rolling southward from the Manchurian border on down to western and central fronts. In 24 hours ending late Monday the airforce claimed 500 Red trucks and other vehicles destroyed or damaged out of a total estimated at more than 1,700.

In Washington the navy announced the destroyer-escort William Seiverville suffered some damage but no casualties Sunday. It was hit directly three times by Communist shore batteries at Wonsan, on the east coast.

Official sources would not reveal the number of rockets which landed behind Allied lines north of Hwachon and east of Kumhuwa in the central sector. Reports indicated, however, only a small number were fired.

The nearest sized Allied missile is the air force's five inch (127-millimeter) air-to-ground type rocket.
Use of the rockets, which required skilled handling suggested that they may have been brought to North Korea by non-Chinese Red troops reported near the battlefront recently by Gen. Ridgway's headquarters.

132-millimeter Katushas used by the Russians in the last war were regarded as "exotic" but produced an awesome effect when fired in great numbers.

Look To Death Valley For New Steel Component

MONTREAL, Sept. 10 (CP)—Members of the Society of Automobile Engineers said today they are pinning their hopes on California's Death Valley as a source for components of steel hardening alloys for North America's expanding armament program.

The engineers, meeting here for a three-day convention, are seeking a substitute for such materials as nickel, chrome and magnesium in the making of steel alloys. Customary alloy materials are currently in short supply, but borax, a steel hardening material, is in plentiful supply in Death Valley.

The engineers hope that a by-product of borax known as boron will be found rugged enough for aircraft industry. It has been used widely for the last year in the manufacture of automobiles.

A special panel of engineers will examine the new process, and if it is found acceptable, it will be recommended to the aircraft industry.

Probe Toronto Education Bd. Expenditures

TORONTO, Sept. 10 (CP)—An investigation was ordered today into $49,000 worth of Toronto Board of Education expenditures which have been criticized, in an auditor's report.

The auditor's report questions 48 items in the board's 1950 account books. The items include one for almost $5,000 to Finance Board chairman G. Blair Laing's trip to a United Nations cultural conference in France in July, 1950. Another item was for $20 to send a "basket of flowers" to the reopening of Mr. Laing's art studio.

Mr. Laing described the questioned expenses as "infinitesimal" in comparison with the whole budget of the board, amounting to $17,000,000 or $18,000,000.

However, Mayor Hiram McCallum, on hearing of the city auditor's criticism, said he was ordering an investigation.

Says Canadians Best Liked By South Koreans

REGINA, Sept. 10 (CP)—Lt. Col. J. A. Hutchins, commander of the army's Saskatchewan area, said in an interview today that with South Koreans Canadians are by far the most popular of the United Nations forces.

Col. Hutchins returned from Korea where he acted as defence counsel for three Canadian soldiers convicted by a military court in connection with the killing of several South Koreans.

Contrary to any impressions that might have been gained through the trials, Canadian troops in Korea are well disciplined and extremely well behaved, Col. Hutchins said.

"They treat the South Koreans, as individuals, with kindness and generosity and the South Koreans respond very quickly."
Incidents were bound to occur when thousands of troops were miles from home under the strain of battle.

Col. Hutchins said a majority of the Canadian soldiers understand the aims and objectives of the United Nations in Korea.

Congress Protests High Living Costs

(By John LeBlanc, Canadian Press Staff Writer)
HALIFAX, Sept. 10 (CP)—The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada today tackled the Federal Government on the issue of high living costs.

Opening the T. L. C.'s annual convention, delegates representing 500,000 workers adopted a declaration censuring the Government for "lack of interest" in the welfare of Canadians in not putting price-control controls into effect.

It said the Government's "stubborn attitude" is responsible for lack of price controls.

The policy statement adopted by the Congress also suggested by the Combines Act should be used to hold down prices, particularly in preventing manufacturers from setting retail prices of their products.

At the starting session of its week-long convention, the approximately 400 delegates plunged immediately into a full day's work of dealing with resolutions covering policy in a wide range of national, social and labor matters.
