directions for addressing persons of every rank etc. On the next page, we also find these words:—By William Mavor, Glasgow. Printed by R. Chapman for William Mavor, bookseller, Glasgow;—and James Robertson, bookseller, Edinburgh, 1809.

The play "Two Country Kids" was presented by the Birch Hills Women's Institute on Wednesday night, May 17th, in the Coleman Hall sponsored by the Birch Hills Church Young People's Union. There was a fine attendance who thoroughly enjoyed this splendid comedy which was also presented in the O'Leary Hall on Friday night, May 12th, under the auspices of the Bloomfield United Church Young People's Union. A brief address of welcome was given by the minister, Rev. W. G. Dickson, who acted as chairman. Between the acts there were several greatly enjoyed specialties: A skit entitled "A Dangerous Operation"; a step-dancing number by Lawrence MacNeill; a duet by Grace Birch and Henry Birch. Between the acts the Brae Y. P. U. sold candy. Lunches were also on sale. The following are the members of the cast: Jennie MacLean, Isabel MacLean, Grace Birch, Jennie Yeo, Lucy MacArthur, Elmer MacLean, Wendell Maynard, Edmund Birch, Mills MacLean and Henry Birch. After the play the Brae Y. P. U. entertained the members of the cast in the Orange Lodge room of the Coleman Hall. It was a splendid evening of high class entertainment.

On Mother's Day in the evening, the Springfield West Baptist Church was filled to capacity when a beautiful Mother's Day service was held, entitled "So He made Mothers". The program was presented by the Women's Missionary Society of Springfield West and a special feature of the service was the presentation of a beautiful Holy Bible to the Church by Mr. George W. Wilkinson of Springfield West in loving memory of his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Jane Wilkinson, who passed away on January 8th 1950 and who was a life-time member of that Church. Those taking part in the impressive service which included hymns, responsive reading, responses, a duet and a solo were: Mrs. Neil Boulter, Mrs. Percy MacPherson, Mrs. Robert England, Mrs. Melvin Ellis and Mrs. Charles Rix who were the Readers. There was also a splendid duet sung by Mrs. Leslie MacLean and Mrs. Melvin Ellis.

Special music was rendered by the choir. The organist was Mrs. Leslie MacLean. Mrs. Arnold Smallman read an appropriate piece of poetry. The Bible was dedicated by the minister, Rev. C. O. Howlett of O'Leary. Five or six little girls sang very feelingly "My Mother's Prayer." The service closed by the Benediction.

Irishtown W. I. Sponsor Concert

The variety concert, sponsored by Irishtown Women's Institute, was staged before a packed hall at Spring Valley on Tuesday evening, May 16.

The large audience, occupying all the seating space and filling the aisles to the door, expressed its appreciation by giving each number whole hearted applause.

In spite of the fact that the hall was crowded to the point of discomfort, perfect order was maintained during the two hours of fast moving comedy, music and song, produced under the very capable chairmanship of Mr. H. B. MacLeod.

The Program

One act Comedy Farce — introduced by the chairman and some call it "Dream House" and some call it "But House".
The scene opens on the family spending a peaceful evening at home. Father, (played by Francis Campbell) is resting after a hard day, but hasn't yet filled out his income tax forms.
Mona Campbell, playing "Mother", has joined the Little Theatre Guild, and has studied the lines of Shakespeare's "Lady MacBeth", until she is in a trance, and pays little attention to what is going on around her.
"Grandma" or "Molly O'Hara" (Jean Stavert) is busy with her black currant tarts, but nothing escapes her eye and tongue.
Molly Brown as "Kathleen" the grown-up daughter, has a problem. She is expecting an unwelcome suitor, "Chester Nutkins" (Layton Proffitt), who has only two things on his mind, it's unusual hobby, and a desire to make "Kathleen" his wife, because she is so healthy and her family are so sane, for his greatest fear is insanity. She would like to get rid of "Chester", but doesn't want to insult him. An impediment in his speech causes a decided lisp.
"Jennifer" played by Jean Adams, the teen-age daughter is a normal youngster, but has ambitions and is exercising to improve her figure.
"Michael" played by Carl Campbell, the typical young brother, is supposed to be studying his history lesson, which goes back to the time of Napoleon.
That is, "Jennifer" and "Michael" are both normal youngsters, until "Grandma" has a bright idea. If "Chester Nutkins" is so afraid of insanity what could be simpler than to make him believe that every member of the family is affected with periods of insanity, each different, but all crazy.
"Kathleen" sees what they are trying to do, and at first helps in the deception but they carry the joke so far that her sympathies turn to "Chester" who becomes more and more bewildered, for he has no sense of humor, and is unable to see that they are only pretending to have suddenly gone crazy.
It is all too much for "Chester", who fades out of the picture, to the exuberant delight of the family.
A Chorus — Good-night Ladies, and The King, concluded the program.
A gratifying sum was realized, which will be added to the Hall Fund. —Bur.

HOW TO REAR PULLETS ON THE RANGE

As soon as winter weather disappears, pullets can again be raised on the open range. Below are tested range-rearing management steps which, if followed, will result in a profitable flock:

- Chicks can be put on the range when they are about seven to eight weeks of age. When they near six weeks of age, separate the pullets from the cockerels and gradually change their feed from Miracle Chick Starter to Miracle Growing Mash.
- Give them scratch grain early in the day, and before they roost. Keep water fountains filled with fresh, clean water and either sprinkle medium size grit on top of their mash, or put it in separate hoppers.
- It is very necessary to provide "Range Shelters", a common size being 10 feet by 12 feet for 100 birds. Keep these shelters at least 250 feet apart and move them at least once every four weeks.
- When pullets reach 20% production it is time to put them on Miracle Laying Mash — making the change over a gradual one. Miracle Laying Mash will give layers everything they need to make eggs and still keep up their own strength.
- Range Shelters should be equipped with nests so that pullets will be used to these and not lay eggs on the floor when they are put in the laying house.
- Range-rearing also calls for good pasture conditions. Even when the soil has been properly prepared and the right grasses well established, a definite program of mowing and renewal is necessary to achieve best results and to guard against disease and parasite infestation.
- Pullets should be left on the range until 15% to 20% are laying. They should be graded before being housed, and the earliest maturing ones put into a separate pen. Some feed hoppers and water containers should be set on the floor at first, as range-bred birds are not used to flying up to raised hoppers and fountains.
