IMPRESSIONS OF AMERICA.

Conan Doyle gives his views upon the National Society of American Citizens. A Conan Doyle, recently returned to England after a lecturing tour in the United States, writes to the London Times as follows: "I am an Englishman who travels in the United States comes back, according to my experience, with two impressions, which are so strong that they overshadow all others. One is of the excessive kindness which is shown to individual Englishmen. The other is of the bitter feeling which appears to exist both in the press and among the public against his own country. The present ebullition is only one of those recurrent crises which have marked the whole history of the two nations. The feeling is always smoldering, and the least breath of discussion sets it in a blaze. I believe, and have long believed, that the greatest danger, which can threaten our empire is the existence of this spirit of hostility in a nation which is already great and powerful, but which is destined to be far greater than either of us. Our statesmen have stood too long with their faces toward the east. To discern our best hopes as well as our gravest dangers they must turn their eyes westward. As to the cause of this feeling, it is not so unreasonable as Englishmen usually contend. It is the fashion among us to apportion the blame to the wrong American and the politician who is in search of his vote. But no such superficial explanation as this can cover the fact that the governors of thirty American states should unhesitatingly endorse a presidential message which obviously leads straight to war. A dislike so widely spread and so fierce in its expression cannot be explained by the imported animosity of the Celtic Irishman.

Few Englishmen could be found now to contend that we were justified in those views of taxation which brought on the first American war, or in the question of searching neutral vessels which was the main cause of the second. The war of 1812 would possibly only occupy two pages out of 500 in an English history, but it bulks very large in an American one. It has left many bitter memories behind it. Then there was the early attitude which England adopted towards the States after they had won their independence. The repeated frictions during the Napoleonic epoch, and the attack upon an American frigate by a British fifty-gun ship in time of peace. After the war there was the burning of the Maine in the harbor of Havana, the question of the Oregon line, the settlement of the Maine and New Brunswick lines, and finally, the hostile attitude of the most important states at the time of the civil war. Since then we have had two burning questions, that of the Alabama claims and of the Boer war, and the question of the rights of the United States in the Gulf of Mexico. The history of this country, then, as it presents itself to an American with a knowledge of the past, is simply a long succession of quarrels which are not yet ended. It is wonderful that if he has never reached that chronic state of sensitiveness and suspicion which we have not outgrown ourselves in the case of the French.

If we are to blame as a community for some of these unfortunate historical incidents, we are even more to blame as individuals for the widespread bitterness which is felt against us. We have never had a warm, ungrudging word of heartfelt praise for the great things which our kindred has done, for their unwearied industry, their virtues in peace, their doggedness in war, their unparalleled clemency when war was over. We have always fastened upon the small, real detail and overlooked the great facts behind. In our shocked contemplation of an expectation upon their floor we have lost sight of national suffrage and equal education. Our travelers, from Mrs. Trollope and Dickens onward, have been surprised that the versatile hard-working men who often combine the varying needs of a growing community with the manners of the Oxford and Cambridge students. They could not understand that this rough vitality and overbearing energy which carried them through their work implied these complementary defects which must go with universal virtues. Of all English travelers to the States there was hardly one who did not make mischief, with his reminiscences until, in our own days, Mr. Bryce did something to rectify the balance. And our want of charity and true insight are the more inexcusable, since no one has written more charmingly of England than Washington Irving, Emerson and Holmes. Our journals and newspapers are full of this now, as a rule, of alluding to America and Americans in the most friendly way, and that must in time have its effect, if recent unpropitious events do not change it. We should, in my opinion, lose no opportunity of doing those little graceful acts of kindness which are the practical sign of a brotherly sentiment. Above all, we should like to see an Anglo-American society started in London, with branches all over the empire, for the purpose of promoting good feeling, smoothing over friction, laying literature before the public which will show them how strong are the arguments in favor of an Anglo-American alliance, and supplying the English press with the American side of the question and vice versa. Such an organization would, I am sure, be easily founded, and would have the cooperation of the greatest of all empires, the consolidation of the English-speaking races.

Down the stair Halling. Infinite variety is one of the chief charms of Miss Ellen Terry, the actress. A role which she now has in contemplation shows the versatility of her talents. Miss Terry does gracefully what no other woman would dare attempt at all. It is said among her feminine friends that when moved by the spirit of improvisation, she is wonderful and amusing to a degree. "I am perfectly well able and not at all up to date in the matter of musical comedy," she related always her wonderful flexibility of body and gracious suppleness of limb. It was but a few weeks ago she went to call on a sister professional recovering from a long illness. Miss Terry was asked upstairs into the sick woman's bedroom, and she spent an hour condescending and tea sipping. The revived friend followed her visitor out into the upper hallway, but there Miss Terry made her affectionate adieu. "You must not think of following me below, my child," she insisted, gently. "Indeed, with a funny little twinkle glowing in her eyes. 'I am perfectly well able to see myself down so good-by, good-by.' Whereupon, with a soft chuckle and warm hands, she, this charming queen of tragedy and comedy put one knee over the top of the long inclined stair railing and slid like a rocket down into the hall below. There she gave her skirts a shake, her bonnet a few pats and let herself out the front door, smiling gaily at the speechless amazement of her friend, who had watched the performance from the landing above.

