
THE FIVE new O'Leary homes built under the Co-operative Housing Plan last winter are shown above. The five owners are Ian Strang, Orville Willis, George Bernard, Harry Ramsay and Sterling Ellis. A new street named Parkview Drive was added to the village when the homes were built.

O'Leary Co-op Housing To Have Opening Today

SUMMERSIDE BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN

"A great business experience," said Ian Strang, president of the O'Leary co-operative housing unit, as he referred to the five new co-operatively built homes which will be officially opened in a formal ceremony at 1 p.m. today.

On hand for the official opening will be Premier W. R. Shaw, Dr. Orville Phillips, Reid Sangster, provincial housing director; Hon. Andrew MacRae, provincial minister of agriculture, Hon. George Dewar, minister of education; Donald Campbell, M.L.A.

Also present will be Rev. Ross Howard, Rev. J. C. Pitre, Rev. David Hamilton and Rev. D. J. Rector, all of O'Leary.

The new homes will be open to inspection by the public from 2 to 4 this afternoon.

The pre-cut houses under contract from Halliday Craftmen Ltd., Truro, N.S. were assembled by the five owners, Ian Strang, George Bernard, Orville Willis, Harry Ramsay and Sterling Ellis. Head carpenter for the construction was Thane Milligan, Coleman.

First construction of the homes began last June and the owners occupied them Jan. 1, 1962. At the time the new homes went up, a new street on which they are located was also constructed and named Parkview Drive.

Mr. Strang said that originally he had planned to build a pre-cut house, and he conferred with Dr. George Dewar, who referred him to provincial housing director, Reid Sangster. At the first meeting in O'Leary about 30 interested people attended. The second meeting had only half as many present.

"Most people looked at only one side, the price, and lost interest," stated Mr. Strang, "but now we've proved them wrong by actually building."

He explained that the $6,500 homes were costing their owners exactly $50 a month in payments. "I had previously rented a house for $30 a month and that didn't include anything except cold water," he said.

"Now we are paying just a little more and will own our houses after a while."

Mr. Strang calculated that the interest on a five year loan of $6,500 itself pointed up the economy of the Co-op housing plan.

Mr. Strang said that the $6,500 included everything except the cost of land, lot and ground elevation was extra. All the houses are of the similar basic structure, and there is a $300 price differential between the highest and lowest cost of the comprise the O'Leary unit.

BENEFITS DERIVED

Some benefits derived from the housing construction, the builders feel, are that they saved money, got a new friendly relationship by working with one another, and all decided it was a great business experience.

The boundary of the town was extended to include the new homes, and the sewerage line also had to be exter—.

The five men noted that they had excellent co-operation from merchants in O'Leary whenever they required emergency supplies. Although public interest was rather skeptical towards the project at first the men state several now ask questions about the plan, and are more interested.

"One thing about these houses," said Mr. Strang, "you don t need much carpenter experience. It's something like putting together a puzzle, except a bit harder."

All five foundations were laid first; then each house was built one at a time. The new buildings were scheduled to be completed by Dec. 1 of last year but several difficulties arose that slowed proceedings.

Population of O'Leary is about 400 and Mr. Strang thinks that more people will become interested in co-operative housing in the future.

New Dems To Publish Cost Of Election Campaign Here

The New Democrats will publish a detailed statement of their income and expenses for the current election campaign on the Island later this week and they are inviting provincial Conservative and Liberal parties to do the same. Leo McIsaac said at a meeting in New Haven hall Monday night. The people of the province can then judge the sincerity of all parties and the basis on which each party is financed and controlled.

Mr. McIsaac said that the New Democratic party places organizational structure of the control of the party and responsibility for policy making, directly in the hands of the members. "The platform for the current election and the principles of the party are the direct result of study and suggestions by many small groups of interested people right across Canada," he said.

"The greatest qualification of any person in public life is the freedom to do what is right and the courage to carry it out. New Democrat members will not be obligated for large amounts of campaign financing. Freedom from this type of pressure and the fact that they must give a detailed report, at least annually, to their constituency organization makes for a more alert and efficient member," he said. "Politicians", he added, "must be restored to the role of servants of the people and not be allowed to go on acting like executive directors of a big corporation with whom citizens must plead for recognition. Canada needs new leadership, a more co-operative approach to her problems and a greater sense of responsibility to people at the producer level", he concluded.

Wilfred Inman explained that the old Party candidates did not recognize the New Democrats invitation for joint meetings. He challenged them to appoint a spokesman and hold a half hour television debate this week.

West Prince Liberals Hear Former N.B. MP

ALBERTON — "Why should a rich and prosperous nation like Canada have to devaluate its currency? Where is the money coming from to pay next year's unemployed? How long can a government operate on deficits?"

These were some of the questions posed to a capacity audience in Alberton WI Hall last evening by Hedard Robichaud, who represented the County of Gloucester, N.B., in the recent parliament.

