

NEWS FROM ROBIN'S NEST

by Robin Clow

There has been some talk around campus as well as much talk at Council and in the newspaper of the role of a university education in our lives and the role we the students play in the university. While I'm to be writing about sports in this column, and I feel that sports play a very large and integral role in our halcyon days here at UPEI, it's also important that we pay some attention to the exercise of our minds. With this in mind, the coming Symposium on the role of a Liberal Arts education (Nov. 6 & 7) provides an excellent chance for everyone to open their minds for a day. By everyone I don't mean only the infamous minority, the Artsies of campus, but also the Jocks, Business students, Home Ec., Engineers or Professional Faculties, shall we say. On personal experience those who succeed in any endeavour are those who become involved in all facets of it.

Our university life is made up of studies, partying, sports, drinking, but most importantly socializing, whether this be in the form of discussing baseball over a beer, the co-ed in a room in Bernadine or Philosophy in the library the important part is our interaction with each other. Whether you intend on going to the symposium or not at least open your mind a bit to that Artsie or Engineer or Business student. Besides, you never know. You might learn something, and after all, isn't that what we're here for?

Now to football. I've just finished reading Jock Talk by the inimitable J.T. "Mickey" Place and he has covered the game of the past weekend quite well. Mickey tells me it isn't his place to criticize and his only slight mention of the second half of the game shows his benevolence in journalism.

The Panthers won their first game this weekend and there is no taking that away from them but I'm about to try to reclaim some of it. In all my years of contact with CIAU football I've never seen a worse team than the Mt. Allison Mounties and I've seldom seen a worse game than the one just past. In my first column I said that the Panthers couldn't help but improve but now I wonder if that was true. The Panthers this year are on the whole a young, inexperienced and small team and I believe that if such a team is to improve then a great deal of time and effort should be put into the fundamentals of the game - blocking, tackling, passing and running. I don't know who is responsible for the fact that few good blocks were thrown, few good tackles were made and few good passes were thrown but I would say that unless great improvement is made in the basics of the game, Acadia will blow them off the field next week.

It's unfair to the team as a whole to say that everyone played badly. I'm not a good enough spotter to see all the good plays or all the bad ones but the people who caught my eye are as follows:

Vernon Pahl looked like he by times was head and shoulders above everyone in the field. He forced two fumbles by good hits on specialty teams as well as numerous great hits on other plays. Good game, Vernon!

Neal Connaughton was constantly near the ball recovering a fumble and intercepting a pass.

Rick Kiraly sparkled at tailback in the first half and his running is a great asset to the Panther's offence.

J.P. McIntyre showed that he is a very talented and adaptable player, able to play well wherever he is put.

Socky MacDonald played his usual strong game, which is becoming routine around here but is always a pleasure to watch.

It's hard to knock somebody when they win and the score was 31-27 so congratulations boys and good luck next week.

Letters & Opinions

Is anything missing from the Sun? What do you think about what is in it? Have you any beefs about anything on campus? Make your opinions known by writing letters to the editor.

Such letters can be delivered anytime to the SUN office on the Fourth Floor of the Main Building. If the office is locked simply simply drop your words of wisdom through the slot in the door. An alternative delivery point is with Pat Ingraham during office hours in the Barn.
