BRITISH CABINET - The high hopes of the U. N. charter... are in danger of being destroyed by the ruthless attacks of world Communism and the blind greed of world capitalism. The resolution asked for the following program: "Allocate available raw materials in accordance with need; plan the development of world resources to the highest possible degree; provide technical and capital assistance to under-developed areas on a scale many times greater than the shameful pittance now available. M. J. Coldwell, national leader, in the course of his review of C. C. F. activities in the House of Commons, said that "We must strive to prevent any extension of the war in Asia... we must not be weakened by propaganda accusing the U. N. of adopting germ warfare in Korea." He said war cannot be humanized, but suggested that Canada should urge all nations to agree to any and all proposals outlawing the use of poison gas, the napalm bomb, germs or any other means of biological warfare and, indeed, atomic weapons. "To ensure the carrying out of such conventions, unrestricted inspection of national industry would be essential. To offer this proposal to all nations, including Russia and the United States, would afford the world another opportunity of appraising a willingness to tread the paths of peace."
