Beliveau And Robert Hull Wage Battle For Award

By BILL NEVILLE

MONTREAL (CP)—Big Jean Beliveau of the Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawk oomber Bobby Hull are waging a nip-and-tuck battle to become the first winner of professional hockey's newest trophy.

Sportswriters and team officials following the current Stanley Cup hockey final between the two clubs rate this pair odds-on favorites to capture the

JEAN BELIVEAU

Conn Smythe Trophy, a spanking new $2,300 piece of silverware to be awarded the most valuable player of the playoffs.

With at least one, and possibly two, games remaining in the best-of-seven final, most rinkside talk gives Beliveau a slight edge at his point on the basis of a stronger showing in the final series itself.

There is considerable feeling, however, that the trophy and the accompanying $2,000—$1,000 from the National Hockey League and a matching gift from the winner's management —could revert to Hull if Chicago rallies to win the cup and the blonde bomber helps them do it with one of his patented scoring outbursts.

IS ANNUAL AWARD

The trophy, one of the most beautiful in the NHL showcase, was donated a year ago by Maple Leaf Gardens Limited to honor the former Toronto coach, manager and president, now an honorary NHL life governor. It will be awarded annually to "the most valuable player for his team in the entire playoffs" starting with the current series.

In a unique move, the trophy's donors asked that the annual selection be made not by sportswriters and sportscasters who settle all the other individual awards, but by the NHL's six governors or team owners. They will file their ballots at the conclusion of the final game with NHL president Clarence Campbell, picking three top players on a 5-3-1 voting basis.

Provided the player is on hand—the winner's team, hypothetically at least, could have been eliminated in the semi-finals—the presentation will be made immediately following the final game.

The trophy now is in Chicago in case Montreal, leading the final three games to two, winds it up tonight. If the Hawks win, the trophy, along with the teams and the Stanley Cup, will journey back to Montreal for the seventh and deciding game Saturday.

With almost everyone agreeing it would take a fantastic performance for a semi-final-only player to win, the speculation has narrowed almost exclusively to Montreal and Chicago players. And here there is little disagreement that Beliveau and Hull are the standouts.

Beliveau, the 33-year-old centre-captain, has been a star in almost every game both in the semi-final against Toronto and in the final against he Black Hawks. He has 14 playoff points, including seven goals, has been a consistently strong forechecker, and has acted as the "general" of the Canadiens' awesome power play.

The 26-year-old Hull has had his problems against Montreal —or, more particularly, Claude Provost — but most observers credit him with carrying the Hawks past Detroit in their tough seven-game semi-final. He tied a cup record with eight goals in that series and currently leads all playoff scorers with 10 goals and seven assists for 17 points.

Others who have attracted some attention among the railbirds include J. C. Tremblay, the Montreal rearguard who has been the defensive standout of the playoffs, smooth-skating Canadiens centre Henri Richard, and veteran Chicago netminder Glenn Hall.

On most unofficial ballots, however, they rate only as honorable mentions behind the big two of Beliveau and Hull.

Football Teams Violate Rights?

TORONTO (CP)—A University of Toronto legal expert has advised the Canadian Football League its import restrictions probably violate the Ontario human rights code.

Professor Bora Laskin's confidential report to CFL president Pat Mahoney, if correct, would indicate that professional football teams in the province have been violating various rights legislation in the province for 14 years.

The Toronto Star quotes Mahoney as saying in a telephone interview from Calgary Tuesday that CFL commissioner Sydney Halter of Winnipeg would meet within the week with Ontario government officials to seek approval of the Ontario human rights commission to reword the CFL constitution to circumvent the law.

The Star says that if Halter's meeting with the province is not successful professional football in the country is faced with two choices:

1. Operate as an open league with no limitation on imports and enter the recruiting war for U.S. players with the National and American football leagues;

2. Operate strictly as a Canadian league, using only Canadian players.

CONCERN FOR CANADIANS

One official expressed concern for the Canadian player in football. He said he had been worried about import restrictions in the province for just this reason.

Mahoney, a lawyer, feels the commission will understand limiting of imports is the only way the CFL can continue on a competitive basis and remain on solid financial ground.

Prof. Laskin's 14-page report was the result of a CFL request last month for his opinion on the league's new naturalization ruling which limits each of the nine CFL teams to three naturalized Canadians.

