NERVOUS SYSTEM.

LIST OF DISORDERS CAUSED BY SPECIAL OCCUPATIONS.

An Italian Professor's Study of the Relation of Labor to Nervous Diseases—Children, Business Men and Laborers Suffer—Effect of the Bicycle Upon the Nerves.

Prof. Leonardo Cognetti di Martiis, of the University of Turin, discourses in the Giornali degli Economisti the relation of labor to nervous diseases. The article is mainly directed to showing that each occupation, mechanical or intellectual, has its peculiar nervous disease, and the enumeration as a whole, with its illustrative examples, forms a harrowing picture of the dangers attending modern industrial life. He begins by discussing the perils to the nerves of open-air workers.

Lightning is one of these. Not only does it kill twenty-two persons annually in England and seventy-one in France, but it leaves with shattered nerves many who escape death from the stroke. So of electricity used in various industries. A severe shock from electricity is always liable to produce important nervous changes in the victim. The malarial fevers to which many open air workers, especially agricultural laborers, are exposed are followed in many cases by severe nervous disorders and there is a true rural paralysis resulting from these fevers. Tetanus, which is commoner among the agriculturists than elsewhere, because the germ that produces the disease is often found in swampy ground, is followed by shocking nervous manifestations. Sunstroke often leaves its victim a prey to painful nervous disorders, and the peasant in the open fields, under the intense light of the summer sky, often suffers from nervous afflictions of the eye and more serious disturbances. Reflected light, as from snow, sometimes produces the familiar snow blindness, a nervous affection of the eye. It was once epidemic in southern Russia after a March snowstorm. One form of the disturbance makes the victim practically blind towards sunset and after nightfall. Foundrymen are subject to this form of the disease.

Miners, from an opposite cause, have painful nervous affections of the eye, accompanied with strange illusions, such as the apparent swaying back and forth of objects in the field of vision. Miners working in mountain shafts have the so-called mountain sickness, accompanied by headache, writhing of the body, hesitancy of movement, heart affections, nausea, and vomiting, sometimes followed by insensibility, delirium and coma. All these manifestations are to be ascribed in part at least to the rarefication of oxygen. Aeronauts have the same trouble. Even worse are the nervous disorders that attack men who continue under high atmospheric pressure. The voice becomes metallic, utterance is difficult, and in the case of some sounds impossible; hearing is impaired, muscles are knotted, and smell and taste are sometimes lost, while the laborer handles his tools with difficulty. Seasickness is a nervous affection that has a remarkable medical history, and for which no satisfactory remedy has been found.

Neurasthenia in many forms is the enemy of intellectual workers. The modern school often brings children to epilepsy and St. Vitus' dance. Stammering sometimes comes from mental overwork, and, while a large proportion of children enter school with sound eyes, near-sight is quickly developed and is found to increase regularly as the child advances from class to class. With this comes an actual weakening of the visual power at all distances. Headache, uncertainty of physical movement, sudden alternations of hot and cold, insomnia, and fleeting hallucinations are some of the results of too much mental labor in the case of children.

Business men engaged in speculative occupations are subject to neurasthenia, that manifests itself in the loss of the power of mental application. Madness often follows. Bianchi, the Italian student of nervous diseases, finds as a result of the pressure of modern life a tendency on the part of the young to imitate, accompanied by an intolerance of restraint and other signs of nervous degeneration.

Labor-saving machinery has resulted in making workmen work harder than ever with their nerves, and in severe nervous disorder among those that tend machines. The speed of modern machinery seems limited only by the power of the human attendant, and a constant strain of attention at a monotonous occupation tends to mental breakdown. Pain and cramp of the muscles, accompanied by forms of neuralgia, are some of the disturbances that affect the modern mechanical worker, driven by the pressure of his inanimate fellow-worker. The intense preoccupation and great manual speed of the piano player often produces paresis. Clarionet players have spasms of the tongue. Sewing machine makers, telegraphers, cigarmakers, buttonmakers and others required to maintain high speed at their work, are subject to like nervous disturbances immediately affecting the part of the body especially under strain, but extending to other parts. Dentist's leg is a paralytic affection of parts kept long under pressure. Paralysis of the hammer comes to the man that has one arm constantly plying a tool of the striking kind. It affects the right arm and the right eye is often sympathetically affected. Even the speech is impaired.

The professional bicyclist is subject to shocking nervous maladies. Two phenomena are specially marked in his case, excessive weariness and a mental or perhaps moral deterioration that makes him easily subject to suggestion. There is progressive loss of the power of attention, of critical sense, of judgment, and of all the higher psychic manifestations. The professor evidently has some doubt as to the advisibility of bicycling for women, save in very moderate fashion.