Speaking on behalf of George MacKay, Liberal candidate in the forthcoming election, Mr. Robichaud forecast a ten to twelve point rise in the cost of living as a result of the dollar devaluation by the Conservative government.

The Diefenbaker government was unable to introduce measures to take care of our increased labor force, he said. In 1957 the Conservative leader promised that unemployment would "go like snow". Even the snow of 1961 has gone but unemployment has increased, Mr. Robichaud said to loud applause.

"Diefenbaker had a vision of the north, but what about the Maritimes? They built an $85,000,000 railroad to lead and zinc in the north while New Brunswick has millions of tons of lead and zinc," the speaker maintained.

Casual workers were disqualified from unemployment insurance benefits by the Conservatives and recommendations have been made to the minister of labor to change the regulations for fishermen. The Conservatives said that the former Liberal government was extravagant. Mr. Robichaud continued, but they spent $338,000 to rebuild a dance hall in the Klondyke for a centennial of the gold rush.

Canada can be a prosperous country under the Liberals' new program designed to expand our economy, Mr. Robichaud stated. Family allowances as long as a child is studying, medical care for children up to 16, medical care for unemployed were some of the benefits planned by the Liberal government, the speaker said. A 15-mile territorial limit, ridiculed by Mr. Diefenbaker, will also be introduced, he said.

"Diefenbaker's former popularity has waned to the point where we expect to get six and possibly eight of the 10 seats in New Brunswick, five to seven in Nova Scotia and at least two in P.E.I.", Mr. Robichaud concluded.

Liberal candidate George MacKay urged a return to sound, sensible and sane leadership while reminding the audience that all social security measures in effect were brought in by Liberals.

Unemployment insurance for casual labourers, taken away by the Conservatives, will be restored by the Liberals after June 18, Mr. MacKay declared.

Andrew Wells, president of the Young Liberals Association addressed the gathering briefly. Prosper A. Arsenault, thanked Mr. Robichaud for his address which, he said, would greatly encourage West Prince Liberals.

Following the meeting lunch was served.

RECORD

tion—June 9 and 11 this year—for advance polling days.

Previously, advance polls were open only to comercial travellers, transportation employees, fishermen and members of the RCMP and reserve forces. Voting was on the Thursday, Friday and Saturday before the Monday election day. Advance polls in Canada totalled only 256 in 1958 and many constituencies had none at all.

Record turnout under the old law was in 1957 with 11,780. The 1958 figure was 11,228. The low year in records dating back to 1926 was 1945 with 10,088.

Mr. Castonguay's reports indicate that the heavy advance voting was in urban - area polls. There was little voting activity in strictly rural areas.

TURNOUTS DIFFER

A Canadian Press check showed a light turnout in New Brunswick. In Prince Edward Island it was light in Queens but heavy in Kings and moderate in Prince.

In Montreal St. Antoine-Westmount, 1,000 of the ridings 37,000 eligibles turned out in advance. But in Montreal St. Denis only 200,35,000 eligibles voted. Montreal Jacques - Cartier - Lasalle reported 1,400 voters from 88,000 eligibles.

In Ottawa West, 450 voted in advance compared with 60 in 1958. In Russell in the Ottawa area there were 494 against 26 in a 1959 byelection.

The 18 Toronto and York seats reported 9,926 advance votes from 374,00 eligibles, compared with 488 in 1958. York - Scarborough, which has 153,000 eligible, led with 1,878. Algoma West reported 228 compared with 32, Waterloo North 447 against 56.

The three Winnipeg seats reported 1,383 against 175. Walter Ritchie, returning officer in Winnipeg South, said Liberal headquarters had complained that lineups at one poll were so large that some people had to leave without voting.

Saskatoon had 1,277 where 199 turned out four years ago. The three Edmonton constituencies reported 2,991 compared with 467. Regina had 917 against 110. Two Calgary seats had 1,500 against 201. Vancouver said advance polling was three times that of 1958. Victoria seven times greater. Saseena 177 compared with seven.

Premier In Top Form In Support Of Phillips

O'LEARY — Displaying the same top form that led to the premiership of P.E.I., Hon. W.R. Shaw last night, speaking in support of Dr. Orville Phillips, at a capacity meeting in O'Leary Regional High School, scored the opposition on the emptiness of their promises.

Among them the Liberal pledge to develop the Atlantic Provinces. That's the same plan they offered use several years ago", Mr. Shaw commented, "when Walter Gordon came down here, and wrote the second book of Exodus.

"This", Mr. Shaw said, "was the Liberal plan to dispose of surplus Maritimers".

Also mentioned by the Premier was Dominion-Provincial relations and how it would assist agriculture in this province.

Queens County candidate, Heath Macquarrie, spoke on several subjects, among them transportation. The candidate observed when the Mackenzie King government took office in 1935 it found two ferries at Borden — one about four years old, the other 20 years old. "What did they leave at Borden after 22 years of rising demands on our ferry facilities? — Two ferries, one 10 years old and the other 42 years old," he said. "Was this progress", he asked.

