A CORRESPONDENT of the Summerside Journal says that on the evening of the 10th inst., fire was discovered in McKinnon's saw mill, Coleman Station, and gained headway so rapidly that nothing could be done to save the building and machinery, which are a total loss. No insurance. Mr. McKinnon is a very heavy loser, and through his misfortune the whole community are great losers, as many of the people depended upon him for employment. His establishment was one of the finest of the kind in the county, and Mr. McKinnon spared no expense to render it safe from fire, the boiler and furnace room being built of brick. At the time of the fire, the mill was undergoing repairs, and it is supposed that it caught fire from sparks from a pipe or the carpenter's stove.

Sir Charles Tupper in Paris.

HE TALKS ABOUT IMPERIAL FEDERATION TO AN INTERVIEWER.

Sir Charles Tupper, the Canadian High Commissioner in Great Britain, was interviewed in Paris a few days ago, on the question of Colonial Federation. He appeared to be less sanguine on the subject than are many influential Englishmen. He said he thought loose legal ties were preferable and safer than hard and fast ones, which would inevitably cause contention. He advocated the admission of Colonial delegates to the English Cabinet, but only for the discussion of Colonial affairs. The idea of a Federal Parliament he looked upon as chimerical. "How," he asked, "could the majority enforce its behests without provoking secession?" He admitted that growth of military empire meant England and her colonies, but he contended the same causes which were ruining the territorial aristocracy of England would crush out of existence every military empire which failed to change its ways.

Upon being asked whether there was a disposition on the part of the United States to acquire Canada, he replied, " unquestionably, but the time has gone by for getting. We have become a big morsel to eat. We have a union placed upon a firm basis. We are intensely loyal to our institutions and to the Queen. The Dominion is delighted to pay $50,000 yearly to English noblemen to represent the Crown." He said the astonishing veering in England toward democracy had tended to promote closer sympathy between the Mother Country and the Colonies. Colonists disliked an aristocracy, but the Crown was an historic rallying point. He thought, perhaps, the time was ripe for what he called an intercolonial and British family tariff, and a tariff for the rest of the world. He had conversed on this subject with the late Mr. Wm. Forster, who said: "Although I am a free trader, I would gladly waive free trade to the extent you suggest in order to forward such a great result as a closer union of Great Britain and the Colonies."
