LONDON, (CP)—Governor-General Massey says Canada may be on the threshold of her own Elizabethan age.

Speaking Wednesday night on the 86th anniversary of Canadian confederation, he surveyed the nation's growth materially and spiritually and decided that for Canadians the old, self-conscious, doubting days are over.

"It is not easy to give any clear or acute impression of all that is going on," he said in a dinner address. "I think, however, it may not be complacent or fanciful to suggest that Canada, in youthful vigor, enthusiasm and confidence, halting her youthful and beloved sovereign, may even now be approaching her own Elizabethan age."

Mr. Massey, here on a private visit, was addressing the Canada Club, sometimes called the oldest dining club in London. It was formally organized in 1810 and traces its origin to the fur traders of the Northwest Company.

British cabinet ministers, distinguished members of London's diplomatic corps and many prominent Canadians were among the 500 guests.

Mr. Massey opened and closed a reflective address by stressing the unifying influence of the Crown on Canadian and Commonwealth affairs.

The fire started shortly before noon and was brought under control eight hours later by more than 400 firefighters. Cause of the fire was not known.

KAMLOOPS (CP)—Hon. George Drew took a day's rest from campaigning Wednesday and drove here into the cariboo country for a Dominion Day stampede celebration at Bridge Lake, 100 miles northwest of Kamloops.

The Progressive Conservative leader flew here from Vancouver in the morning on the first leg of his return trip through Western Canada from the West Coast.

He was met at the airport by Dave Fulton, Progressive Conservative candidate in this Kamloops constituency.

Mr. Drew planned no speeches for the day.

Canadians celebrated Dominion Day by attending sports events, barbecues and picnics, by taking one-day trips to points in Canada or to neighboring United States centres, or by enjoying themselves at cottages and beaches.

A Canadian Press survey of the nation's 86th birthday celebrations showed the weather generally favorable, although heat waves generated thunderstorms in some sections.

U.K. Conservatives Win By-election

ABINGDON, Eng. (Reuters)—The Conservative government Wednesday won a by-election in the "atom" constituency, retaining its slender 16-vote majority in the House of Commons.

Abingdon is traditionally a Conservative seat, but the Labor party felt it had a good chance this time because of the thousands of workers at the nearby Harwell atom establishment.

The party of Sir Winston Churchill, however, won by a big margin over Labor, 22,100 votes. Labor candidate Ted C. had 17,126 and George R. Liberal, 3,060.

Rhee Advised No Further Concessions

SEOUL (Reuters)—President Syngman Rhee has summoned South Korea's Council of State and national defence committee to meet today to discuss a reply to the final United States compromise offer on a Korean truce.

As Rhee summoned his top military and cabinet advisers, the U. S. weighed his demands to the latest American bids to reconcile him to a Korean armistice.

Informed sources said the U. S. had warned Rhee he could expect no more concessions as the price of his co-operation in the armistice he opposes so bitterly.

These sources said Rhee was told the U. S. was ready to go ahead and negotiate an armistice without his participation.

His answer will influence the attitude of Walter Robertson, President Eisenhower's special envoy, when he resumes his talks with Rhee today.

In Washington, Eisenhower told a press conference he believed a satisfactory solution would be reached with Rhee.

An American source said Tuesday night that Rhee accepted U. S. terms last Saturday, then changed his mind the next day.

Heavy Schedule Yesterday For Prime Minister

(Canadian Press Staff Writer) WITH ST. LAURENT, (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent, campaigning through all four Atlantic seaboard provinces in a day's plane travel, Wednesday crowded in three speeches, a look at holiday racing and a visit to the birthplace of Confederation.

Starting from Saint John, N. B., the prime minister paid a Dominion Day call on the Charlottetown chamber where the Fathers of Confederation met in conferences that ripened into the Confederation Canada celebrated Wednesday.

Then he sat through a light harness race in Summerside, P.E.I., speaking at both Island points, and flew to Sydney for his third speech, detouring for an air view of the $24,000,000 Canso causeway that will link Cape Breton with the Nova Scotia mainland.

Wednesday night he was to push on by plane for St. John's, Nfld.

On his Prince Edward Island stops, as the islanders took the day off for sports, Mr. St. Laurent did little direct politicking, except for a heavy round of hand shaking and a private conference at Charlottetown with P. E. I. Liberals and Resources Minister Winters and State Secretary John W. Pickersill, with him on this leg of the tour.

At Summerside, after a short flight from Charlottetown, he ran

Death Widely Mourned

The development of Canada to where it has become one of the foremost nations of the world formed the keynote of a speech delivered here yesterday by Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent, Prime Minister, during a brief stop in this city.

Mr. St. Laurent also made mention of the greater tolerance achieved in this country when he said: "Today there is greater respect and appreciation than ever before for those who differ from each other in religion, in language, in national origin or in local loyalty. We have achieved a sense of unity." He added that we recognize that our existence as a distinctive Canadian nation depends not only in holding common ideas but also in respecting and protecting those things in which we differ from one another.

The Prime Minister, who spoke from the balcony of the Provincial Building, was delayed in arrival by the late landing of his plane here. As a result the contemplated call at Government House was cancelled and he addressed the gathering before visiting Confederation Chamber instead of afterwards as had been planned.

Introduced By Premier

He was introduced by Hon. A. W. Matheson, Premier of the Province, who extended a welcome on behalf of the Province. The Premier also welcomed Hon. Robert W. Winters, Minister of Resources and Development, a native of Lunenburg, N. S., and Hon. John W. Pickersill, Secretary of State, of Bonaville, Newfoundland, who signed the special guest book in the Chamber as "a freshman politician."

Presiding on the balcony was Mr. W. A. Currie, Summerside, president of the P. E. I. Liberal Association, who made the introductory remarks. He said that 86 years ago in this historic city was born a nation and that the gathering was to commemorate the occasion. He termed Confederation an "experiment in expediency" because it united people of different backgrounds, different culture and different outlooks.

Mr. Currie said that through the years Canada has been guided by many great men and that it was fitting that on this birthday of the country the Prime Minister should be here. He then called on Premier Matheson to introduce the country's leader.

In World Affairs

In noting how Canada has grown in world stature the Prime Minister said we are now fully recognized in the councils of the world and are expected to do our full share to preserve the heritage of human civilization from the threat of universal destruction. He stated that most Canadians were grateful that under the British Crown we had the right to manage our own affairs at home.

He noted that between the two Great Wars recognition of our