The other main speaker of the evening was Dr. Orville H. Phillips who spoke on agriculture, roads to resources, and fisheries.

In dealing with roads to resources, Dr. Phillips pointed out that while the Liberals criticized our roads to resources program, these same roads daily carry thousands of Island farmers and fishermen in their various jobs.

"This is an example of the forward and positive approach taken by the Diefenbaker government", the Prince County candidate stated.

In the field of fisheries, Dr. Phillips pointed to the extension of the Fishermen's Loan Act which should greatly benefit all Island fishermen. Also pointed out by the Prince Conservative candidate were the short courses for fishermen being offered by the federal and provincial governments on a cost-sharing basis.

Also pointed out by Dr. Phillips was the promise of the second Trans-Canada Highway which he said would "give this county a network of highways second to none".

The other speakers were Hon. George Dewar, Robert Grindlay, Hubert Gaudet, Don Campbell, all members of the provincial legislative assembly.

Chairman of the meeting was Emmerson Smallman.

Musical entertainment at the close of the meeting was provided by Jerry Peters, James Gallant, Ken and Blair Waite, and Mrs. Melvin Ellis.

Lunch was served by the ladies of the district.

Kensington To Be On Second National Road Says Phillips

SUMMERSIDE — The future of the Town of Kensington was revealed Monday night by Dr. Orville H. Phillips as he spoke to what veteran observers said was the largest politicial meeting ever held in Kensington.

Dr. Phillips stated "under Liberal rule your fair town was almost completely wiped off the map by the Trans-Canada Highway. It is therefore with a great deal of pleasure that I can assure you that this town will be again recognized by the Progressive Conservative government as the second Trans-Canada Highway to be built by John Diefenbaker will extend the full length of P.E.I. and not just from terminal to terminal as was done by the Liberal government. Dr. Phillips was referring to the fact that Trans-Canada Highway now in existence goes from Borden to Wood Islands. Under Liberal government rule no thought was given to Kensington or west of Summerside this will be remedied with the return of the Diefenbaker government on June 18 and justice restored to these long suffering but deserving towns and villages, Dr. Phillips stated.

Dr. Phillips criticised the Prince County Liberal candidate who he stated had supported local Liberal deficit after deficit and now when this province is benefitting from the general grants from the Diefenbaker government is crying "doom and gloom."

"Far from crying doom and gloom, Mr. MacKay should be giving thanks to the Diefenbaker government for saving the province from Liberal folly," he stated.

Referring to the devaluation of the dollar, Dr. Phillips reminded the audience that the Liberals pegged the dollar at 90 cents in 1949 and that no Liberal complained then.

"The benefits that will accrue to this province from the devaluation will be a great spur to our economy," said Dr. Phillips. He referred particularly to the tourist trade and the frozen food plant at New Annan.

Also speaking were Hon. Melvin McQuaid, attorney-general, and provincial treasurer who allotted the Diefenbaker government credit for the increased grants to the province and its contribution to the roads to resources program.

Hon. Andrew MacRae spoke on the agricultural program being carried out by his department and pointed out the various ways in which the devaluation will help Island farmers.

Also speaking was Keith Harrington, MLA and pointed out that in his district under the present government 27 miles of pavement has been approved.

The chairman of the meeting was Ronald Kennedy.

Burial At Sea Carried Out

SUMMERSIDE — Fulfilling the request of his mother for burial at Sea, an unidentified man from a city in Quebec yesterdcy morning secured the services of a Summerside fisherman, Cecil Sonier, to convey him to a point in Northumberland Strait, a few miles off Sea Cow Head, where the ashes were scattered on the water.

The man who arrived here on Monday by plane, left again yesterday afternoon. The identity of the man was not known, even to Mr. Sonier who had little actual conversation with him, but who confirmed last night that he had been hired by this man, who sailed with him yesterday morning into Northumberland Strait, where the man took along a metal container about the size of a five pound can, in which were the ashes of his mother who had been cremated after death.

It had been her desire, he said, to have the ashes scattered at sea, and it was in fulfillment of this wish that the somewhat unusual rite was conducted yesterday.

taxable income thus placing him in a higher income bracket.

The federal government will be urged to remove the 11 per cent sales tax on margarine which the NCW regards as "unjust to Canadian consumers."

The council also believes this tax works against the diversification of agriculture and no longer serves the purpose for which it was instituted.

WANT BILINGUALISM

The NCW will urge provincial and local councils to encourage bilingualism of every Canadian by supporting student exchanges, use of language laboratories, linguistic specialists and other means.

Provincial and local councils will be urged to study the problems of water pollution and air pollution caused by the exhaust fumes from internal combustion engines. Findings on the water pollution problem are to be reported to the national chairman of health before June 1963.

These councils were also requested to study the feasibility of a law which will make breath analysis and other scientific tests compulsory for operators of motor vehicles who are suspected of being impaired by alcohol.