DANGERS OF SPRING

Children die in the spring. Blotches bloom in the spring. Boils break out in the spring. Women weaken in the spring. Men lose energy in the spring. Pimples protrude in the spring. Old people suffer in the spring. Malaria is deadly in the spring. La Grippe spreads in the spring. Doctors' bills grow in the spring. Undertakers thrive in the spring. All diseases germinate in the spring. Scott's Sarsaparilla cures in the spring. "Scott's Sarsaparilla is the most popular and successful spring medicine we sell. Everybody uses it."—J. D. Todd, druggist, Queen St. W., Toronto. Write Mr. Todd, or any other druggist for particulars.

INSANITY'S WARNINGS.

They are Always Given Though the Victim May Not Recognize Them. Dr. Forbes Winslow, the specialist in mental disorders, contributes an interesting paper to the February Harper's on "Precognitions of Insanity," in which he says: "Insanity, like a number of other complaints, creeps on gradually and assiduously, and may have made serious ravages before its presence is suspected or apparent. There are so many varieties that each in its own individual way may be said to have different phases. Among some of the most important precursive indications of mental disorder may be mentioned extreme irritability and excitability, often accompanied by intense loquaciousness. There is also great difficulty in the early stages in concentrating the thoughts and ideas, or of turning or fixing the mind on any one subject for any considerable time. The victim will doubtless be neglected his work and ordinary employment for no rational reason, and he will have turned his thoughts and attentions to matters totally foreign to his natural temperament. From having been a neat and tidy person he will have become careless and, indeed, it often happens that all his general usages and customs are completely changed. He may have insomnia of a distressing character, and suffer from great restlessness, pacing the bed-chamber during the night, unable to rest tranquilly. There is often found in the earlier stages of mental derangement a disposition to shun society, and to seek seclusion and solitude. He may be unusually elated or depressed, according to the form of insanity which is ultimately developed in him. The desire for this solitude is often one of the most important indications in our diagnosis of what is coming. There often is a great deal of morbid suspicion existing, frequently associated with a delusion that he is watched or followed about. Delusions, hallucinations, and illusions may either be present or absent in the early stage, though sooner or later they will generally show themselves in one form or the other. The memory often becomes defective, especially in cases which are likely to become chronic, and this is frequently observed by the very unfavourable many murders and suicides are committed by those so afflicted, acting up to the belief that the voices must be obeyed to the letter, and therefore they do what they imagine they have been told to do. Sometimes the symptoms will be dormant for a considerable period, whilst in other cases there is an absence of any important indications of mental derangement. Cases, however, wherein insanity occurs without previous warnings are uncommon, though they do sometimes occur. Some persons first become insane whilst listening to sermons or discourses, but in such cases there must have been some strong hereditary disposition to insanity which would cooperate with the exciting cause. A wicked conscience tortures one; a weak life becomes painfully conscious; the mind constantly dwells upon itself. All the past is revealed to us like a hideous dream. It is a most curious but significant fact that strangers, as a rule, detect the indications of mental weakness before the family of the afflicted one can realize it. Many persons appear to dream although awake, but they are, to all intents and purposes, insensible to the impressions and actions which surround them. A mental shock is responsible for many a sudden case of insanity.

The Color of Eyes. "The artificial eye is cheap enough," says a famous maker of such articles. "The best kind only costs a few dollars, and it lasts generally about a year. My customers include many of the prominent men. Those people are chiefly sportsmen, who have an accident while shooting. The most frequent losses of sight occur among children, through their carelessness with fireworks, stone-throwing, and the like. "Out of the 5,000 people I attended in the course of the year, I have noticed that the color of their eyes marks the different localities in which they reside. The commonest hue is the gray-blue; and with scarcely a single exception all my patients in New England have eyes of that color. In the west, the prevailing color is hazel and dark brown. In New York, however, you get as varied a mixture of color in the eyes as you do in people. The rarest colored eyes are violet. Curiously enough, out of the thousands of patients who have passed through my hands I can only call to mind two of them who had eyes of a violet hue."

Pumice Stone. Of the many people who use pumice stone few ever think of its origin or from where it is obtained. Pumice stone is a kind of lava ejected from volcanic mountains. After the gases have escaped from the molten mass thrown out by the active volcano, a porous substance called pumice stone remains. Nearly all the pumice stone found in the market is obtained from the island of Lipari, just off the western coast of Italy and north of the island of Sicily. The mountain, Chica, a volcano 2,000 feet in height, furnishes an inexhaustible supply of pumice stone. All the stone already excavated has been obtained from a spot three square miles in area. In the past, 1,000 men are constantly employed mining the pumice stone. They cut it in square blocks for shipping.

