

Commission On Education Faces Big Job In Quebec

By ALEXANDER FARRELL
MONTREAL (CP)—An eight-member Quebec royal commission, up to its collective neck in briefs, is grinding its way through the most extensive public inquiry into education ever undertaken in Quebec.

The commission hopes to finish its public hearings by mid July but commission sources said the government may be obliged to extend the deadline for its report, now set at Dec. 31. One spokesman said the report may be issued in two or three parts rather than all at once, "so that the government and public will have some recommendations to consider by the end of the year."

He saw little hope that the complete report could be ready by Dec. 31.

The government meanwhile has indicated its willingness to mark time—undertaking no major initiatives in the field of education—until the commission has finished its work.

HEAR MANY BRIEFS
The commission has heard more than 100 briefs and held which comes not under the government but under the Council of Public Instruction.

The commission has heard spokesmen for two groups who do not fall naturally within the confessional structure as it now exists, the "laics"—a group of French-speaking laymen campaigning for "neutral" schools independent of any religious authority—and the Jews.

Canadian Jewish Congress spokesmen have said the Jewish community is willing, to continue the present arrangement whereby its children attend Protestant public schools, provided that Jewish parents as such have their own representatives on provincial and local education bodies.

Heavy Insurance Reported Carried By Crash Victims

NEW YORK (AP)—The 130 persons killed June 3 in a Paris jetliner crash carried $3,950,000 in insurance, the Institute of Life Insurance has estimated. The crash was "the worst single plane disaster in aviation history."

Of the total insurance, $3,950,000 was in all types of life insurance and the remaining $2,000,000 in travel accident policies. The institute said this was likely the third largest total for any plane accident.
