BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

POSTURE COUNTS

A little group of people stood on the river bank, their eyes scanning the heavens. Large flocks of Herring Gulls, with a few Ring-billed and Great Black-backed mixed in, flew back and forth, an individual now and again landing for a moment on some projecting rock or the shore of a small, sandy island lying at the far side of the rapids, perhaps 200 yards distant.

"There's a Black-crowned Night Heron!" one of the bird watchers suddenly exclaimed. "It's darker than the Gulls, and a tiny bit larger than most of them. And look at the different way it flies!

Its wings are broader, and they are beating steadily." "I see another Night Heron," called out a second member of the party, "just rounding the bend of the island. Now it's landing on the beach."

Identification of these odd birds while in flight required experts for in colouring they appeared to be fairly similar to their associ-

Experimental Farm Woodlots

The last of the wood is being removed this week from the woodlots of the Experimental Farm, anything big enough to make a 2 by 4 has been used for lumber and the balance has been taken for firewood.

Mr. R. C. Parent, Superintendent of the Farm, said yesterday that farmers the same as any other field. All the others receive special treatment and for woodlots he maintained that selective cutting would add to the "harvest" and help the woodlot to develop properly.

ates: mostly grey, with some black above, and white underneath. But soon the first Night Heron came down, alighting on a rock only a few yards from the eager observers. Sitting there in its characteristic, hunched-up position, neck contracted, the bird could no longer be taken for any Gull. Yet the short legs were very confusing to anybody whose experience with Herons had taught him to expect extremely long legs like those of the Great Blue Heron, the best known member of the family. And when a Great Blue Heron hunched, its long neck has to be folded back.

Had this little scene taken place in autumn, with immature instead of adult Black-crowned Night Herons as leading actors, even more confusion could have arisen for young birds are not coloured at all like their parents and the Gulls. Their plumage makes us think of American Bitterns, because though their brown coats have a slight greyish tinge, yet they are spotted and streaked with white in the Bittern-like. Indeed, because of same way. Their posture, too, is their colouring, their necks, their legs, and their size it is very easy

Bedeque Notes

Several of the homes in Bedeque village are having oil-burning ranges installed. It is claimed that oil is no more expensive than coal or wood and is much more convenient.

Mrs. James Arbing of this village celebrated her 81st birthday on Monday April 13th. She received congratulations from neighbors and friends, who all wish her many more happy birthdays.

—On Friday April 17th, Miss Georgie MacFarlane, R. N., left for England to attend the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth II. She is accompanied by her niece, Mrs. Eric Corbett of Alberton. Mrs. Corbett is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. MacFarlane of Fernwood.

About 25 from the Bedeque congregation attended the mass meeting in Trinity Church, Summerston on Monday evening April 13th to hear the Moderator of the United Church of Canada, the Right

Rev. A. A. Scott. A dozen of the men of Bedeque United Church Men's Association attended the banquet in honour of the United Church of Canada Moderator, Rt. Rev. Dr. A. A.

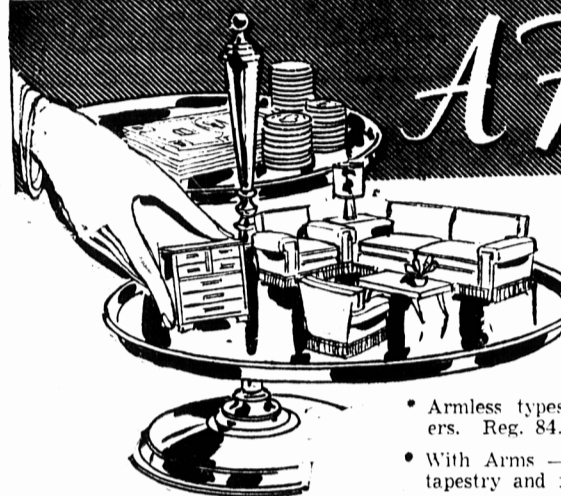

Scott, in Charlottetown on Tuesday evening April 14th. Rev. and Mrs. Crowe were also in the City in connection with the visit of the Moderator and his wife.
