Algeria Gives Impression Of Rushing Into Disaster

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

ALGIERS (AP)—Bled by terrorism and abandoned to destruction by European desperadoes, Algeria today gives the impression of careening toward disaster.

Five weeks from the crucial self - determination vote which would give Algeria independence, the European Secret Army spreads terror and destruction with unabated fury.

Screaming ambulance sped through the streets of major cities where Moslems live in a virtual state of siege in their quarters.

Teams of terrorist commandos set fire to schools and public buildings vowing to leave only scorched earth for the Moslem masters of a new Algeria.

Terror has begun to spread to smaller towns of the interior, where Europeans are forming bastions of resistance.In addition to Algiers and Oran, terror now grips Bone, Mostaganem, Sidi-bel - Abbes Perragaux and Ain-Temouchent.

STORES CLOSE

Stores and factories are closing down. Thousands of Europeans are preparing to flee the stricken land before the July 1 self-determination vote, fearing bloody Moslem revenge.

Nearly 50,000 Europeans have left since April 1, and some officials admit that perhaps as many as 700,000 of the million-strong European community will flee.

Despite the flight of thousands, many settlers vow to remain behind to continue resistance.

The Secret Army apparently hopes that French troops eventually will be forced to intervene if the Moslems stage an all-out offensive. Some Europeans still talk about partition. Others say that perhaps their resistance will force the government of an independent Algeria to negotiate with the Secret Army.

Haggard Moslem masses, daily exposed to machine gun and mortar attacks, are prevented from attacking the Europeans by leaders of the National Liberation Front (FLN), the force that led the long fight against French rule and signed the cease-fire with France in March.

In the barricaded administrative headquarters of Rocher Noir east of Algiers, blueprints for self-determination arebeing made and no one officially admits the existence of danger.

Officials of the provisional Algerian executive, charged with preparing the vote, and members of the staff of the French high commissioner, talk of co-operation between France and Algeria.

The officials have little contact with the brutal reality of Algeria's cities or with the interior. Their directives are seldom applied in a country where law and order are empty words.

POLLS BLOWN UP

The officials talk of the forthcoming vote, ignoring the fact that most elecoral lists were burned by European terrorists, that schools and buildings that could be used as polling stations are being systematically blown up.

One thing is certain—the massive flight of Europeans would deal an almost irreparable blow to Algeria's economy, now in European hands.

Course In Sailing Offered Scouts

Surgeon Commander L.E Prowse, RCNR, commanding officer HMCS Queen Charlotte and Commodore Donald Smith of the Charlottetown Yacht Club have announced that training classes will be made available in sailing for members of the Boy Scouts Association of Prince Edward Island.

Sailing boats will be made available to Boy Scouts for training purposes, under proper supervision, so that they might compete in the second national Boy Scout sailing regatta to be held Aug. 18-24 at S.S.S. Venture on Lake St. Louis just outside Montreal. Vice - Admiral H.S. Raynor, chief of naval staff, is a patron of the regatta and will present the trophy.

This is an opportunity for Boy Scouts from all over Canada. An added inducement is the fact that free transportation will be provided for the winning crews from Prince Edward Island to Montreal and return, each boy being responsible only for his camp fee of $25 for the six-day period.

The first organization meeting to which all Boy Scouts who may have an interest in sailing are cordially invited will take place on board HMCS Queen Charlotte this evening at 7 o'clock.

The sprawling port cities would go to waste. It would take years for inexperienced Moslems to run the farms with the same efficiency as the Europeans.

That is why the provisional executive and the Algerian government in exile in Tunis still talk of moderation and co-operation, despite the endless violence.

The final word, however, will be up to the 9,000,000 Moslems who will find themselves the master of the Algeria of tomorrow.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States exploded another nuclear device in the atmosphere in the Christmas Island testing area Sunday, the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission announced.

The test—the 14th announced since the Pacific series began—was in the intermediate yield range or the equivalent of between 20,000 and 1,000,000 tons of TNT.
