dence and school of nursing. The auxiliary which has been active for 80 years, first as the Ladies' Collecting Committee and later as the St. Charles Auxiliary after St. Charles of Borromeo was chosen as their patron, has Rt. Rev. Patrick McMahon, D.D., rector of St. Dunstan's Basilica as its chaplain. Shown above at the presentation of the cheque are

Yanks Are Not Enthusiastic Over Reds More Trade Goal

By JAMES MARLOW WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the things Premier Nikita Khrushchev wants most — more trade with the United States — is just exactly what he probably won't get. The reason the U.S. government hasn't been eager for more trade with the Soviets can be stated bluntly although the state department puts it in nicer language: 1. There isn't much to be gained by the U.S. in such trade.

2. The machinery and know-how which the Soviets want from the United States would help Russia build itself up industrially, economically and militarily. Russia isn't thinking in terms of buying consumer goods but in terms of buying machines and hiring American specialists.

NOT BRUSH OFF
Khrushchev wrote President Eisenhower a year ago about more trade. He got a fast brush-off. Just a couple of weeks ago Khrushchev, preparing for his trip here next week, wrote a piece for the magazine, Foreign Affairs, in which he cited more trade as one of his prime goals. So far as can be learned, he'll still get a cool turn-down. The story might be different if Soviet-American relations improved to the point that the two countries didn't have to worry about each other.

Individual American businessmen could make money selling things to Russia. But here they run into government policy which for years has not encouraged trade with the Soviet bloc countries. For example: Trade with the Iron Curtain nations has nose-dived in the last 12 years.

IMPORTS WAY DOWN
In 1947, the United States exchanged $93,461,000 in exports and $24,947,000 in imports with Communist countries. In 1958 U.S. exports to the Soviet bloc totalled only $113,000,000 and imports from the Communist countries were $64,000,000. Most of the trade last year was with Poland.

About a decade ago, when the cold war was under way, in earnest, the U.S. slapped controls on the export of strategic goods to Communist nations: Materials or supplies which could help build up war-making power.

Russia wants long-term credits from the United States. The state department has already answered the Khrushchev-Mikoyan suggestion of buying from the U.S. on long-term credit this way:

Why don't you pay what you owe? You owe this country $2,600,000,000 for civilian goods lend-leased to Russia during the Second World War. One official put it this way:

"How can we be expected to extend credits to the Soviet Union while that country is in default to us on its past debts?" (Congress passed a law in 1951 forbidding even private long-term credits to countries, like Russia, which haven't paid—the United States money they owe.

side, Minister of Health and Melvin J. MacQuaid, B.A., LL.B., Souris, the Province's new Provincial Treasurer. His Honor Lieutenant Governor F. Walter Hyndman, administered the oath to the new Premier.

Terror Of Police And Dismissals Said Used On Quebec Labor Unions

QUEBEC (CP) — Police terror and massive dismissals are being organized in Quebec province to smash attempts by workers to form unions a top provincial labor leader charged today.

Widespread anti-union action is undermining the right of workers to associate in unions, said Roger Mathieu, general president of the Canadian and Catholic Confederation of Labor.

He served the warning in a speech today at the opening session of the CCCL's annual convention here.

Text of his speech was released to the press in advance of delivery. "We are reaching a point in our province where every attempt of union organization in a plant, an enterprise or a service is met with massive or selective dismissals used by the employers as weapons of fight," said Mr. Mathieu. "This is the general rule."

He cited 20 individual companies that fired workers when union organization started. He said almost 350 dismissals were reported in the last 30 months involving the 20 firms. The companies, he added, either fired workers known to be involved in union activity or else dismissed them haphazardly as a clear warning to the rest.

"The majority of workers will panic and the union organization, still too fragile to resist such a shock, will fall as a house of cards," he said.

Mr. Mathieu, giving his first keynote speech to the CCCL congress, said employers also use legal manoeuvres in the courts to delay and thwart union organization — leaving unions with only the right to strike as an effective weapon.

STRIKE MAY NOT HELP
But Mr. Mathieu questioned the effectiveness of some strikes, limited by "narrow and punctilious legislation."

"For a strike to be legal," he said, "within the framework of the laws governing us, it is almost true to say that it must be inefficient."

He denounced police intervention in some Quebec strikes. "The harsh treatment suffered by strikers, the interventions with bludgeons or revolvers, the investigations during which provincial policemen became the tools of employers' propaganda, all that, and still many other things, are well known to you," he said.

"That the provincial police constitutes here one of the most serious obstacles to the exercise of the right of association, that it is used as an anti-union weapon to the advantage of the employer and that it thus acts in contempt of the most elementary democracy, is a truth that no honest and seriously informed mind will ever doubt," he said.

NEED PUBLIC BACKING
To remedy the situation, Mr. Mathieu proposed an all-out drive to marshal public opinion to fight threats to the right of association. He also called on other groups — including employers' groups — to help preserve the right.

"The time has come for employers and all their allies of the various liberal professions to find out that in sapping the principles of natural right at their base, in depriving the workers of liberties which they strongly claim for themselves, they compromise the entire social structure and, in the long run, their own interests."

Mr. Mathieu also asked court judges to denounce and condemn the "iniquity and the insufficiency of the labor laws."