Mr. Mahoney said Prof. Laskin apparently found the naturalization ruling illegal, but went on to question the entire quota system as a violation of the Ontario human rights code.

The code, enacted three years ago, is a compilation of rights legislation passed during the last 20 years.

The 1951 Fair Employment Practices Act outlawed discrimination based on nationality and was later incorporated in the code.

DISCRIMINATION OUT

The code states: "No employer or person acting on behalf of an employer shall refuse to employ . . . any person . . . because of race, creed, color, nationality, ancestry, or place of origin."

Since 1946, Canadian professional football has allowed only a limited number of United States imports to play in Canada. This year, the CFL quota is 14 Americans and 18 Canadians. Thirteen Americans are allowed to dress for each game.

Mahoney said if the import restrictions are lifted, only the richer teams in the country—Toronto Argonauts, Montreal Alouettes and possibly British Columbia Lions—could afford to compete in "an open classification."

Western conference clubs, other than the Lions, and even Ottawa Rough Riders and Hamilton Tiger Cats would have difficulty meeting financial requirements, Mahoney said.

GOT TO IT IN TIME

Boyer finally got the ball and threw to first baseman Elston Howard in time to retire Edwards. The Yank's won, 5-1. (AP Wirephoto)

Auto Rally Leaves Regina On Final Half Of Journey

By CLAUDE HENAULT

REGINA (CP) — A slimmed-down field of 43 cars left his midway point of the cross-Canada 4,000-mile car rally Wednesday and began a 600-mile drive across the Prairies to Edmonton.

The 43 cars were all that were left of the 64 that started in the six-day endurance test — which is being run from Montreal to Vancouver this year—at Montreal Saturday night.

The total of 21 dropouts is the largest in the five-year history of the rally. The greatest number of cars ever eliminated prior to this year's running was 18 in 1961. That year 42 cars started.

Drivers said the highlight of Tuesday's run from Port Arthur to here, with a stop at Winnipeg, were the three closed sections which were held.

Closed sections are segments of the rally closed to the public where drivers are urged to go as fast as possible. Excessive speed can result in penalty points in other sections of the rally.

FIND OBSTACLES

However, some competitors had a complaint about an unscheduled hazard encountered in the special sections.

Diana Carter of Toronto, driving a Volvo, said there were obstacles on the course at Riding Mountain National Park, one of the special sections.

The obstacles, she said, were buffalo.

From the point of competition, the highlight of Tuesday's leg, some 1,000 miles, was the perfect performance of Henry Taylor of England.

He was top in his class in all special sections and covered the regular route without picking up a single penalty point.

Taylor and navigator Robin Edwardes of Fabreville, Que., driving a Ford Cortina, moved into second place in the standings because of the perfect run. They had a total of 100 penalties against them Tuesday night.

BOLD FIRST PLACE

Klaus Ross and John Bird of Toronto, last year's winners, again driving a Volvo, remained in first place with 46 points.

In third position was the Mustang of Paul McLennan of Toronto and John Wilson of New Dundee, Ont., with 108 points.

Holding down fourth spot was the Mustang of Eppie Weitzes of Toronto and Eric McDuff of Oakville, Ont., with 148 points.

Fifth was the private entry Volvo of Ewen Graham of Midnapore, Alta., and Henry Acteson of Calgary. They are the highest placed private entry, with 184 points.

In the sponsored teams category, Ford Mustangs were leading, with 543 points.

Holding second spot was the Volvo team with 671, followed by Chevelle with 1,906 points.

The Carter - Steagall team, winners in a Volvo of last year's women's event, was leading with 879 points.

Their only opposition, the Isuzu driven by Anne Coombe and June Taylor, Toronto, had 2,235 points.

Competitors were due to start arriving in Edmonton at 6 p.m. MST Wednesday.

Yvon Durelle States Views

BAIE STE. ANNE, N.B. (CP) —Yvon Durelle says the May 4 Canadian Welterweight title fight between his cousin Joey Durelle and Armand Savoie "could have been postponed" due to the death last week of the champion's father.

Joey's father was buried Friday at Baie Ste. Anne., N.B., and the champion informed promoters he would be unable to fight on the scheduled date. Durelle is eight pounds over the limit and out of condition.

"It was his father who died—not his dog," said Yvon, former Canadian and British Empire Light Heavyweight Champion. "He shouldn't have to fight, it could have been postponed."