To Recognize Cuba. WASHINGTON, March 20.—In the Senate today, Mr. Morgan (Dem., Ala.) introduced the following resolution: Resolved, that it is hereby declared that a state of public war exists in the Island of Cuba, between the Government of Spain and the people of that island, who are supporting a separate government under the name of the republic of Cuba and a state of belligerency between the said governments is hereby recognized. A CHRISTIAN PREDICTION.—Rev. Mr. Christman, a Winnipeg clergyman, in the course of a sermon last Sunday, made some startling prophecies, drawing his deductions from the Book of Daniel. He said: "This year, or at the latest, in the spring of 1897, there would be a big European war, Turkey would be dismembered, and France, by conquering Germany, would regain her lost provinces up to the left bank of the Rhine. By Passover week, April 11, 1897, the Jews will have returned to Palestine and would be recognized once again by all the great powers of the world. In 1901, Christ will return to the earth with all the apostles and saints and reign here 1,000 years. There is great difference of opinion as to whether there will not be any death during the last period. It is certain, however, that a man one hundred years old will be as a child in the matter of years."

Mr. Bayard Ceasured.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—In the house today a vote was taken on the resolution censuring Mr. Bayard for his utterances as U. S. representative in London. The roll call resulted: yeas 180, nays 71. The vote taken on the resolution that diplomatic officers should not make partisan speeches resulted: yeas 151, nays 59.

Kind War is from the Fred Vitor Mission Bible Class. I wish to express my gratitude to you for the box of Chae-O-Niment which you supplied in a box of our church last week. Ten days ago the child was fully afflicted with cholera, and he has been literally one ead from a child to a man in that brief time a complete cure has been effected. Surely your gift was worth more than its weight in gold. 264 Shelburne St., Toronto.

Completely Knocked Out.

"It was so much run down I had to give up work, and I felt as if life was not worth living," writes Wm. Thompson, Zephyr, Ont. "Scott's Sarsaparilla and my own feelings as I did year ago, but I literally one ead from a child to a man in that brief time a complete cure has been effected. Surely your gift was worth more than its weight in gold. 264 Shelburne St., Toronto.

Whatever is pure is also simple.—Wilton. God taste is the flower of good sense.—Poincelot. I'm All Nonsense For people to say there is no cure for consumption. Sufferers from that dread disease and kindred ailments are being saved every day by Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil. Do not die without giving it a fair trial. It will cure either it will cure you. The secret of its success lies in the fact that it creates new blood in the system, thus enabling sufferers from lung troubles to overcome the destructive forces at work to waste the tissues of the body. Miller's Emulsion is the great curative remedy for all ailments arising from Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Scrofula, and all Lung affections. In big bottles, 50c and $1, at all drug stores. "Truth is everlasting, but our ideas of truth are not.—Brewster. PARALYSIS CURABLE. Stricken Ones to be Seen Everywhere. This Form of Living Death Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills. The most startling example of human helplessness is the paralysis. The victim vacillates your commiseration, but reverts your pity. He of the palsied hand stiffly pressing the lumbous side is to be seen everywhere we go. The most convincing proof that this pitiable condition is the outcome of kidney disease is the fact that Dodd's Kidney Pills cure. It is generally recognized as a kidney disease, and accumulates in the treatment. Did you ever know of a cure? Just think a moment! If you do it must have been the work of Dodd's Kidney Pills, for no other medicine ever yet cured. A heavy purse in a fool's pocket is a heavy curse.—Cumberland. The Weather For Colds. This is the time when colds are in the fashion—everybody who is anybody has one, if not himself there's one in the family. For no complaint under the sun are there more remedies than for a cold in the head. The most famous of these is Chamberlain's Cough Cure is the best. "In twelve hours I was cured of a bad cold in the head by Chamberlain's Cure," writes Miss Dwyer, Alliston, Ont. 25c. of all druggists, with blotter.

The Vancouver Dispatch. The Best Advertisements. Many thousands of unsolicited letters have reached the manufacturers of Scott's Emulsion from those cured through its use, of Consumption and Scrofula diseases. None can speak so confidently of its merit as those who have tried it. Canada Makes a Vigorous Speech. OTTAWA, March 20.—Hon. Mr. Foster gives notice of an important resolution regarding the scheduling of Canadian cattle by England, and affirming that this parliament, whilst not wishing to interfere in any way with legislation considered necessary by the United Kingdom, desires respectfully to protest against the permanent exclusion of Canadian cattle on the ground of the existence of pleuro pneumonia in Canada, and to express in the strongest possible manner its belief that such a measure is unjust and oppressive. It does not at the present time exist in Canada.

CASTORIA for Infants and Children. MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphia?

Do You Know that opium and morphia are stupefying narcotics? Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons? Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed? Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle? Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Picher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined? Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, has issued exclusive right to Dr. Picher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense? Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless? Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose? Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest? Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts. The fac-simile signature of Dr. H. Picher is on every wrapper. Children Cry for Picher's Castoria.
