It is thought that the experience of former attempts under similar circumstances and with like results should have taught the Marine Dept. to at least land her cargo at Georgetown before making such an attempt."

"It is with pleasure the people of Red Pt. learn that they are about to have a new resident in the person of Wallace Bruce of Kingsboro who has bought the excellent farm property of Alex McLean. The farm borders on the shore and is in good condition the former occupants having made a specialty of market gardening. There is also a good growth of hard and soft wood at the rear while the buildings are in good repair. Mr. and Mrs. McLean will still live in their old home while Mr. Bruce will occupy a new house erected on the place a few years ago. The neighbors anticipate with pleasure the time when Mr. Bruce will take a permanent partner to share in his labor and success."

Money-Saving Prices on Good Dependable Fishing Supplies

The prudent fisherman is laying plans for his summer's work—he is working energetically looking forward with pleasant anticipations to the result of his efforts.

Even before the fishermen completed their last season's work our buyer was busy placing immense orders for the coming season. The world's best markets were at our command, and the most reliable manufacturers gladly consented to supply samples of their goods in order that we might investigate the particular merits of each line and when we can handle more goods than a dozen small stores it's reasonable to conclude that we get special prices.

Probably in no line of merchandizing is the old axiom "Pennywise-Pound Foolish" more applicable. Merchants are continually offered cheaper lines to compete against high quality goods, and while these goods offer better profit to merchants the result is far from satisfactory to fishermen—and some over-shrewd dealers fall prey to this shortsighted policy.

For over half a century this firm has catered to fishermen—and our policy has always been reliable goods, in no case would we handle goods of inferior merit for the sake of extra profit. While substituting cheaper goods sometimes pays small dealers still we realize that the effect upon a business the size of Holman's would be disastrous.

If you appreciate our policy—if you want to realize the far-reaching effect of the Holman Guarantee of Satisfaction send us your order. Write us stating your requirements and your enquiry will have our most efficient attention—WRITE.
