

BRISTOL

Word has been received here of the death in Winnipeg, Man., Feb. 27, of Hannah Sinnott, 92, after an illness of two years.

Many of the older class here recall Hannah Sinnott and other members of that family, and the old Stokley farm still carries its name and stands as ever as a memorial to them.

Recalling the winter of 1923, old timers remember it was bitter here with snow piled into mountainous drifts and in Bristol the narrow gauge train with Conductor Jack Hughes was stuck on the Elmira branch near Souris for 32 days.

During that winter rotary plows were brought along with heavy engines from the mainland but owing to being wide gauge they were unable to go east of Charlottetown.

The mails were hauled from Charlottetown by horse and old-fashioned wood sleigh. The railway cuttings became so high the snow had to be shoveled out in three sections with men stationed on dug-out shelves above each other.

The train was also stuck in Bristol for a long time and farmers and others supplied meals for the train crews as they waited in vain for weary shovellers to dig the trains out.

Men worked around the clock in all kinds of weather under engines, etc., for 25 cents per hour. Everyone who could answer that call of the engineer's whistle was at work.

Most of the old railway hands are gone now but a few still remain around here. Joe Sinnott and Leonard Ryan can recall the time their fathers hauled wood to fire the engines when their fuel ran out and many residents who could not get to the woods with teams carried it home on their backs.

The late Bill Davy, whose father was a sectionman here, was a railway brakeman in that long ago day, his family still reside in Charlottetown.

Now the railway is about gone with a freight train once in a while. The station here, like many others along the line is gone forever.

In a recent trip to Boston and New York City a Bristol man visited the world news stand to pick up some copies of The Guardian, hungry for home news he did not mind the price so much as the fact one of The Guardian was two weeks old and he had read it at home.

The price of the stand was 23 cents a copy. The world news stand in New York City has every paper printed and when you ask for a Charlottetown Guardian the vendor has it for you in a second and will also tell you "we have The Patriot right here, sir."

George O'Brien, left Saturday morning for Montreal to act as housekeeper for his brother Raymond whose wife underwent surgery in a Montreal hospital. Raymond is well remembered here; his old home, where he lost a leg in an accident many years ago and his wife is the former Cathie Daveaux, a daughter of George and Mary Daveaux. George operated a garage here for some time before re-entering the army. It is understood he is retired now.

Mrs. Nellie MacDonald, has moved to the city where she has accepted a housekeeping position for the winter months at least.

In a recent trip to Borden, a look at that old car ferry the "Prince Edward Island" still going strong brought back memories of 1925, when that same ferry was stuck off Tormentine for 76 hours and the passengers walked ashore and the crew hauled the baggage in an ice boat. One of the crew of that day, Jack Mulligan, said last week in Charlottetown, "Yes, I recall it well. We left Borden Saturday morning and got to Tormentine Tuesday afternoon. The late Captain Read was the master and the late T.K. Sutherland, chief engineer. Some of the old timers are still around Borden who recall the trip. That old boat has been on the run about 50 years now and should know the way across quite.