Persons accustomed to use the voice a great deal are subject to laryngeal spasms. Watchmakers and others using strong magnifying glasses become near-sighted. Workers amid strong odors, pleasant or otherwise, lose the sense of smell, as others lose that of hearing in noisy occupations. The mechanic workers more subject to nervous diseases are carters, coachmen, omnibus and street car conductors, fruit sellers, peripatetic vendors, tobacco dealers and workers, chemists, druggists, sewing machine workers, stationers, booksellers, printers, lithographers, and makers of fireworks.

The professor's list of employments in which the raw material or the finished product is deleterious to health and especially injurious to the nerves of the worker includes gas-making, coke burning, dynamite manufacturing, brandy making, tanning, well digging chemical works of various sorts, working in the more volatile metals, and a dozen other occupations. The nervous injury extends all the way from slight affections of some single organ to loss of the essential powers, mental and physical. Some of the peculiar poisons thus absorbed into the system produce in some victims a tendency to foolish gayety, in others sleepiness, dullness, loss of memory, impairment of sight and hearing and convulsions. Men employed in some chemical works lose sensitiveness of skin and are consequently unable to do any delicate manual task. The vapor of petroleum constantly inhaled has a narcotic effect. Finally, men exposed to violent shocks, such as often come to railway employes, are likely to suffer from severe nervous changes, attended at times with impairment of vision or with general nervous breakdown, superinduced in part, no doubt, by the constant nervous strain of their responsibility. The professor is not seeking remedies for all this, but stating facts; nevertheless, he seems to have hope that the shortening of the hours of labor in perilous occupations might lessen the evil results to the employes. New York Sun.

When Creditors Lose Nothing.

A novel plan to get ahead of other creditors and not lose anything by the failure of a customer, has been devised by some Canadian manufacturers. It has been in use for some time, but is not generally known.

The manufacturers sell goods subject to a discount of 50 to 60 per cent., with an extra 5 for cash. The goods are invoiced, however, at a gross or list price, and a memo attached saying that if the account is paid on July 1 a discount of 50 (or 60, as the case may be) and 5 per cent. will be allowed. If not paid before August 1 they will not get the extra 5 per cent. If not paid by October 1 no discount whatever will be allowed. If the buyer fails, the creditors at once make a claim for the full amount of the invoice, which is in reality 50 per cent. more than the actual market value of the article. That is, an article which usually sells at $1 and is invoiced by everyone else at that price is invoiced by these particular manufacturers at $2, less 50 per cent. if paid at the usual time. If the estate pays 50 cents on the dollar, by this system these manufacturers get the full amount of their actual claim—and sometimes more—while the others get only 50 per cent. or less.

The scheme is a clever one, but recently the inspectors, representing other creditors, when examining the affairs of the estate, have "got onto it," when there has been unusually a "pretty row," after which the clever manufacturers must amend their claims. A number of estates, however, have been wound up without the inspectors discovering the trick.

HEART-BEATS.

The Reason Why the Heart Flutters, Palpitates, and is Oppressed, and How to Relieve It.

The heart has a hard old time of it and within itself does not excite much disease, but it is very often called upon to display the troubling symptoms of palpitation, fluttering, labored breathing, oppression, etc., on account of diseased Kidneys offering increased resistance to the passage of the blood through their defective secretive structures, causing a morbid change in the blood unsuited to nourish the tissues and noxious to them. The minute arteries resist the passage of this foul blood, resulting in the muscular walls of the arteries and the ventricle of the heart becoming partially paralyzed, and from this cause results much of the so-called heart disease, which is owing to wasting Kidneys not being able to perform their functions. In order to relieve heart trouble remove the cause in the Kidneys with Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They relieve the blood of poisonous deposits, it goes on its way a stream of health, relieving the heart and imparting strength to every tissue of the body. When your heart is in trouble Chase's Pills quickly remove the causing condition, no matter whether it exists on account of disorder of the kidneys, liver, stomach, or of nervous affection. SAVED HIS LIFE

"I now weigh nearly 200 pounds," said a fine, robust looking man the other day; and yet this same man was given up to die of consumption less than two years ago. What cured him? Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil did. He took it when at a low ebb, when his weight was less than 100 pounds. It created new blood for him and that combined with his will power raised him up to a life of usefulness and happiness. If you are threatened with consumption or any lung trouble try Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil. Miller's Emulsion is the great nerve strengthener and blood maker, and cures Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Scrofula and all lung affections. In Big Bottles, 50c. and $1, at all Drug Stores.