The retired champion was commenting on the Canadian Professional Boxing Federation's decision to strip Joey of his National title for refusing to fight.

"I wonder how any one of them would feel if their father died?" Yvon asked. "Sure, they could work, but they certainly wouldn't be sound to perform in the ring."

John Ferguson Set For Action

By AL McNEIL

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens entrained for Chicago Wednesday hoping to break a home ice jinx and clinch a record 11th Stanley Cup.

Bolstered by word John Ferguson will be in the lineup, the Habs meet Chicago Black Hawks tonight leading 3-2 in their best - of - seven final and needing only one more win to take the crown.

If necessary, they can have a second shot at it in a seventh and deciding game here Saturday night. But coach Toe Blake and his players have made it clear they would like to wind things up in Chicago's own backyard.

To do that, however, they must snap one of the most dominant home ice jinxes ever to strike a Stanley Cup playoff.

In 18 games this season, counting the two semi - finals, the visiting team has won exactly twice. In the current series, the first five games all went to the home club with Canadiens taking the first two at the Forum, the Hawks rebounding with two victories in Chicago, and Canadiens moving ahead 3-2 with their crushing 6-0 home victory Tuesday night.

OUSTED LEAFS

If there is one ray of sunshine in these statistics for the Habs, it's the fact that the two visiting victories both came at the end of the semi-final series. Canadiens ousting the Maple Leafs in the sixth game in Toronto and Chicago winning a seven-game set over the Red Wings with the final triumph in Detroit.

If Canadiens can continue this pattern tonight in Chicago, chances are the power play, which demolished Toronto in the semi-finals and threatens to be just as harsh on the Hawks will be a prime factor. In 11 playoff games, it has produced 19 goals while Montreal enjoyed the man advantage, including the first four in Canadiens' 6-0 win Tuesday.

Charlie Hodge, who rebounded with Tuesday's shutout after losing 5-1 in Chicago Sunday, will again be the Montreal netminder. Lorne (Gump) Worsley, who pulled a thigh muscle in the pre-game warmup before the Sunday contest, went with the team, but he was expected to be nothing more than a spectator with minor leaguer Ernie Wakely filling the backup position behind Hodge.

Pat Mahoney Is Confident

CALGARY (CP) — Pat Mahoney, president of the Canadian Football League, said Wednesday he is confident that the CFL can rephrase its constitution limiting teams to 14 American imports to comply with fair employment legislation such as the Ontario human rights code.

Mahoney was commenting on a Toronto report that Professor Bora Laskin of the University of Toronto had advised the CFL in a legal opinion that the quota system probably was a violation of the Ontario code.

"I think we can rephrase the import ruling so that it would comply with the law," Mahoney said of a scheduled meeting between CFL commissioner Sydney Halter of Winnipeg and Ontario government officials in Toronto within the week to rewrite the CFL import rulings.

SHOWS ALTERNATIVE

"There are a number of ways this can be done," he said.

Players could be limited on the basis of where they receive their football training, or where they have their residence, rather than on the basis of nationality.

Sixth Battle Goes Tonight

By JIM CULLEN

The Chicago Black Hawks will face elimination tonight when they host Montreal Canadiens as a result of Chicago's 6-0 humiliation in Montreal, Tuesday in the fifth game of their best-of-seven Stanley Cup final. A win for the Blakemen would give them their first Stanley Cup in five years with a six game win over the Billy Reay coached Hawks.

Billy Reay's forces never entered the picture in Tuesday's contest. The "Flying Frenchmen" were skating like demons and were beating the Windy City pucksters to the puck on every occasion. The big captain of the Canadiens was again, in our opinion, the nucleus of the Montreal attacking forces, as he started all the big plays and was a solid performer defensively, as well.

Bobby Hull was far from top form and, although, we heard a few remarks to the effect that Mr. Hull is just as big a 'homer' as anybody in this series we couldn't swallow this statement.

Hull is this columnist's choice as the best player in the National Hockey League at the present time. An athlete doesn't rise to his status if he possesses any of the ingredients that go to make a 'homer.'

Hull has been seeing a lot of ice time and it is impossible for even the best in the league to be at their peak throughout a whole series. Everyone is entitled to the odd mediocre performance.

The Hawks are now faced with the same situation they experienced in the semi-finals when they were down three games to two to the league champion Detroit Red Wings.

We think the Chicago outfit has a better club man-for-man than Montreal and when they get rolling this columnist believes the Blakemen will find themselves a little weak in the goaltending department, with Lorne 'Gump' Worsley out of action

Hall was pulled in favor of Dejordy in Tuesday night's whitewash, but this move was just to give Hall a much deserved rest.

John Ferguson gave Hawk's Eric Nesterenko a lesson in the art of fisticuffs in the first period of the fifth game and it looked to us as if the Chicago penalty killing ace was out cold after the buriv Montreal forward landed his Sunday punch.

Tid Bits From Here And There

We had a phone call from an employee of Storey Electric yesterday telling us a wierd story about Art LeBlanc, an electrician with that firm. Our contact explained that Art has been quoted in the Patriot as calling for the Montreal Canadiens to win the Stanley Cup and his chances of calling it right appear pretty good at the present time. Jacques Plante the former illustrious goaltender of the Blake coached squad was interviewed on television recently and Mr. LeBlanc had to inquire as to who this gentleman was. This doesn't seem possible for such a rabid Canadien fans, but is apparently true.

Dapper Delegate, the Lousiana derby winner, was withdrawn from Saturday's Kentucky Derby Wednesday because of a throat infection. The colt developed a head cold Tuesday and the infection had spread until he had swollen glands.

Joey Durelle says he thinks the fact Montreal boxing fans don't like him may cost him his Canadian welterweight title. Durelle, stripped of his crown Tuesday by the Canadian Boxing Federation, said in an interview he is unpopular with local fans because he beat their favorite, Armand Savoie, in two straight fights.

We saw a Vancouver paper dated April 20 and at that time Charlottetown's Vern Handrahan had only been called upon to pitch 2 1-3 innings for the Vancouver Mounties.

Larry Regan, former National Hockey League player, said Wednesday he is shelving temporarily his proposal to establish a hockey school at Innsbruck, Austria, this summer. Regan said he would now consult the International Ice Hockey Federation officials and others in a renewed attempt to clear up the misunderstanding so that the school could be established as soon as possible.

Coaching Course At St. Andrews

By NORMAN MacDONALD

The Canadian Amateur Hockey Leadership Institute will be held at St. Andrews, N.B. from Aug. 29 to September 4. Let's hope a good representation from Prince County will attend this coaching course. There is, of course, more than one reason that Central Canadian Hockey juniors are able to knock off Maritime clubs without too much difficulty. A wider choice of good talent is probably one reason. But there seems little doubt that superior coaching methods is another. This is really not taking anything away from our local coaches, many of whom are good leaders but we believe that the coaches in the large centres of Canada have better knowledge of hockey techniques and know-how. The more who attend these yearly leadership courses, the greater improvement we are likely to find in our young hockey players. If any school or college teachers or coaches are interested, David Boswell, director of physical education, Charlottetown, is the man to contact, and do it before May 20. MAHA coaches should get in touch with Pius Callaghan.

In the men's and ladies' bowling leagues at Crest Lanes, Tanton McNeill won the high single for the season in the men's division, and Marie (Peters) Fardy won the high triple for the ladies. Is it just coincidence that these two were among the best softball pitchers developed in Summerside? Marie was tops on the slab for the fems and pitched many top-notch games for the Summerside girls against Island and Mainland competition. Tanton's palmy days have been over for a while, but about fifteen, or perhaps less, years ago, he was a figure to be reckoned with on the softball slab. Seems to us we've noticed before that softball pitchers seem to have a special knack for cleaning up those pins.

Meetings Are Called

Softball and baseball are almost a month away yet, but the organizational pot is beginning to boil. Meetings have been called for baseball at the police station in Summerside tonight at 8 p.m. and for softball at CJRW on Monday evening. It's wise to get started early so that all problems can be cleared up before the season starts. We understand they plan to have the meeting on baseball over before the Chicago-Montreal hockey game begins. Softball may be losing one of its teams this summer. Inman's Plumbing, which played the role of doormats all last summer, and then made a surprising upsurge to fight their way into the finals in the fall play-offs, may not be entering this year. We hear they are losing two top-notchers in Jim Jenkins and John McLaren who plan to line-up with the Airforce, and this would certainly make two big leaks in the Inman Plumbing aggregation. Their place may be filled by Borden who according to rumor are thinking about entering the Prince County Softball League.
